Soldiers on Service in France Entranced by "Tristan" From a Tartan-Clad Private.

FIJIANS LIKE THE MOVIES

But Their Dislike for Clothing Still Clings, and Is a Misfortune, Governor Says.

Sir Ernest Bickham Sweet-Escott. governor of the Fiji islands and British high commissioner for the Westclothes, have made a great mistake.

He said they are still content with their one piece of cloth, and mosquitoes are increasing on the islands. The natives have given up cannibal ism and taken to moving pictures for their favorite pastime. One hundred the war. All are good man-killers, but none man-eaters.

"In the first place, the best selling point for an article is to get it associated in the mind of the customer with success. Everything, even remotely connected with the article, that suggests success is a point which weighs in favor of the sale. If the salesman looks prosperous, the customer unconsciously or subconsciously receives the impression that this prosperity grew out of the excellence of the article he is selling. The salesman should carry into a store an impression of success, prosperity and harmony. He should look as if things were 'breaking well' for him, as the saying is. Now the idea of complete harmony cannot be conveyed, as I look at it, without health."

On market day in a small town Farmer Jones disposed of part of his live stock and went with the purchaser to the hotel to settle up. The purchaser made out a check, and said: "Now, I'll just cross it and it's done."

Vision in Fishes.

Vision in fishes is very like human visior in regard to shade and color, but less acute in dots of two millimeters and three millimeters, and recognize dots of one millimeter, but not those of five-tenths of a millimeter.

By means of a rotating background of black and white sectors the acuteness of vision in regard to motion was found equal to that of men. Flounders adapted to a given color seek grounds of that color, and color in the skin is produced only by exposure to the same color. Hence, flounders have ground is not affected by covering the color vision, but this does not prove they have color sensation.

SINGER AT THE RAILHEAD IMPOSSIBLE TO AVOID WORK

In Some Form Every Man Must Do His Share Toward the Progress of the World.

Colonel Roosevelt says that those who "cloak their unwillingness to toil and endure" are timid and lazy. But into the railhead just as the light was | what would he say of those who are beginning to show over beyond the unwilling to toil and endure, and do not cloak it? Perhaps he would say that they are unjust to themselves and to others, courting unhappiness for out of the windows; a few got out to themselves, and seeking to extend it to others. MINE HAS PECULIAR VALUE

Great Variety of Most Useful Products Taken From the Ground in Verdite, South Africa.

Situated in the beautiful Kaap valley, in the Jamestown district of Barberton, Transvaal, there is a mine known by the name of Verdite. The name was given to it on account of the peculiar greenstone found in the mine, which is unknown in any other part of the globe. Articles of jewelry and ornaments are made of verdite. and it has been called the lucky greenstone of South Africa. This greenstone is a silicate of magnesia, or talc, colored green by nature in the course of its formation. Other silicates ern Pacific, made the announcement of magnesia may be mentioned here; that the Fijians, in their dislike for peridote, serpentine, meerschaum and steatite. The mine, or, rather, hill, consists of three varieties of talc, green, white and black. But a peculiar fact is that in the black talc there is present pure gold. Some of the finest specimens of gold-bearing rock have been found at this mine men from the islands have gone to Everyone knows that gold is found in quartz, pyrites, or even in sea water, but scarcely ever has it been Sir Ernest and Lady Sweet-Escott | mentioned in books that gold exists are on their way back to the Fijis in talc. When the verdite rock has crushing and the gold has been extracted, the waste (or what is called the slimes from a gold mine) is used in the manufacture of soap. grease, paint, paper, toilet powders gas jets, electric insulators, crayons and many other articles of everyday use. In fact, one might say that everything got from this mine can be used for some commercial purpose.

> The Reading of Books. How are the young folk of today to acquire the reading habit? They all go to school and they are taught much more about literature than it was the custom to teach the boys and girls of earlier generations. Yet somehow it does not appear that when they leave school they read the books written by the authors with whose names they become familiar as the great ones of the literary world. It does not appear, in fact, that many of them read books of any kind unless it is the sensational and trivial novels of the day, and even these they have little leisure for.

> So many other matters take their attention. The automobile is one hindrance to the formation of the reading habit. The freedom it gives is more fascinating to the average young person than any book of fiction, to say nothing of anything more serious. It invites and knows no refusal. "Movies" attract a multitude to whom motor cars are not available. And there is dances and theaters and the general business of having a "good time" through some form of activity. For in these days youth demands a good time as an inalienable right.-Indianapolis Star.

Spider's Lariat.

There is in this country a species of spider which haunts evergreen trees and catches its prey by means of a kind of lariat.

The web of this spider is triangular in form, consisting of four longitudinal lines and a large number of cross fibers connecting them. Two corners of the triangle are attached to twigs, but the other corner, which terminates in a single thread, is held by the spider perched on a neighboring twig. When a fly strikes the web, the spider loosens his hold and the elastic threads instantly entangle the victim.

Vision of the Flounder.

A flounder deprived of one eye simulates the background quite normally, but there is no simulation whatever when both eyes are removed. Flounders fail to simulate the ground in very strong illumination from above, and they become white on all grounds when their eyes receive no light directly from above. CITY BEAUTIFUL BY NIGHT

Stockholm Always at Its Best When Viewed After Darkness, Is Opinion of Travelers.

The best time to get your first look at Stockholm is by night. As you come up the channel you see the town all traced and fringed with chains of light. The ordinary illumination of the Stockholm streets and quays makes them look as though the city were decorated for a fair. They are lavish users of electric light in Sweden, to judge by the capital.

Their favor seems to shine on anything that works by wire. Take the telephone, for instance. Without compiling statistics, it is a pretty safe bet that there are more telephones per capita in Stockholm than in any other town on earth. They have apparently more phones than any city needs and then again as many on top of that. The latter circumstance is due to an inscrutable arrangement which works long and short distance calls on a different system. Instead of one phone in your room, you have two. Where an ordinary municipality has one phone booth, Stockholm doubles. The town is a sort of monument to Alexander Graham Bell.

The most imposing structure, of course, is the telephone exchange. After that comes the royal palace, a huge and beautiful building that entertained twenty royal families of Europe at the same time in the days when royal families were on speaking terms. Nowadays, they are not sending out any house party invitations. Sweden is devoting her leisure moments to being neutral and as she is much closer to the storm center than we are, she has a correspondingly harder time of it.

Not far from the palace is the parliament building. There is only one man on earth who may not cross the threshold of this structure. That man is the king of Sweden. When the king wants to talk to the houses he sends for them, as at the beginning of each

Stockholm has a particularly beautiful natural setting, with her many satellite islands, her big lake and her wooded suburbs. The people are cheerful and fresh-looking and energetic. The Norseman is an apparent contradiction of the law that says nations must grow old. He set the world by the ears 2,000 years ago and today his racial force seems running high as Everybody Was More or Less Inter ested in the Militia Some Decades Ago.

In considering the subject of preparedness it might be wise to look up the old militia system that prevailed sixty or seventy years ago when states were divided into districts, each one having a company to which all men of soldier age were required to belong, and give a few days each year to military drill, the Columbus Journal observes.

Every year there would be a "general muster," at which the various com panies would gather, and under the command of a plumed and bespangled officer would perform the various evolutions and go through the manual of arms that would strike with awe the surrounding crowd of women and children, gathered to witness the heroic displays of fathers and brothers.

These general musters were great events in the times of our grandfath ers. They were social as well as military, and often adorned with feasts of warlike provender. In one of his speeches Tom Corwin tells of a gen eral muster in which the brave militiamen, with bayonet and sword charged on a pile of watermelons and cut the red hearts out of the enemy
