THINGS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY.

See our early fall and winter line of coats and suits.—LYON & Co. 34-It

Beginning next Sunday the price of the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh Sunday papers will be six cents.

Mrs. Sol Poorman has been ill for the past two weeks with a broken arm, the result of a fall downstairs.

The county commissioners have decided to repair the Centre county half of the inter-county bridge at Beech Creek.

The Friends quarterly meeting at the old meeting house in Halfmoon township will be held tomorrow, Sunday and Monday.

All the stores in Bellefonte will be closed on Monday in observance of Labor day, therefore be wise and do all your shopping tomorrow.

Valuable real estate for sale on the corner of Bishop and Allegheny streets, known as the Edward Brown corner.—J. M. KEICHLIN, Agent. 61-33-4t

Alice Owens, the fourteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Owens, of Valentine street, fell last Thursday evening and broke her right collar bone.

Miss Ottilie Hughes gave a dance at the Academy last Wednesday evening which was attended by fifteen couples. Refreshments were served and all present had a delightful time.

The family and friends of the late Charles Koontz desire through the "Watchman" to express their appreciation and thanks to the owners of automobiles in Bellefonte who so kindly gave their service at the funeral of Mr. Koontz yesterday morning.

Miss Gertrude Shultz, of Philadelphia, who was to have been in Bellefonte and make an address before the Young Woman's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church, in the chapel this evening, has sent word that she will not be here, owing to the threatened railroad strike.

Patrons of the Scenic on Wednesday evening were delightfully surprised when they saw thrown upon the screen the pictures of two Bellefonters. The picture that was being shown was the Burton Holmes travel pictures, depicting scenes at the San Diego, Cal., exposition, and brought out in strong relief were the figures of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Thompson, who were there when the picture was taken.

The last picnic of the season will be held next Monday (Labor day), when the P. O. S. of A. of Clinton county will hold their annual reunion at Hecla park. There are thirteen camps in Clinton county and every one will be represented at the gathering. Members of the order in Centre county and elsewhere are invited to attend this picnic. There will be dancing during the entire day and sports of various kinds.

September is here and only three weeks more until summer will be over and the cool, frosty winds of approaching winter will be sweeping over the land. But summer or winter the scenic will continue to show the same high-class programs of motion pictures. In fact manager T. Clayton Brown is always figuring on improving his service and giving his patrons more for the money than they can see anywhere else. If you are not a regular attendant of the Scenic now is a good time to make the start.

Charles W. Triple has been appointed agent for the Adams Express company at Tyrone and took charge of the office on Monday. Mr. Triple is thoroughly conversant with the express business, having when a young man started in as driver of the delivery wagon in Bellefonte. He later succeeded Orr Hoover as agent of the Bellefonte office, a position he filled most acceptably for a number of years. He resigned the agency here about ten years ago to go into other business and most of the time since has been spent on the road as a traveling salesman. But he is now back to the work of his early manhood and there is no doubt but that he will make a competent and courteous agent.

Six residents of Kane, all Elks, who were on their way to Reading for the big convention, stopped at the Elks Lodge in this place on Sunday afternoon and spent a half hour or so, continuing their journey the same day. In one of the cars were Frank G. Copeland, a jeweler of Kane, and R. E. Shaner, of the same place. Two miles below Jersey Shore Copeland attempted to pass a car going in the opposite direction, ran up on the bank and upset his car. He was pinned underneath but Shaner was thrown out of the danger line. It took some time to release Copeland and when he was finally gotten from under the car it was found that he had two ribs broken, one of which penetrated his lung. He was given first aid treatment then taken to the Williamsport hospital.

Pennsylvania Troopers In Grand Review.

A Magnificent Turnout of Men, Horses and Vehicles. Other Interesting News from the Front.

By Corp. Harry J. Cohen.

Camp Thomas J. Stewart, El Paso, Texas, August 26.

We have just returned to our troop street and I hasten to jot down the happenings of a single morning, long to be remembered and cherished by all who were fortunate enough to have been a witness of the most glorious display of pomp and power of the entire Pennsylvania fighting force. The sight as each regiment of the seventh division, comprising the entire military system of the Keystone State filed past the reviewing officer's stand, in company formation, was as awe-inspiring as any one could wish for.

All the different divisions of the service congregated at their respective positions at 9 o'clock on the parade grounds about one-half mile south of Tobin, Texas, which is a short distance north of our camp, and exactly fifteen minutes later the grand review started. First every regiment and hospital corps attached to each of the three brigades of infantry, with their various bands and their blue colored regimental standards along side of Old Glory, and with their headquarters staff mounted, passed and it was fully three-quarters of an hour before they were followed by the signal corps. Next the artillery swung in line and they were followed by our own gallant First regiment cavalry in platoon formation. Following us was the wagon train and auto truck train, and by the time the last one passed the reviewing stand it was almost 11.30 a. m.

