Robert Yeager, the fourteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Yeager, of Yeagertown, Mifflin county, walked into Bellefonte on Wednesday morning and appealed to policeman Harry Dukeman to get him something to eat. The lad confessed to running away from home Tuesday morning in search of work. He walked over the Seven mountains, across Pennsylvan, Nittany mountains and to Bellefonte, and claimed he had had nothing to eat from the time he left home. The policeman got him a good square meal then communicated with his parents. The County Commissioners furnished the money to buy him a ticket and the lad was sent home the same afternoon.

William Billett, foreman of the Bellefonte Central railroad carpenter shops, and John L. Dunlap are now among the list of injured. On Wednesday morning Norman R. Wright took the men up to Morris' siding on the company's gasoline motor car to repair a bridge. On the way back they ran into an open switch and ditched the car. Wright escaped injury but Billett had his head cut and shoulders sprained while Dunlap had two fingers of his left hand hurt. Both will be off duty a few days.

Elsworth Niggel, a student at the Bellefonte Academy, is critically ill with pneumonia, in the Academy infirmary. Dr. Thompson, of Butler, the boy's home physician, has been here in consultation and is in constant communication with the physicians in charge.

INVADERS ARE NEAR UZSOK

Attacks and Counter Attacks Are So Frequent That Both Sides Appear to Be on the Offensive.

Dispatches from Lemberg say that in a desperate attack by the Russians on the right flank of the Austrians position at Mezolaborcz, on the Hungarian side of the East Beskin mountains and about fifty miles south of Przemysl, the Austrians were forced, after a battle lasting twelve hours to make a precipitate retreat.

The whole main crest in this district, which the Austrians had considered to be impregnable, now is in the hands of the Russians. The main body of the Austrian army then moved on Rostoka, where they found the Russians prepared in a strong defensive position, and they again were repulsed. Another attack made by the Austrians in the southern district of Uzsook and Veretzkin met with a similar check, the Russians occupying a position three miles from Uzsook.

The left flank of this Austrian army, under command of Archduke osep Ferdinand, is being gradually exposed by the Russian advances toward Bartfeld and Gummino.

Teuton Allies Fighting Stubbornly.

The Austro-German forces which are still holding some of the isolated summits of the Carpathians are contesting stubbornly every foot of the Russian advances along the front from Bartfeld to Stry. This front runs almost due east and west for 115 miles. Bartfeld is in northern Hungary and Stry is eastern Galicia, to the south of Lemberg.

Attacks and counter attacks follow with such rapidity that both sides may be said to be taking the offensive simultaneously. The shocks are resulting in unusually heavy casualties, with only a slight change in the comparative positions of the opposing forces.

Uzsook, near the pass of that name, still remains in the possession of the Austrians, but the Russians have captured the heights to the northward, coming within three miles of the railroad station, and their occupation of the town itself is expected. The Austrians are vigorously repeating their efforts to penetrate from Bukovina into Russian territory in the direction of Chotin.

The Russians characterize this move as a device on the part of the Austrians for drawing Russian troops from the Carpathians. They assert that the Austrians have been unable to bring up sufficient reinforcements to check the Russian advance, and that the only alternative for the Austrians is to divert part of the Russian forces in other directions.

"STOP, LOOK, LISTEN!"

A Lawyer received $10,000 for suggesting these words to a railroad. The sign, "Stop, Look, Listen!" saved the road many thousands of dollars in damages. It's a good sign. It's worth $10,000. Wise people are often warned by a similar sign on the road of extravagance. They stop in time. How about yourself? Think this over seriously. A bank account is the Best Kind of Security at any time. If you haven't a bank account now, start one at once. Any account, however small you are able to begin with, will be welcomed and carefully conserved at
