A reorganization meeting of Bellefonte Gas and Steam company will be held on Saturday, October 21st.
Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Irwin will store their furniture, intending to live at the Bush house during the winter.
M. I. Gardner filed nomination papers at Harrisburg last Saturday as a candidate for the Legislature on the Local Option ticket.
Misses Mildred and Helen Wetzel entertained a party of young friends at their home on west High street, on Tuesday evening.
The Woman's aid society of the Presbyterian church will hold their annual Christmas sale in the chapel during the first week of December.
A new golf course was laid out at the Nittany Country club on Tuesday, so that when built it will consist of nine holes instead of six, as it is at present.
Col. J. Miles Kephart, who returned last week from Canada, has gone to Howard and taken a residence at the hotel there, where he expects to stay during the winter.
Messrs. Robert Walker and Don Wallace will show the world's series baseball games on their electric board, in Garman's opera house each afternoon, beginning tomorrow.
Dr. P. H. Shelley, of Pleasant Gap, was recently appointed a surgeon in the United States army and last week he made sale of his household effects and left for Port Royal for a visit with friends before reporting for duty.
While walking through the yard at her home in Boalsburg, last Thursday, Mrs. David Bohn accidentally stepped in a hole and falling, broke her right leg below the knee. She was brought to the Bellefonte hospital for treatment.
Cecil Walker returned from Lewistown on Wednesday and has accepted a position in the Bellefonte office of the Chemical Lime company. Swengle Smith was just recently appointed a clerk in the Chemical company's office at the plant up Buffalo Run.
The big Union county fair at Brookside park, near Lewisburg, next week will close the fair season in central Pennsylvania this year. A special return train will be run to Bellefonte next Thursday evening to accommodate Centre countians who desire to attend.
Several well known Bellefonte motorists received a notice this week to appear before Squire L. C. Bullock, at State College, and pay a fine and costs for speeding on the state road between Pleasant Gap and State College. The information was made before Squire Bullock by members of the state constabulary located at Pleasant Gap.
Announcements were received in Bellefonte last week, of the marriage of Miss Mary Josephine Sloan, of McConnellsburg, and W. Harry Reiser, of Hagerstown, Md. Mr and Mrs. Reiser will live at Grey Gates, Hagerstown. Miss Sloan will be remembered by many in Bellefonte, having visited here, as a guest of Mrs. John A. Woodcock.
On the second page of this issue of the "Watchman" will be found May Barrett Pantan's poem, "Ponca, the Pride of the Prairie." Mrs. Pantan, who now lives in Ponca City, Oklahoma, will be remembered by many of our readers as Miss May Barrett, she having lived all her early life in Bellefonte. The poem is taken from "Prairie Pipings," a collection of Mrs. Pantan's writings, published a year ago and dedicated to the people of Ponca.
While helping to shred fodder on the William Mayes farm near Howard, on Monday afternoon, A. A. Garrett, of Jacksonville, got too close to the fly wheel of the gasoline engine with the result that his clothing caught and in the twinkling of an eye he was hurled around the shaft until practically all the clothing was torn from his body except his shoes and stockings. Fortunately no bones were broken but Mr. Garrett was a mass of bruises on his body and limbs, his face was lacerated and the ligaments of his right shoulder torn. But at that, he was extremely fortunate in escaping with his life.

The Four Days Hike A Magnificent Pageant.

The Pennsylvania Troops Showed Up Splendidly On Their Big Demonstration in Texas and New Mexico.