This maneuver came as a great surprise to all concerned, as there hadn't been a word said about it until late the night before, all of which shows with what speed the different units are rounding into form. Fully 18,000 men, thousands of horses and mules, besides countless vehicles were in line, and with the beautiful day and cooling breezes was, as Lieut. Smith said, a sight we may never see again.

Of course, each and every man is deserving of credit for the part taken by him, but all due praise must be given our excellent Captain, H. Laird Curtin, for bringing down here, truly a bunch of rookies, and giving each one his undivided attention and of his unbounded source of military ability. His knowledge of horsemanship is far above any officer of the regiment, and if he don't turn us out a real, crack cavalry contingent it won't be his fault. I can safely say that there isn't a troop anywhere around here who respect and honor their captain and lieutenants as do the men of troop L.

If we do or do not stay here this winter we will be at least well prepared in so far as camp comforts are possible. Every troop is having built of real lumber dining halls and kitchens, to take the place of the tent affairs we now have. These buildings will have adobe floors, made of the mud of the desert mixed with straw and dried in the sun, a process used in the building of houses all through this section of the country by the poorer class of the mixed people, but which is admirably adapted as a protection against the elements.

On Wednesday every man was examined by the hospital corps according to the Bertillon system. Every scar, mole and disfigurement, real or fanciful was marked on a chart in the exact spot that it appeared on the man, and then the fingers separately and then together were taken, and that of the index finger was taken again, just for luck, so I guess our Uncle Sammy has us now, until he is willing to play quits. But as far as L Troop goes, he needn't have worried, nobody wants to go home. (Liar.)

The Y. M. C. A. has opened up what is called an army hut, but in reality it is a real, large auditorium, where stationary and a writing room are furnished gratis, and lectures on different subjects will be given. There is also a victrola and some of the latest rag-time music as well as classical records to help entertain the soldiers. The dedication is booked for tonight and all await the big doings. James Calvin (Pudoe) Young received a letter from some fair maiden in Bellefonte this week on the reverse side of which were the letters S W A K. We don't know what they were intended to mean but instead of "Pudoe" the boys are now calling him "Swak" all on account of a girl.

I guess that's about all, except all are feeling great and are enjoying the equitation exercises, and a few have ordered cane seats for their chairs, instead of the wooden ones now supplied. The weather is much cooler than it has been for some time, making it pleasanter for all.

All the boys send their regards to the friends at home.

Reading is the mecca for Elks this week and Milton Kern is representing the Bellefonte Lodge at the annual state convention being held there. Hugh N. Crider went to New York on Sunday and came back to Reading for the big gathering while M. A. Landry went there from Philadelphia yesterday to see the big parade. On Tuesday afternoon Henry Kline motored down, taking with him A. L. McGinley, Edward H. Gehret, Jacob Marks, Orie Kline and R. S. Brouse II.

A Call to the Colors.

Lieut. R. A. Zentmyer, of Tyrone, recruiting officer for this district, was in Bellefonte all day on Monday and Tuesday morning on his preliminary trip to recruit men to fill Troop L to a war limit and also men for the mounted machine gun troop now at Mt. Gretna, the latter troop being twelve short of its minimum strength, by reason of eighteen men failing to pass the physical examination at Mt. Gretna.

The Lieutenant did not have one applicant on Monday and naturally he is at a loss to account for the apparent lack of interest in the matter on the part of available young men. Of course, no true American is lacking in patriotism when his country needs his services and, notwithstanding the fact that we are not at war now, more men are needed to help along the preparedness program of President Wilson. Lieut. Zentmyer will be in Bellefonte on September 7th and 14th, and on those days he hopes to have many applications for enlistment.

In the Throes of an Ice Famine.

For the first time in many years Bellefonte is now in the throes of an ice famine, but at that, we are no worse here than the residents of all the surrounding towns. R. B. Taylor, the largest ice dealer in Bellefonte, ran out of ice last Thursday, notwithstanding the fact that last winter he stored over three thousand tons, the largest supply he ever put up. The wet, murky weather during the early summer was harder on his ice than the actual consumption, as his actual sales out of the total amount put up aggregated a little less than one thousand tons.

Of course he is still supplying ice but it is a hard job to get it. In fact he is getting it from DuBois, Hecla, New York and wherever he can. Altoona, Tyrone, Lock Haven and even Buffalo, N. Y., are out of natural ice and have to depend on artificial ice plants, and they are taxed to the limit to keep up a supply for home consumption. Mr. Taylor, however, will do everything possible to keep his customers in ice and hopes to be able to meet the demand.

