Centre County Teachers' Institute. Bellefonte has been crowded this week with the three hundred and more public school teachers of the county who are here in attendance at the seventieth annual session of the teachers' institute, which convened on Monday. Monday forenoon was entirely taken up with the enrollment of teachers, W. E. Keen and S. S. Williams officiating as enrolling clerks.

The first session of the institute was held on Monday afternoon, beginning at two o'clock. County superintendent David O. Etters presided and Jacob C. Fox officiated as secretary. The doorkeepers are W. E. Brauhart and A. L. Duck, and the ushers S. A. Bierly, W. S. Holter, R. A. Lannen and E. M. Miller. Following prayer by Rev. W. M. B. Glanding Prof. J. W. Yoder, of Philadelphia, took charge of the musical part of the program. Superintendent Etters made a brief talk to the teachers in which he expressed himself as greatly pleased with the large turnout and urged everyone to be punctual and regular in their attendance at every session of the institute. He then introduced Dr. C. T. Corson, of Ohio, formerly superintendent of public instruction of that State. Dr. Corson, by the way, has been in attendance all week and his various talks on all phases of school work have been exceedingly instructive to the teachers. He is a logical and forceful speaker and has the happy faculty of expressing himself in such an interesting manner that, notwithstanding the fact that he gave two talks daily the teachers listened to him with close attention. Tom Henderson, the humorist and philosopher, was the lecturer on Monday evening.

The speakers on Tuesday in addition to Dr. Corson were Prof. James G. Pentz and Dr. F. E. Baker. The concert by the Hampshire Quartette on Tuesday evening was a musical treat. Prof. Charles Lose, of the Lock Haven Normal school, was one of the speakers on Wednesday and yesterday. Wednesday evening's lecture by Judge George B. Alden was exceedingly bright and interesting and those outside of the regular members of institute who heard it were enthusiastic in their praise of the lecturer. Yesterday evening's entertainment was a concert by the Ionian Serenaders. The institute will close with this morning's session.

The School Directors' association was in session Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday at the High school building, and was very well attended. A number of interesting papers were read and the following officers elected: President, M. S. McDowell, of State College; first vice president, James E. Harter, of Coburn; second vice president, Mrs. R. S. Brouse; secretary, Charles F. Cook; treasurer, A. C. Mingle, the latter three being from Bellefonte.

Horatio S. Moore Buys New Factory Site

Horatio S. Moore, whose structural iron plant has been located in the old chain works buildings on the road to Milesburg, has just closed a deal for the purchase of a triangular piece of ground off of the old Hayes property located in the angle of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania below the Red Roost, and will erect thereon a larger and more modern plant. The new location will put him in close contact with the railroad, and he will thus be able to avoid so much drayage expense.

Tobias Defeated for Congress.

Though he carried Clearfield county by a majority of 1030 votes William E. Tobias was defeated for Congress by Charles H. Rowland by just 169 votes. Rowland had 217 majority in Centre county, 262 in Cameron and 720 in McKean, a total of 1199, making him 169 votes ahead of Tobias.

Only two more weeks until Thanksgiving and not a turkey in sight. This does not mean that there are no turkeys in Centre county, because there are. But they are probably not as plentiful as in former years and the price already talked of puts them in the prohibitory class, save for those who are not eking out an existence by their daily toil. Thanksgiving and turkey have long been synonymous, but from present indications they will be utter strangers in many households this fall.

Paul Barchick, an Austrian miner of Clarence, was badly crushed between two mine cars while at work in the Stub Hill mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal company in Snow Shoe township, on Tuesday evening. He was brought to the Bellefonte hospital on Wednesday morning and his condition is considered quite serious.

WILSON IS PRESIDENT.

All Doubt as to His Triumphant Re-election Removed. Many Interesting Side-Lights on the Result Briefly Told.

