The Truth About Evangelist Sunday.

Editor of the Democratic Watchman. I trust I may be pardoned for appear ing so often in this column, but I can't calmly permit Billy Sunday to be slandered and traduced as he was in last week's issue of the WATCHMAN in a communication signed Edward L. Powers. I don't know Mr. Powers, but his letter leads me to the belief that he is one of those persons who, knowing absolutely nothing of the wonderful work being done by Billy Sunday, feels that he ought to get in his little knock, particularly as Sunday is not likely to hear of or notice such communications. But Sunday has friends and I am proud to call myself one of them. I am at a loss, however, to understand why Mr. Sunday's name should be dragged into a discussion starting with a criticism of Vance McCormick and ending with fulsome praise of the National administration, unless Mr. Powers thought by so doing the WATCHMAN readers might be led to believe he knew something about the subject. Let me say right here HE DOESN'T.

Any man, preacher or layman, who in less than 150 towns in the United States, preaches to over three and a quarter million people and whose converts in those same towns number over six hundred thousand is no so-called evangelist, as Mr. Powers sneeringly suggests. Such a man is an EVANGELIST in capital letters, let the uninformed cavil as they please. For the benefit of Mr. Powers and others who are troubled by the money Mr. Sunday received, I would call attention to the fact that for six, seven or eight weeks of the hardest kind of work any human being performs, Mr. Sunday which is taken up on only the last list sold two points higher than in the past five Sunday of his stay in any town. In other words Mr. Sunday gets no salary-merely what people who are amply able or wish to give-on only one day-and even part of this money goes toward paying half the salaries of the other members of the Sunday party.

Mr. Powers' ignorance of the Sunday campaigns is shown by the saying that Mr. Sunday will probably take $25,000 out of Scranton as a result of three or four weeks' work, when campaigns are not less than six weeks in a city of Scranton's size and may be seven. I only hope Mr. Sunday does get $25,000 in Scranton, for he is worth every cent of it. The people most interested in the contributions to Mr. Sunday-that is, the ones wno actually give the money—most generally wish they could give more, H. Heberling sold the old home and moved to while the ones who do the barking about Columbia Ave., Tyrone; Mrs. J. C. Sunday the immense (?) sums given are those who have not given a cent-hence it is none of their business how much he re-

One place in his letter Mr. Powers is probably correct, where he quotes Mr. Sunday as saying he would not trade places with Governor Tener, President Wilson, King George or Emperor William. Why should he desire to do so? Mr. Sunday has a passion for winning souls. Have Tener, Wilson, or the several Kings, all told, ever converted 100 persons in all'their lives? Mr. Sunday says: "I have been a preacher a good many many years now and I like it. I love it as I love nothing else. I wouldn't leave it for any money, and while I am about it I believe in preaching so that people can farm, Lemont; Ross brothers to the Major J. I. understand Sunday. This quotation of Ross farm, in the Glades; Hamill Glenn to the W. Sunday's tells why he wouldn't change H. Roush home, on Main street; T. G. Cronover places with any prince or potentate on earth and he thoroughly believes "there is nothing the world could offer that is is nothing the world could offer that is Smith moved to a farm he bought, east of Linden better than the job he now has." Some Hall. Frank Pennington quit farming and retirphilosopher whose name has escaped me for the moment said he "loved the room of the moment said he "loved the room of the moment said he "loved the room of the ro for the moment, said he "loved the rooster for the crow that is in him and for B. Hess farm, at Tadpole; Daniel Lutz is a beginthe spurs that are on him to back up that crow." So do we who know some. farm, at Krumrine; George Ralston to the that crow." So do we who know something about him love Sunday for the quit farming and retired to the place he bought wonderful good he is doing as well as for at Center Furnace; James I. Thompson moved in with Wayne B. Thompson for the present; J. the enemies he has made.

Folks who villify and traduce Sunday are generally to be found in two classes -those who know nothing about him or ersox to the Pierce Geist farm he bought; Mr. his campaigns, but who wish to appear Geist retired to Warriorsmark; Gilbert Rice to very wise and hammer his methods-or the booze and red light gang whom Sun- Charles Snyder goes to the Meek farm on Buffaday has been fighting for a score of years lo Run; James Snyder to the G, E, Harper farm, and who have had ample cause to fear White Hall; Milt Carver to the Emanuel Musser and hate him. As Mr. Powers is presumably a former Bellefonter, I trust he may be considered in the former classification, as the lesser.

I know something about Sunday. He was six weeks in Wheeling. His direct conversons numbered 8,343, while hundreds more were led to confess Christ later on as a result of efforts of the Personal Workers' organization. I could fill to the Wm. Groh Runkle farm, better known as this whole page telling you of instances of the permanent good done there and elsewhere by Sunday and his party, but liams to the D. W. Miller farm in the Glades: Wm. Shaffer to Madisonburg; Samuel Klinefelter I don't wish to trespass on your space to the Dr. Kidder farm in Pennsvalley; Lee further than is necessary to correct an Brooks to the Stuart brothers farm, at Boalsburg. utterly false and fallacious impression M. G. Rossman retires and goes to Centre Hall; regarding a man whom I believe, and Andy Rockey to the John Hamilton farm at State many others believe to be the greatest evangelist the world has seen since St.
Paul—the Rev. William Ashley Sunday,

BOOKS, MAGAZINES, Etc.

The April issue of the Theosophical Path contains several articles of unusual interest not only sophical student, but to the general reader. In the opening article H. Travers, M. College, with his wife and three interesting A., discusses the question of Reincarnation which, practically unknown to the Western world before being taught by Madame Blavatsky. is now a matter of common discussion. The writer says: "In the light of Reincarnation no life can be called a failure, for a life is but a small section of a great whole. . . . The period of a single earth-life is too short to display the pattern of our lives."

"The Changeless Change," by R. Machell, is a beautifully written mystical article. "A Marvel of Motherhood," by Percy Leonard is a fascinating record of observations on the founding of a colony of honey ants. The observations began January 15, 1912, when a captive ant was transferred to a glass tumbler full of sifted garden soil, and were kept up daily until September 11 of the same year. It is a fascinating study in natural history. The most striking article in the magazine is again by Kenneth Morris, who writes on "The Drama in Wales." C. J. Ryan contributes a finey illustrated descriptive article on "Bolivia." 'The Life Within; A Study in Mysticism," by W. A. Dunn, is another article of striking interest to the student and thoughtful reader. The series of remarkable articles in regard to Count Saint-Germain, by P. A. M., is concluded in this number under the heading "Count Saint-Germain in Madagascar."

The magazine is beautifully illustrated by a series of views from different parts of the world: Japan, Italy, Germany, England, Sweden, and