Yesterday morning Dick Bartlett, who was working for Harry Winton at his coal yard, undertook to drive the motor truck from the coal bins to the scales at the office. He got it going all right and ran around to the office but by that time he had forgotten how to stop the critter. So he decided that the best thing to do was to pull a sort of ring around rosy in the street until the regular driver came to his assistance. Unfortunately, however, the street there is not quite wide enough for that sort of a game with a motor truck and the result was Dick managed to drive it into collision with the express wagon, which was waiting on the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania train and after brushing it aside ran into one of the posts surrounding the Central station, breaking it off at the ground and stalling the machine. By that time Dick was yelling as loud as if he had sat down in a yellowjacket's nest and when young Steele, the regular driver, arrived upon the scene he found a truck minus one head lamp, one front fender, radiator shoved in and a few minor damages. About that time the train pulled into the depot and conductor Harry Winton took a survey of his wrecked property. Harry did not say much, but we'll bet a barrel of apples he wasn't thinking of the threatened railroad strike for a few minutes, anyway.

Farming at the Penitentiary.

The Philadelphia "North American" in its magazine section on Sunday contained a double page write-up of the new western penitentiary at Rockview, illustrated with a big panorama view of the prison farms with fifteen three column pictures showing the various phases of life at the new penitentiary. Included in his article the writer gives the following figures of this year's farming area: Wheat, 320 acres; oats, 230; hay, 250; potatoes, 130; corn, 145; rye, 19; garden, 65; pasture, 170; nursery, 10. They housed this summer 800 tons of hay and expect a total yield of 6,500 bushels of wheat, 7,000 bushels of oats and 3,000 bushels of corn. They have 80,000 cabbage plants in good growing condition, practically all of which will be used at the prison, a good percentage of which will be turned into sauerkraut for winter use. There is a mill at the prison capable of turning out 65,000 pounds of rolled oats and 65,000 pounds of wheat crisp a year, and which is now supplying all the cereal used at the penitentiary. How many farmers living right in this section have any direct knowledge of the magnitude of the work done on the penitentiary farms, and to do that work requires the services of sixty head of horses, and they are now raising twenty-one colts. There are eighteen milk cows on the farms and fifty-eight brood sows.

Lingle, who is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Garman.

A Destructive Fire.

At an early hour on Sunday morning fire destroyed the barn and out-buildings on the Benjamin Stover property at Aronsburg, and the barn on the Dr. Sumner Musser property adjoining. With the Stover barn were burned one horse, a lot of chickens, two hogs, 250 bushels of corn, 26 bushels of wheat, harness and some farming utensils. Mr. Stover's loss is about $1,000 with $300 insurance. Mr. Musser's loss was confined to his barn alone, as there was nothing in it.

"The Curse of the Forest," is the name of a motion picture representing a real forest fire and showing methods of fighting it, with the devastation that follows in its wake, which has just been completed by the Vitagraph company in co-operation with the State Department of Forestry. The picture was taken in the South Mountains in Franklin county, and will have its first public showing next week at the convention of the Wild Life League, at Conneaut Lake, which will be in session September 5th to 9th inclusive. Later it will be shown before the faculty at State College and will then be released for exhibition to the general public.

Harry Alters has given up his position as a traveling salesman and is now employed as a clerk in Montgomery & Co's store.

Didn't He Do Right?

The "Watchman" has never been a party to crime nor lent its columns in defense of criminals or wanton violators of the law, yet we cannot refrain from commending the action of the Centre county court in discharging a Bellefonte youth on Monday afternoon who was brought before him on the charge of attempted burglary.

The boy, for he is only about sixteen years old, was caught by the police about one o'clock last Saturday morning trying to force a window of Parrish's drug store with a screw driver. When searched he had on his person a pillow slip and an unloaded revolver, but no cartridges. The boy is not strong physically, in fact not able to do hard work. His father and mother are separated and the latter maintains the home by taking in washings five days in the week, with the assistance she gets from a daughter who works every day. Naturally it is a continual struggle for the family to get along.

The writer personally knows the boy in question and knows that he is not a vicious character and has never been mixed up in any questionable scrapes. He is also ready and willing to work at anything he can do, and can stand to do physically. He was down town with his mother on Friday evening and went home with her about eleven o'clock, and who can guess what was in his mind when he slipped out of the house and came down town to commit a burglary.

But he was caught by the police in the act and put in the lockup for the night. Saturday he was sent to jail where he was kept until Monday afternoon. When brought before Judge Quigley that gentleman gave him an earnest talking to and suspended sentence, directing the county to pay the costs.

While we do not condone the boy's act, the question now is, did the court do right? Should he have sent the boy to the Huntingdon reformatory, to associate with all classes of criminals and become hardened to vice and crime, or turn him out and give him a chance to make good and show that he is not at heart or in desire a criminal? Only the boy's actions in the future will be a satisfactory answer to this question, and the "Watchman" hopes that the brief object lesson he has been taught will have its effect in inducing him to strive for a nobler manhood than that of the criminal class.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Gehret moved this week from the house of Gehret and Lambert, on south Allegheny street, into their own house on east Bishop street, which has been occupied by Charles Brachbill and family; the latter moving into the house vacated by the Gehrets.
