Red Cross Makes Appeal. The American Red Cross appealed to all religious denominations throughout the country to contribute to the European relief fund in houses of worship on Peace Sunday, Oct. 4, the day set apart by President Wilson for special prayers.

The President Says That Circum-Circumstances Justifying Use of U. S. Soldiers No Longer Exists.

President Wilson ordered American soldiers withdrawn from Vera Cruz.

He issued the following statement: "Our troops have been ordered withdrawn from Vera Cruz. This action is taken in view of the entire removal of the circumstances which were thought to justify the occupation. The further presence of the troops is deemed unnecessary." It is understood that President Wilson took this action on the unanimous advice of the cabinet. Secretaries Bryan, Garrison and Daniels joined in the belief that the evacuation of Vera Cruz would be a good stroke at the present time. It would demonstrate America's good faith and confidence in the present administration and would have a good effect on the present delicate situation in Mexico.

It is believed, also, that General Carranza has frequently told Paul Fuller, the president's confidential agent in Mexico City, that he would not make any agreement with the United States government regarding his future conduct or policies until Vera Cruz again became Mexican territory. Reports are current in Washington that recognition of the Carranza government will speedily follow the with-These, however, cannot be confirmed at the present time.

The United States forces were landed at Vera Cruz on April 28, seven days after Admiral Fletcher, in command of the American naval forces, had seized the custom house there. Fighting that followed the landing of the marines and bluejackets cost the lives of more than a score of the American forces. The Mexicans suffered much heavier loss.

About 10,000 United States troops were sent from the camps in Texas and nearly the same number was available from the powerful battleship squadron lying in front of the Mexican port. 45 Drowned; Train Hits Cloudburst. St. Louis and San Francisco train No. 5, west bound, known as the "Texas Limited," plunged into a cloudburst near Lebanon, 182 miles southeast of St. Louis, and before the engineman could stop the train the track gave way and the locomotive and four cars rolled into a ooded gully.

Thirty-five to forty-five persons in O. P. Bloom and wife were royally entertained two passenger coaches were drowned and probably a score injured. The four sleeping cars remained on the track, and the passengers in those coaches rushed forward to rescue tho persons imprisoned in the cars merged in twelve feet of water.

The engineman, describing his experiences, said that the train was running slowly when the cloudburst occurred. A wall of water swept across the track and appeared to be rushing toward the train. He closed the throttle in an effort to stop the train, but in a moment the locomotive and four cars were swept from the rails.

Rebukes Turkish Ambassador. President Wilson has sent a personal letter to Secretary of State Bryan, asking that the attention of the Turkish ambassador, Rustem Bey, be called to the president's recent statement to the people of the United States on the subject of neutrality.

Published reports that the recall of the ambassador was to be asked because of certain of his recent statements were denied at the White House and the state department. The president asked the secretary of state to learn if recent statements in the newspapers were authorized by the ambassador. Mr. Bryan saw the ambassador and later talked with the president.