By Corp. Harry J. Cohen. Camp Thomas J. Stewart, El Paso, Texas, Sept. 20. The past week will be one that will never be forgotten by the men direct- as scheduled, and that, as usual, we all due to the fact that the four days' hike of the entire division took place as scheduled, and that, as usual, we played the important role. Sunday was preparedness day all through Camp Stewart, as each and every unit was on edge for the happenings of the morrow, and there were quite a number of details to look after, as there always is in an undertaking of such character. It must be taken into consideration that this has been the first time since the Civil war that an entire division was moved at one time. It was exactly 4.30 a. m. Monday morning when the first call of the bugle sounded from the cavalry headquarters and about eleven hundred cavalymen immediately jumped from their slumbers to answer the roll call at reveille, which was taken while the night was still upon us and the stars glittered and scintillated as they do only under a southern sky. It was almost impossible to discern one man from another, but as each man answered "Here" to his name, it wasn't necessary to see his face. After breakfast and the packing of a lunch of sandwiches in our saddle bags, we made up our blanket and slicker rolls and saddled up, and it was exactly seven bells when we marched from our troop street. The cavalry leading the division we marched to El Paso, then turned our course and with the Rio Grande river on the one side and the Santa Fe railroad on the other, started in the northwesterly direction. At the word of command the cavalry broke into a trot, then a gallop, and we soon reached the big smelter plant located not far from El Paso. This is the second largest copper smelter in the United States, consequently it was some sight to witness. But the town at this point is what struck the attention of every man, owing to the fact that one can see a real Mexican village, just as it is pictured in the geography, without going into Mexico to see it. Truly a more quaint view than this place affords, one would travel a long time to see. Its adobe dwellings, with the public square in the center, a few peddlers with their wares suspended from a rod across their shoulders, and here and there a goat and a burro, are the principal features of the town. We did not linger here but went along at a lively clip to the place where we went into camp about three miles above the smelter. After pitching our "doggies" and putting out our picket line, we unsaddled and rode our horses bareback through wilds and fastnesses that one might compare to the Everglades of Florida, a distance of about a mile to the river to find a good watering place for our horses; and after feeding them on our return we were all hungry enough to eat even corned beef, but our water wagon on which was the wagon train, had upset on the march and it was quite dark when supper was served. It was a great day, marred only by the scarcity of water for the men. Tuesday, the second day, was without a doubt the big day of the hike. We were acting as flankers to the infantry and about six miles south of them. Our trip was by way of the borderland line in New Mexico, over concrete roads, and for miles on each side of us were large lakes until we reached the village of Canutillo where our course changed to a southern direction, which brought us into a country that was all one could wish for, in the beautiful Las Cruces valley. Here are the famous irrigation ditches, supplied from the wonderful Elephant Butte dam, where sugarcane and watermelons abound in plenty, as well as the usual crops of wheat and corn. We rested from noon until three p. m., on an alfalfa field that had started the growth of its third crop, while our horses were ridden into and through the irrigation ditches for the purpose of refreshment. We waited until the artillery and ambulance wagons were brought up on our front, then proceeded on our way to the town of Anthony, New Mexico, where we were to camp for the night. It was after eight o'clock when we neared the site and so dark a man couldn't see the horse in front of him. A more exciting evening we never experienced, with the yelling and swearing as the two-span mule wagons endeavored to get the right-of-way, which we felt was rightfully ours. Soon we were in a field covered with sagebrush which we set on fire and immediately prepared to spread our shelter halves for sleeping quarters and to stake off a picketing place for our horses. Not a tent was put up that night and all slept on the ground, after a supper of the usual army grub served after eleven o'clock. The next morning, Wednesday, our third lap was begun by wending our way toward the mountains, through the St. Augustine pass. If ever the army showed up perfection it was that day. One could look as for as the eye would carry, in front and see the cavalry winding its way over range after range of mountains, while looking down toward the valley the artillery and supply trains