Woodrow Wilson has been triumphantly elected to succeed himself on March 4th next. He has 276 votes in the electoral college while Mr. Hughes received only 255. The table the "Watchman" published last week has been verified by later returns and it was not necessary to take a single State out of the column of States this paper credited to Wilson. We have only to add New Mexico with 3 votes and New Hampshire with 4 to our list of 269 given Wilson last week.

Both of these States were hanging in the balance when the "Watchman" went to press, but they balanced over to the right side and are ours. California has removed the last trace of doubt by sending news that Wilson is gaining as the official count proceeds and there is no possible chance of a change now.

Side-Lights on the Result.

NO SPLIT VOTE, DEMOCRATS SAY FOR CALIFORNIA.

Count Indicates Lowest Elector Will be 600 Ahead of Highest Republican.

San Francisco, Nov. 15.—Prediction that the lowest Democratic elector in California will run ahead of the highest Republican elector was made tonight by Democratic leaders after watching the slowly augmenting returns from County Clerks.

"The difference will be about six hundred in favor of the Democrats," said Sidney M. Vanwick, Jr., chairman of the Democratic Campaign committee.

Available returns were considered in themselves not an index of the situation, proportionately, because they were from smaller counties, most of which had given Wilson good majorities. They showed the lowest Republican, but nearly all the big counties still were missing.

With 212 precincts out of the 410 officially counted in Alameda county, Wilson has made a net gain of eighteen votes over Hughes.

One precinct in Los Angeles was thrown out today by the Board of Supervisors in their checking process to the officials' canvass because its tally sheet showed three more votes than were recorded in the registration book. This precinct was credited with 125 votes for Hughes and 139 for Wilson, the remainder being scattered.

Errors such as this and the striking out of fourteen tallies for the Prohibition electors on a tally sheet caused seventeen election officials to be summoned to explain their work. Chester H. Rowell, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee issued a statement today charging that the Republicans who undertook to look after Charles E. Hughes during his trip through California, not only made a bad job of it, but suppressed and disobeyed instructions from the ast. The statement blames them for the loss of the State from the Republican column.

Some of the Mysteries of the Election.

Certain States will cast their electoral vote for Mr. Wilson, yet at the same time these very States elected to send to Washington men whom the voters know will oppose Mr. Wilson at every turn of the Congressional road. Both in the election of Senators and members of the House, the voters chose Republicans to represent them and at the same time voted to continue the Democratic Administration in power.

By a margin so small that it will waver back and forth until the recount is had, New Hampshire voted for Wilson. At the same time it elected as its two members of the House, Republicans, by a margin of about four thousand. North Dakota declares for Wilson, yet by a large plurality returns Senator McCumber and elects a solid Republican delegation to the House. Idaho goes for Wilson by a wide margin, yet elects its two Republican members of Congress.

Kansas was one of the great surprises of the election. It gave to the Democratic nominee an overwhelming plurality; at the same time, however, it elected a Republican Governor by a margin of one hundred thousand votes and chose five Republicans out of its eight members for Congress. The State of Washington chooses its Republican Senator and elects six Congressional seats. At the same time, the Wilson electors win by fifteen thousand. Maryland elects a Republican United States Senator, and defeats a Democrat who has been chairman of the Committee on Labor in the House and one of the most active allies of the White House—yet it goes for Wilson by a large majority.

In California, the Republican nominee for Senator had a walk-over and an apparent margin of votes of some three hundred thousand, the Republican representation to Congress in the State is increased, but the Hughes electoral ticket is today three thousand and behind. Montana goes heavily Democratic, but elects one Republican member of Congress out of the two members accredited to that State. Ohio is Democratic on the Presidential vote by nearly one hundred thousand, yet eleven of its twenty-two members of Congress will be Republicans and in opposition to the Administration and its policies. Delaware votes for Hughes, and at the same time elects a Democratic Senator and a Democratic member of Congress. Such are some of the individual results of the election. To analyze and explain them in a satisfactory fashion will test mental inenuity for some time to come.

