The president presented the case, he said, "as it lies in the thought of the country," reiterating "that private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable," and declaring that conscientious business men throughout the nation would not be satisfied until practices now deprecated by public opinion as restraints of trade and commerce were corrected.

"We are now about to write the additional article of our constitution of peace," said the president, "the peace that is honor and freedom and prosperity.'

Besides suggesting the scope of legislation, the president made a personal appeal for an atmosphere of friendliness and co-operation in congress while handling the problem. "The antagonism." he said, "between business and government is over. We are now about to give expression to the best judgment of America, to what we and honor of the land. Big Dam Bursts, Flooding Valley. Residents of the Stony river valley below Dobbin, W. Va., were sent into terrorized flight and much alarm was caused in towns along the north tranch of the Potomac river by the bursting of the great dam of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company.

No loss of life has been reported the people apparently having received warning in ample time to flee to high lands, but the destruction of property has been heavy

The great wall of water let loose by the dam swept everything before it in the Stony river valley and poured into the Potomac at Schell, W. Va.

At Harrison, W. Va., forty-seven miles west of Cumberland, the water rose to a height of thirty-five feet. The torrent tore down the Western Mary land railroad bridge washed out the railway tracks and wrecked many homes. The loss to the railroad alone was estimated at more than $200,000. When the flood reached Blaine and Harrison it was sweeping everything before it. Piedmont and Keyser also suffered severely. Cumberland is more than sixty miles from the source of the flood, but all residents of the lowlands have been advised to flee from their homes. They carried their possessions to the hills. Cracks were discovered in the dam and the gates in the big concrete structure were opened to let out the water and lessen the strain on the weakened dam, whose breast was 1075 feet long and which held back more than 3,000,000,000 gallons of water.