could just about be distinguished, and after we cleared the pass the scene at the watering hole in the desert, where the entire regiment watered their horses at one time, was something that no man can ever forget. Our course was now due south and at six p. m. we camped at Hitts ranch in Texas. We got in there in time to take our first little wash for our hands and faces from a wind-mill pond located at the ranch, and never did water feel so good. The balance of the evening was spent in watching Harry Whitman (who is also a mule skinner) and his associates prepare that famous rice and fried ham combination, and seconds weren't turned down by any one. The night was very cold and morning didn't come any too soon for us. Next day we finished the remaining nineteen miles back to Camp Stewart in record time, and a dirtier and happier lot of men was never seen. We were greeted by Lieut. Thompson and members of the machine gun troop who arrived earlier that day and were assigned to our regiment. The water being off when we arrived it was supper time before we were washed and bathed and looking our real selves once again. The hike simply was wonderful. Not a man minded the strain of the nearly one hundred mile trip we had taken, although it had just gotten dark when all turned in for the night. Drill was postponed all day yesterday and today every man is ready to swing in once more. Steward Hampton, Luther Crissman and Will Musser were left behind to take full charge of the camp, and they did the job to perfection. Not a thing was disturbed during the four day's absence. We had quite a sand storm here last evening and "Mona" Garman remarked: "Is it any wonder Texas is so large? Why the blamed State never stays in the same place." Regards from all the troop and also Terry Boal's scouts, who want to be remembered to the folks in Centre and have them know that they all arrived in the pink of condition. (On the 6th page of today's paper will be found Corp. Cohen's delayed letter of last week.—Editor.) The Fauble Store will be closed tomorrow—Saturday, Oct. 7, until 6 p. m. Jewish holiday. 39-1t Now that the Buffalo Run bridge is about completed and the embargo lifted on heavy traffic on the lime kiln road "Waxy" Straub is again wearing that genial smile of his and seeing visions of the steam thrasher hulling out his golden grain. Fortunately an accommodating neighbor loaned him a sufficient quantity of seed wheat, else his seeding this fall would have been somewhat late. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dunkle announce the engagement of their daughter, Huberta May Alexander, to Edward Carlisle Bernhardt, of Philadelphia. The wedding will take place in the early part of December. Miss Alexander is a grand-daughter of Rev. James P. Hughes, and was a student at the Bellefonte Academy, where she finished her course two years ago. Since then she has been a resident in Philadelphia with her parents. The children of Bellefonte are happy again because the quarantining regulations have been lifted and they are again allowed to attend the Scenic. During the past two months grown people have had a monopoly on the good pictures shown at this popular place of amusement, but from now on the boys and girls can attend and enjoy themselves. And it always is real enjoyment to see one of the big programs shown at the Scenic every evening of the week. Pictures that cannot be seen anywhere else in Bellefonte. Mrs. E. H. B. Callaway and her two daughters, Mrs. Harry L. Garber, of Shamokin, and Mrs. George R. Thompson, of Alto, were hostesses last night at the October D. A. R. meeting, held at the home of Mrs. D. G. Bush, on Spring street. It being the first meeting of the year, little time was devoted to the business Mrs. Callaway's guest, Mrs. Gunn, occupying much of the evening with her very interesting talk on "The Schools of Honolulu." The Sons of the Revolution were included in the guests at last night's meeting. They are all good enough, but the WATCHMAN is always the best.

NEWS PURELY PERSONAL. John Krebs, who now holds a good position at the Warrior ridge power plant, was a Bellefonte visitor on Sunday. Mrs. C. J. McHugh, of Aspinwall, is a guest of her sister, Miss Emma Montgomery. Mrs. McHugh came to Bellefonte Tuesday. J. Linn Harris returned home on Tuesday from Mr. Clemons, Mich., where he spent a month undergoing treatment for rheumatism. Mr. Aaron Katz went down to Philadelphia on Monday to attend the funeral of the late Max Liveright, who was buried on Tuesday. Herbert W. Sheffer, of Milroy, was in Bellefonte over Sunday visiting his mother, Mrs. Samuel Sheffer, and his brother, Paul D. Sheffer and family. Misses Ruth Garman and Esther Undercoffer have been down at Bloomsburg this week conducting an anti-suffrage campaign at the Bloomsburg fair. Mrs. Charles Shaffer and her daughter, Miss Anne Shaffer, who have been here for the past month with relatives, will return to their home in Philadelphia today. Blaine Mabius went out to Pittsburgh on Sunday on the hunt of