Mr. Gardner's Great Enterprise.

Representative GARDNER, of Massachusetts, has served notice that upon the reassembling of Congress he will demand consideration of his resolution providing for a commission of nine or twelve or fifteen high-priced gentlemen to inquire into our state of preparedness for war.

Representative GARDNER has not been influenced to his present point of view by his own observation. On the contrary he has been talking to certain army and navy officers who have assured him that unless we get all the things he wants in the immediate future somebody will come from somewhere and "turn the hose on us," thus wiping us off the face of the earth.

If the substance in his head which Representative GARDNER is using for brains were carefully analyzed it might be discovered that there is a much easier way to accomplish the purpose he aims to attain than the process he suggests.

ROOSEVELT draws crowds beyond question but BARNUM's white elephant attracted a great deal of public interest, though it was a painted fraud.

Judge Kunkel's Valid Claims.

While Judge GEORGE KUNKEL was trying the capitol graft cases, in the Dauphin county court, lawyers throughout the State who favored higher ideals in government, were deeply concerned.

If there were no other reasons in his favor his conduct of those celebrated cases ought to commend Judge KUNKEL to the people of Pennsylvania. The conviction of two of the culprits and the recovery of a considerable part of the stolen funds completely changed the trend of official life in the State.

In the trial of those cases Judge KUNKEL fulfilled his moral and legal obligations to the people of Pennsylvania in full measure. He now aspires to enter upon a wider field of usefulness. He has been nominated by the people for the great office of Justice of the Supreme court, and asks for popular approval of his laudable ambition to sit upon that bench.

The distinguished financiers who compose the Federal Reserve Board tried to delay the opening of the reserve banks as long as possible, but Secretary of the Treasury McADOO believes that the relief they promise should be made available as soon as possible and has ordered the opening for the 16th of November.

Campaign of False Pretense.

The European war practically closed the ports of the United States to foreign commerce. If the PAYNE-ALDRICH tariff law had been in operation the revenues upon imports would have been cut off as completely as they were under the UNDERWOOD bill for the reason that where there are no imports there can be no impost duties.

The new revenue law is a precautionary measure. If the European war continues to prevent the importation of foreign products and thus prolongs the period of custom house paralysis, the new internal revenue legislation will provide funds to administer the government during the interval.

The campaign of misrepresentation which has been conducted by the Republican party in Pennsylvania this year is an insult to the intelligence of the people. Senator PENROSE and his associates have been assuming that the average voter is an ignoramus, incapable of understanding the plainest facts.

The liberality shown in the movement to provide the bereaved children of Belgium with Christmas toys is most commendable. But there will be more children without toys on Christmas in this country than there are men, women and children in Belgium. However, let that pass.

All estimates of the impending election results agree that the Democrats will have a safe majority in the next Congress and though it may not be as big as that in the present body it will be big enough for practical purposes.
