Our Correspondents' Opinions.

It Does Stifle Railroad Building.

Let people know railroad freight rates of the year 1869 compared with now. Groceries and its kind from Philadelphia to points on the Bald Eagle Valley P. R. R. were 46 cents per 100 pounds, or less, and in addition thereto at stations like Mill Hall and Howard, Pa., etc., added 15 cents to each shipment under 1,500 pounds as a commission; and now the all round rates from New York and Philadelphia at 39 cents straight and the same rate by Central R. R. Co. of New Jersey, Philadelphia and Reading system, N. Y. C. & H. R. R. Co. and Central R. R. Co. of Pa., or any other direct route the carriers by boat or rail divide 39 cents for conveying such as a case of wine from pier 10, New York, to Lamar, Pa., of many cans of paints, oil and varnish, with handles, from New Jersey 39 cents per 100 pounds, and if it goes astray or packages are broken the damages to be paid by the railroad company.

Oh my! Where are the means for any dividends with freight rates reduced 60 per cent. and wages increased on railroads an average of 60 per cent. more than the year 1869, and that when they had the liberty to manage their own affairs to build more.

Such iniquity of freight rates that stifles railroad building through the beautiful, healthy Sugar Valley, and a short-line route between soft and hard coal and mountain basins, to store up flood waters to save coal, gardens and farms, is robbery, and woefully demoralizing to the people.

A HOG FARM ON PURDUE MOUNTAIN.—A piggy which will eventually grow into a hogger, and later through marketable pork turn a stream of silver shekels into the pockets of the owners has been started on one of the Purdue mountain farms owned by William Burnside by Stanley Valentine, who had to withdraw from his position in Pittsburgh on account of his health and is living on the mountain in the hope of regaining it in the pure air.

WILL BURNSIDE has on that farm over one thousand fruit trees of various kinds, a great many of them not yet in bearing condition. At that, however, his apple crop last year totalled 350 bushels and indications are for a much larger one this year.