men for the Whiteoak quarries, but found few idle workmen. He returned home on Tuesday afternoon. N. B. Spangler, W. D. Zerby, W. Groh Runkle and S. D. Gettig were a quartette of Bellefonte attorneys who attended the sittings of the Superior court in Philadelphia this week. Mrs. John Harrison and her sister, Miss Tamazine Barnes, went to Wilkes-Barre a week ago, expecting to spend the winter with Mrs. Harrison's daughter, Mrs. Carl Beck. George Smith, of Sunbury, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. P. P. Smith, who with her sister, Mrs. Keefe, has been a guest of her uncle, S. A. McQuiston, for several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Lyon, their son Geoffrey and two friends motored from Rochester, N. Y., the latter part of the week and spent Sunday with Mr. Lyon's parents in this place. George Pappas, an experienced candy maker of Philadelphia, and a cousin of the Gregory brothers, is now in Bellefonte assisting the latter in manufacturing their famous candies for Candyland. Mrs. Cyrus Strickland, who has been with her daughter, Mrs. Lester Sheffer, during the summer, will return to Bellefonte next week to spend the winter with her other daughter, Mrs. M. I. Gardner. Mrs. Harry L. Garber came here with her grandmother and mother, Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Callaway, and for the first meeting of the D. A. R., at which Mrs. Callaway and her daughter will be hostesses. Mrs. M. W. Reed and her two children came to Bellefonte Monday, from Wilkes-Barre, and will be at the Bush house until going to their apartments. Dr. and Mrs. Reed will occupy part of the Hayes house, on north Allegheny street, during the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor are entertaining Mrs. Taylor's sister and her daughter, Mrs. S. E. Bowser and Miss Mary Bowser, of Butler. Mrs. Bowser and her daughter stopped here on their way home from a visit with friends in Washington, D. C. Mr. and Mrs. I. Peace Hazard, of Syracuse, spent Sunday with relatives and friends of Mrs. Hazard, in Bellefonte, coming here Friday and leaving Tuesday. Mrs. Hazard, who was Miss Katherine Burnett, had not visited here since her marriage, six years ago. Miss Mary L. Snyder returned to Bellefonte Sunday evening, from Baltimore, where she had been ill for several weeks, the result of a fall down stairs, while visiting at Milford, Del. Miss Snyder's most serious injury was to her left arm, which was broken in two places. Robert A. Miller, yard master for the P. R. E. Ryne, spent Saturday in Bellefonte and with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, at Axe Mann. Mr. Miller's object for coming at this time was to be with the family for a picture, which was taken during the day. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Jacobs and daughter, of Philadelphia, were over Sunday guests at the Bush house. Mr. Jacobs is now treasurer of the Titan Metal company, but is also well remembered by many people in Bellefonte from the time he conducted a bakery on Bishop street, where the Edward Harper grocery is now located. Mrs. Chas. H. Schreyer, of Altoona, was in Bellefonte Tuesday, stopping for a short visit with her aunt, Mrs. S. A. Bell, on her way to State College to see her brother, Frank Crosthwaite. Mr. Crosthwaite has been seriously ill for the past two weeks, following a drive to Altoona. Mrs. Schreyer will be in Centre county for an indefinite time. Rev. Malcolm DePrue Maynard, the newly selected rector for St. John's Episcopal church, arrived in Bellefonte on Tuesday from Hollidaysburg, where he has been located the past several years. That his Hollidaysburg parishioners were loath to part with him is one of the best recommendations he can present to the people of Bellefonte. Lee H. Walker arrived in Bellefonte on Friday evening to spend a week or two at the home of his parents, ex-sheriff and Mrs. W. Miles Walker. He is still located on the island of Santo Domingo in charge of construction work for a New York contracting firm. He left there on September 15th but spent a few days in New York before coming on to Bellefonte. Mrs. Gunn, of Honolulu, and Mrs. George P. Steele, of Pittsburgh, have been guests of Mrs. Callaway, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Bush, since Tuesday. Mrs. Gunn has been visiting in the States for the greater part of the year, coming here from New Jersey, while Mrs. Steele, who has been in Bellefonte for a week, was a guest of Mrs. George L. Potter before going to Mrs. Bush. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Betz, Mr. Betz's sister, Miss Laura Betz, and Mr. and Mrs. James Welker drove here from Canton, Ohio, last week, visiting during their stay with Mr. and Mrs. William Cassidy. Upon leaving Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Cassidy returned to Ohio with them, Mr. Cassidy expecting to visit for a week in Canton, while Mrs. Cassidy will remain for an indefinite time. Mrs. Betz, Mrs. Welker and Mr. Cassidy are children of Mr. Robert Cassidy, of Canton.

