

Big Aviation and Race Meet.

The citizens of Lock Haven have arranged for a big "Old Home" aviation and race meet on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 27, 28 and 29, when the city will be crowded with visitors, including former residents. The putting on of the high class attractions for the three day's program will entail an outlay of $3,000. Nearly all the events of each day will take place at the Lock Haven Driving Park and will include two sensational aeroplane flights to a height of 1,000 feet, followed by spiral glides by Captain Baldwin, the famous aviator; trotting and pacing events each day for purses of $1,200, in which many fast horses of Pennsylvania and New York have been entered; exciting motorcycle races for good purses; band concerts each day and evening; championship base ball games between Lock Haven and Renovo on Thursday and Friday afternoons, and many other attractions, all for one price of admission. The citizens of the Hub city of Pennsylvania extend a cordial invitation to the people of Central Pennsylvania to join them on this occasion for the purpose of having a good time.

Storing Up Heat.

An inventor in Stockholm, Sweden, has devised an apparatus for storing heat. It consists of a mass of heat-absorbing material, in which is placed a coil of resistance wire. Surrounding the heat-storing material is heat-insulating material, while at the top is a damper which may be operated to permit the heat stored in the magazine to radiate out of the top. The entire apparatus is inclosed in a heat-radiating cover.

To facilitate the radiation of heat there is a system of air passages through the heat-storing materials. The apparatus is adapted to be used during off-peak periods, storing heat which may be used as needed.

An experimental apparatus about a yard high, 25 inches long and 14 inches wide showed a storing capacity of about 25,000 kilogramme calories, while a temperature in the storing magazine of about 600 degrees C. or about 1,100 degrees F. was obtained.

She Was the Boss.

There are husbands who, among their male companions, like to have it supposed that they are just a little bit tyrannical at home. One such man, who had two or three friends at his house one evening, remarked, as they were chatting together comfortably at a rather late hour:

"Yes, I do what I like at home. My wife, she has to bend to my will, I can tell you. In my house I'm a regular Julius Caesar."

His wife came into the room in time to hear this last sentence. The tyrant of his household looked a little uneasy, but his wife neither frowned nor, apparently, paid any attention to the remark. But, after a moment, she remarked, very positively: "Gentlemen, it is late, and Julius Caesar has got to go to bed."

WHEN JENNIE LIND SALUTED

Beautiful Tribute Which the Great Singer Once Paid to Our National Flag.

There is a pretty story told of the honor Jennie Lind once paid to the American flag. It was when she was in New York, more than 60 years ago. The frigate St. Lawrence had just returned from a cruise, and the midshipmen went to hear the Swedish nightingale sing at Castle Garden theater, and the next day they called on her in a body. Their enthusiasm and her graciousness soon brought about a visit to the ship and the acceptance of a luncheon tendered her. When she was about to leave the ship she looked up at the stars and stripes and said:

"I wish to salute your flag." So, standing on the gangway, she sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." Silently from all over the ship men gathered with uncovered heads, until the ship's family was all assembled on deck. Nor were they her only audience, for borne upon the still air her song had been heard by many other vessels near by, and when the wondrous voice ceased steamers blew their whistles and exultant cheers rose from all sides, filling the harbor with their tribute of applause for the beloved artist and of loyal reverence for the flag she had so beautifully saluted.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

A Wonderful Wall.

Few people realize what an almost perfect condition prevails along a large part of the great wall of China. The bricks of the parapet are as firm as ever, and their edges have stood the severe climatic conditions of North China with scarcely a break. The paving along the top of the wall is so smooth that one may ride over it with a bicycle, and the great granite blocks with which it is faced are smooth and as closely fitted as when put in place over 2,000 years ago.

The entire length of this wall is 1,400 miles; it is 22 feet high and 20 feet in thickness. At intervals of 100 yards or so there are towers, some 40 feet in height.

Agony Psychologized.

The "agony column" of a London newspaper recently contained this appeal to one "Dot": "Waited two hours for you, and your failure to turn up of course ruined my hard-earned holiday. Speak frankly. 'Twere kinder than suspense." However "Dot" may explain her heartlessness, there is no doubt of the correct psychology of the assertion that the knowledge of disaster is easier to bear than suspense. In fact, as Professor James says somewhere, it may even bring a kind of relief, and the mind, instead of dwelling upon hypothetical contingencies, begins to face the facts.

Death of the Pope.

ROME, Aug. 20.—Pope Pius X died at 1:20 o'clock this (Thursday) morning. He had been ill for several days, but alarming symptoms did not develop until Wednesday morning.

Throughout the day Drs. Marchiafava and Amici devoted their utmost energies to stimulating their patient to keep him alive. The cardinals were notified of the pope's grave condition and some of them who entered the sick room describe the impressive and heartrending scenes, especially when the pontiff, rousing himself from time to time, spoke. Once he said:

"In ancient times, the pope by a word might have stayed the slaughter, but now he is impotent."

Prayers were said by thousands, and the bells of the churches sounded when the sacrament was exposed upon all the altars. When the court learned of the condition, there was the deepest concern. King Victor Emmanuel personally informed Queen Helena and the news was communicated to the queen mother.

Extreme unction was administered by Monsignor Zampini, sacristan to his holiness, amid a most touching scene. The sisters of the pope and his niece were overcome with grief. Cardinal Merry Del Val knelt by the side of his bed, where other cardinals joined him, the members of the household intoning prayers.

The dying pope, in a moment of lucidity said: "Now I begin to think as the end is approaching, that the Almighty, in his inexhaustible good, wishes to spare me the horrors the world is undergoing." Wednesday was one of the most anxious days in the history of the papacy. The sisters of the pope and his niece were suffering from his usual ailment, the gout. Up to noon even the members of the household were unaware of the seriousness of the developments. Almost without warning came the word that the pontiff was at death's door.
