

though testator practically disinheritin his judgment that she had been him and her mother.

wounded.

It is pleasant to hear that the stern as well as most other things. In a certain territorial regiment, I was told, ently to him came the youthful officer in charge. He has what is known as the varsity accent, and by those who do not know it outside the stage it may easily be mistaken for facetiousness.

The "nut" officer stooped and inspected. Then: "Ha, ha, no shave," he said. "He, he, no razor," replied the new recruit blithely, thinking that he had met a sociable soul with a pleasant way of reprimanding. The result was, of course, disastrous to the recruit. But now, when the regiment is marching and "Tipperary" is getting a little overdone, the monotony is varied by the front section suddenly calling out in full-throated unison: "Ha, ha, no shave," which is instantly replied to from the back with a stentorian roar of, "He, he, no razor!"-London Daily Mirror.

Tries on Shoe; Breaks Ribs.

When John Bartlow went into William Grittner's shoe store here he found a pair he liked, but they fitted a little tight, and he could not get into one.

Grittner seated himself on a low chair, took hold of an upper and bade his customer "push hard." He did, and Grittner's hold slipped, the heel of the new shoe striking him a hard blow over the heart.

When the doctor arrived he declared that Grittner had suffered three broken ribs and possibly other internal injuries, and directed him to go to bed.-Turbotville (Pa.) Dispatch Philadelphia Record.

It takes more than book learning to be a success as a doctor. He needs a lot of common horse sense, and in all this chatter about higher education and a new curriculum-which is one way of freezing out competition in the medical college trust-I haven't seen montioned any professor of common sense.-Providence Medical Journal.

-Subscribe for the WATCHMAN.

