A Wise Suggestion.

From all reports the Picnic Committee of the last annual Granger's Picnic and Encampment at Centre Hall have a nice surplus on hand from the last picnic which the members of the organization believe should be expended wisely in permanent improvements at Grange Park.

It has been suggested that the money could be utilized by installing electric lights and by replacing the old shed and stable with new and up-to-date build-ings. As is well known, the old stock shed and stable have for years been an eye-sore on the grounds.

The new one built last year was a credit to the managers and a pleasure and convenience to the exhibitors.

Years ago carloads of stock were shipped to Grange Park for the picnic and encampment and placed on exhibition, later being sold. The managers did not encourage this tendency and custom by providing fit quarters and as a result a movement which promised to make the Grange Park at encampment time one of the best stock markets in Pennsylvaers would again flock to the encampment stock among the Grange members and farmers generally. This suggestion is presented in the interest of wise and farsighted permanent improvements for the information and criticism of all Centre county Grangers and others interested in a better and bigger Grange Encampment. English Lose One Officer and Eighteen Men, While Teuton Loss is One-third of Crew.

Advices received assert that the German warship Roon, alleged in some reports to be the captor of the Appam, has been captured by the British armored cruiser Drake, after a threehour fight 200 miles east-northeast of Bermuda, according to a despatch printed by the New York Evening Globe.

The canture of the Roon is said by the Globe to have been followed by the seizure of two merchantmen flying the German flag, one of which was armed.

The Globe announces it received the following message in code from a reliable source in Bermuda:

"Drake here, towing Roon. Took her 200 knots east-northeast Bermuda, three hours' running fight. Lost Danfo, th. eighteen men. Her losses about one-third. Struck as we came abeam. Two merchantmen with her, one armed. Took both. Brought here. "Segrave, on sighting Roon, said:

'Please God, today I will avenge Cradock.' Roon badly knocked about by 9.2. Thirty-two officers and 719 men taken in the three prizes."

For several days there have been rumors in maritime circles that the German raider had been sunk or captured by the British. The rumor first was heard last Saturday, but there has been no official confirmation of it.

There is no officer named Danforth on the British navy list. The Segrave mentioned in the despatch is supposed to be Captain John R. Segrave, who was in command of the auxiliary cruiser Orama, which formed part of Admiral Cradock's squadron when the admiral went to the bottom on his flagship Good Hope, off the coast of Chile, in November, 1914.

After that battle, the Orama escaped, and later, in company with the cruisers Glasgow and Kent, sank the German cruiser Dresden, off Juan Fernandez Island. A few days later, in March, 1915, Captain Segrave fought a battle with the German armed merchantman Navarra, off the river Plate and sank her. The Orama was last reported at Callao, June, 1915, and since that time neither it nor Captain Segrave has figured in the news.

Another surmise is that the officer may be Captain J. Roderick Seagrave. who was in command of the Bacchante.

"It would be easy within a few hours to transfer the officers and crew of the Bacchante to the Drake." admirted Captain Wood, of the British naval staff in New York. "It is true the Drake has 9.2 inch guns."

At the Brilish consulate it was said no news of the reported capture had been received. The last heard of the Drake, which is a 12,000-ton vessel, was that she was being refitted early last month. That they had not been informed of the capture was not taken by British officials to mean the report was untrue