Dr. and Mrs. John P. Sebring are entertaining Mrs. Sebring's mother, Mrs. C. H. Woltjen, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Asher Adams, of Sunbury, was in Bellefonte Wednesday for a short visit with her mother, Mrs. Shroffler. Miss Mary H. Linn left yesterday for Harrisburg, where she will visit for a week as a guest of Mrs. Wright. Miss Rebekah Noll, daughter of Col. Emanuel Noll, is spending this week among friends at Warriorsmark. Jack Lyon, of Pittsburgh, has been spending this week in Bellefonte with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lyon. Mrs. Roberta Smith, of the Toggery Shop, spent several days in Centre Hall this week in the interest of her toggery business. Mrs. Hess has been visiting with his mother, Mrs. Michael Hess, this week, leaving Wednesday to return to his home in Altoona. Miss Bessie Bloom, of State College, has gone to Illinois, where she will spend the greater part of the winter, visiting with friends at Pearl City. Messrs. William Kerin and Edward Gleason, of Snow Shoe, motored to Bellefonte on Tuesday on a business trip, returning home the same day. Graham Hunter, with the Curtis Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, spent the week-end in Bellefonte with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Hunter. Mrs. Morris Hazel, of Altoona, and her small son, were guests the forepart of the week of Mrs. Hazel's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Chambers. Lillian Sheffer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheffer, of Milroy, will spend the winter in Bellefonte with her grandmother Mrs. Samuel Sheffer. Mr. and Mrs. George M. Armor, of Hartford, Conn., are here for a visit with Mr. Armor's father, Mr. Monroe Armor, and other relatives in Bellefonte. The Misses Anna and Eleanor Taylor have returned to Geneva College, in Baltimore, where Miss Anna will enter her Junior, and Miss Eleanor her Sophomore year. Mrs. J. M. Curtin and her two children, who have been in Bellefonte with Mrs. Curtin's mother, Mrs. George F. Harris since June, returned to Pittsburgh yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. S. Harvey Griffith, of Axe Mann, have as a guest Mrs. Griffith's grand-daughter, Miss Marie Dawson, of Philadelphia. Miss Dawson came to Bellefonte Monday. E. H. Miller, with the Rapid Transit Co., of Philadelphia, was in Bellefonte the latter part of last week, having been summoned here by the death of his mother, Mrs. Isaac Miller. Mrs. Birehead Rouse, of Baltimore, is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Bullock. Mrs. Rouse, who was Miss Margaret Bullock, will spend two weeks in Bellefonte. Miss Inez Sellers and Miss Annie Gray, of Buffalo Run; Mrs. George Benner, of Centre Hall, and Mrs. George Butz, of State College, were among those who were in Bellefonte shopping, Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Spigelmyer spent the afterpart of last week at Sunbury and Millburg, having gone down with their grand-daughter, Katherine Kase, who has been with them in Bellefonte for the summer. Miss Winifred M. Gates and brother, Charles E. Gates, will leave this morning on a trip through New York State and Massachusetts to Boston, where they will spend several days, expecting to be away about a week. Miss Claire Reynolds left Bellefonte Wednesday morning to spend her two weeks vacation in Philadelphia and Wilkes-Barre with her aunts, Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Harrison. Miss Reynolds and Mrs. Harrison have arranged, also, to spend a short time with friends at Scranton, during her visit. Mrs. Edward Selfridge and her daughter Evelyn, who have been guests for the past week of Mrs. Selfridge's sister, Mrs. Mrs. John Blanchard, returned to New York Wednesday, expecting to leave at once for their home in San Francisco. Mrs. Selfridge and her daughter have been east all summer. Mrs. M. B. Garman is contemplating going with her brother, Charles Lukenbach, to Detroit for a month, and upon her return to Pennsylvania, will join her mother, Mrs. A. Lukenbach, in Tyrone, where they both will spend the winter with Mrs. Harry E. Jenkins. Mrs. Garman is arranging to rent her house furnished. Miss Rebecca Rhoads, representing the county organization of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. R. S. Brouse and Mrs. W. F. Carson, Bellefonte's organization, and the delegate from State College, left here yesterday in one of Beezer's cars, for Wilkes-Barre, where they will attend the State convention. The party will return to Bellefonte Tuesday. Miss DeSales Walsh, who has completed her work at the Mercy hospital in Pittsburgh, is spending a short time in Bellefonte with her mother, Mrs. John Walsh, before taking her state board examination. Mrs. Walsh and her daughters are contemplating leaving Bellefonte this fall, expecting to make their home in New York city. The relatives from a distance who were at State College Saturday for the funeral of Mrs. Emanuel Musser included, Mrs. Lydia Bowman, of Harrisburg; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Handlog, of Elizabeth, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Boyd A. Musser, of Scranton; Arthur Musser's son, of Pittsburgh; Thomas Lingenfelter, his daughter and Blair Rilling, of Altoona. Sixteen women from Bellefonte and as many from State College attended the county conference of woman's clubs held at Howard Saturday. Miss Glenn, of Pittsburgh, spoke on the Mother's Persians, Miss Overton on Home Sanitation, and Col. J. L. Spangler on the Soldiers relief and the successful work of woman's clubs Mrs. Newcomb representing the extension work of the Domestic Science department, of State College, gave an illustrated talk on the possibilities of this work through these clubs. In addition to Bellefonte and State College, Blanchard, Boalsburg and Unionville were all represented.