24 States Dry; Nation May Act.

Temperance took five more States in Tuesday's election and half the nation is dry.

Prohibition swept Michigan, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Montana, and Utah elected a Governor and a Legislature absolutely pledged to the principle that liquor has no place in a modern community.

The election brings the number of completely dry States up to twenty-four, and upon the returns the anti-saloon leaders of the country base predictions that the Webb-Smith-Gallinger-Sheppard resolution for a prohibition amendment to the National Constitution will be passed by Congress in December or January.

The result in Michigan makes Detroit the largest dry city on the continent up to date. The fight in Michigan was one of the most brilliantly conducted campaigns on the part of the foes of liquor, that was ever waged in America, according to anti-saloon leaders.

Some of the richest men in the State aligned themselves on the side of prohibition and gave freely of their wealth to finance the fight. One of them, if not the most prominent, was Sebastian S. Kresge, five and ten cent store proprietor, who, when the campaign begun, gave $10,000 to start it. His lead was followed by a number of others, and a $100,000 fund was put up in one day. The brewers heard of Kresge's gift and sent word that they would boycott his stores. He wrote back that he had received their letter, and that he had concluded with the statement that their attitude had led him to pour another $10,000 into the fight. Next day the treasurer of the prohibition forces received the check.

Prohibition has been an issue in Michigan for many years, but it was only once before put up to the people. That was in 1887, when it was rejected.

In Pennsylvania the anti-saloon element is claiming credit for the defeat of Congressman A. J. Barchfield, of Pittsburgh, and of Congressman Warren Worth Bailey, of Johnstown. Barchfield is a Republican, while Bailey is a Democrat. The Anti-Saloon League fights without regard to party.

Probably the biggest factor in the prohibition hope that Congress will pass the amendment resolution is the fact that the same resolution in 1914, then known as the Hobson resolution, received 179 votes, eight more than were cast against it. But it required a two-thirds vote.

While twenty-four States are either dry at present or will be within the next year, some of the States allowing the saloons a year to close, prohibitionists claim that most of the territory in the other States has abolishing drink through the instrument of local option. It is declared that four-fifths of the liquor traffic is now centered in the big cities of the country.

The "dry" States, including those which voted for prohibition on Tuesday, are as follows:

Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Kansas, Idaho, Iowa, Mississippi, North Carolina, Maine, Michigan, Montana, North Dakota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia, Utah, Washington and West Virginia.

Woman Suffrage Lost in Two States.

Woman suffrage lost in two States where it was balloted for on Tuesday. Late returns show that it is beaten in West Virginia and South Dakota. Revised returns may show a different story in the West, because prohibition, the handmaiden of woman suffrage, was carried in South Dakota.

The first Democrat to be sent to the State House of Representatives from Dauphin county, Pa., in thirty-five years appears in the person of Ramsey S. Black. His grandfather, A. K. Black, was a member of the same House.

What 20,000 Votes Would Have Done.

Returns from all over the country show that the judicious distribution of 20,000 votes in the States of New Hampshire, New Mexico, Minnesota, California, West Virginia and North Dakota would have caused a different result. The total vote for President should reach close to 18,000,000, it being more than 15,000,000 four years ago. Since that time several States have swung into line with women voters and the vote altogether is greater than ever before. This was due to the intense interest in affairs. So 20,000 votes in blocks of 3000 votes or less would have changed the verdict of a large section of the 18,000,000 voters.

Local Option Has Good Chance in State.

The rapid spread of prohibition in the United States, it is said, will result in the passage of a local option bill by the next Legislature.

At the State Democratic headquarters it is the belief that the liquor interests will next winter support Governor Brumbaugh in his effort to have a local option bill passed. So far there is nothing to indicate that a majority of the members elected to the next State Senate and the House favor local option, but it is believed the liquor strength is as strong as during past sessions and that the local option bill can get a majority by the use of a little force. The liquor interests are entirely selfish in their unusual interest in a local option measure. With many of the central counties of the State now dry the liquor men now fear that a proposition to pass a prohibition amendment would find enough favor to place this State among those now already "white."