Big Real Estate Deal. J. Thomas Mitchell on Saturday sold to John P. Kelley, of Snow Shoe, the property on the corner of Bishop and Allegheny streets known as the Brown corner. The property is just sixty feet in width and extends back to Logan street. The price paid was $9,500. The Bishop street properties are occupied by the Dr. Helfrich five and ten cent store, Paul F. McGarvey's automobile supply shop and one or two other stores. Dwelling houses are located on the balance of the property. Mr. Kelley purchased the property with the intention of erecting a three story fire-proof garage to cover the entire space. As planned now the Bishop street floor will be mostly glass front. The second story will have the main entrance from south Allegheny street and the third story will have a main entrance on Logan street. When erected and completed Willis E. Wion will have direct charge of the garage and also continue as agent for one or two leading makes of cars. Inasmuch as all the properties are now occupied it is not known just when building operations can be commenced. Chicken Thieves Raided Thomas Street Hen House. On Tuesday night, or in fact between three and four o'clock on Wednesday morning, some person robbed the hen house of A. L. McGinley, on Thomas street, and got away with eight Rhode Island red pullets. It was after three o'clock in the morning when the robbery was disturbed by the cackling and clattering of their chickens. Mrs. McGinley was the first out and armed with a baseball bat she sallied forth to the hen house, but failed to see anyone, while the chickens were all there. She returned to the house and her bed, but before she got asleep there was another disturbance. Armed as before she made another pilgrimage to the hen house, but the chickens were still there and nobody in sight. Shortly before four o'clock there was more trouble among the chickens and this time Mr. McGinley sallied forth with his revolver. No person was in sight but a count showed eight pullets missing and a dog in the hen house. Mr. McGinley killed the dog by shooting him five times and the next morning the dog was identified as belonging to a family on Halfmoon hill. The Fauble Store will be closed tomorrow—Saturday, Oct. 7, until 6 p. m. Jewish holiday. 39-1t Some Fall Movings. L. H. Gettig and his family moved this week from the Thomas property on north Thomas street, to their new house on Bishop street. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weaver, who have been living with Mrs. Tanner since coming to Bellefonte in the spring, have rented one of the Cook houses on Linn street, expecting to occupy it as soon as possible. Mrs. Hull and her daughters, who are leaving Bishop street, will go into the Thall house on Thomas street, recently vacated by Mr and Mrs. Fuller. The Bellefonte public schools opened on Monday, after a delay of one month on account of the quarantine for infantile paralysis, with a good attendance. Up to yesterday morning the enrollment totalled 790, which was about equal to last year, while 215 pupils registered in the High school against 204 last year. Persons cleaning house and wanting to get rid of their rummage sale contribution, will please send it to the room, in the Bush Arcade, used for this purpose for several years. The key can be gotten from Mr. Finklestein. The Fauble Store will be closed tomorrow—Saturday, Oct. 7, until 6 p. m. Jewish holiday. 39-1t Baggage hauling a specialty. Give us a call. Geiss' Livery.