On the other hand the liquor men have figured that with a local option law in force they could probably gain back some of the dry counties and certainly would not be in danger of losing Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Scranton, Erie, Wilkes-Barre, Harrisburg and other centers of population.

Biggest Vote Ever Cast.

Wilson's vote last Tuesday was 2,060,708 more than ever previously recorded for a Democrat candidate, and is the largest vote ever received by a President from the people of this country—952,955 more than the total Taft-Roosevelt vote of 1912. A popular plurality of 403,312.

"More complete returns show that the President has received the largest vote ever cast for a candidate for the Presidency. He received nearly a million more votes than were cast for both Taft and Roosevelt in 1912.

McCormick Goes to New York to Make up Deficit.

Harrisburg, Nov. 15 (Special).—Vance C. McCormick, Democratic national chairman, went to New York today, where he will be in charge of the funds to meet the campaign deficit.

Buckius Rolled the Peanut.

A large crowd thronged High street last Saturday afternoon to see C. H. Buckius, of the State Highway Department, pay the election bet he made with Harry F. McManaway by rolling a peanut with a twenty foot pike pole from the Diamond to the railroad track.

It was just exactly one o'clock when Mr. Buckius started the peanut in the middle of the Diamond. He had divested himself of his coat and went at the work deliberately. But rolling a peanut with a twenty foot pole is some work, and it wasn't long until Mr. Buckius shed both hat and vest and rolled up his sleeves. And even though thus divested of his outer clothing it was warm work and before he got through the beads of perspiration were not only standing on his forehead but trickling down his nose.

The High school band added enthusiasm by appearing on the scene and playing a number of tunes at various places along the street while the rolling was in progress.

By the time Mr. Buckius reached this office he had used up one poke of peanuts and Mr. McManaway agreed then to let him off, as he had paid the most of the bet and showed his willingness to pay it all, but Buckius called for more peanuts and paid the bet in full, rolling the peanut until it struck the railroad track, and as evidence of the fact that his rolling the peanut was no small undertaking is the time it took him to do it, which was just 46 minutes and 12 seconds. The distance was 1060 feet.

Mr. Buckius proved himself a thorough sportsman in so willingly paying his freak bet and there is little doubt but that Mr. McManaway was doubly glad Wilson was elected President, for had it been otherwise he would have had to roll the peanut up the street.

Another freak bet was paid on Friday noon when two Bellefonte Academy students trundled two other students in wheelbarrows from the Academy to the railroad and back to the school building. The trip was to have been made without a stop but at Spring street one of the trundlers slipped and upset his barrow, student and all. But they eventually arrived at the Academy. One part of the bet was that the trundlers were to wear on their backs a card bearing the words "I'm a d—n fool," and they paid the bet in full.

But all the bets made in Bellefonte were not freak bets, by any means. There were some real money bets, ranging in size from one to twenty-five dollars. All told there were probably from four to five hundred dollars wagered in Bellefonte and the winners have been wearing a face wreathed with smiles ever since the "Watchman" came out last Friday morning with the first positive news that Wilson had been re-elected President.

One of the gentlemen who was a heavy better on Hughes left Bellefonte early Wednesday morning after the election to go to his work in an adjoining county. Part of the trip was made by rail and the balance by automobile. In telling the story on himself he said that he never had a thought that Hughes was not elected until he started along the road in his car, then he began to meet one mule team after another. In fact he met so many mules that the thing sort of got on his nerves. Finally he stilled his motor going up hill and while he was cranking his car an old mule in a nearby field stuck its head over the fence and went "hee-haw, hee-haw," and then he knew that something was wrong, but it was not until he reached the next town that he saw his money go a glimmerin' because the only persons in sight were Democrats and they were all talking Wilson.
