Attention Democrats.

Paying for a dead horse has ever been an unpleasant task, but making up the $400,000 deficit in the accounts of the National Democratic campaign committee should prove a pleasant exception to the rule.

The National committee is $400,000 short. It spent $2,000,000 and up to this time has been able to raise only $1,600,000.

In the apportionment to make up the deficit Pennsylvania has been asked to raise $50,000. Of this amount it is hoped that Centre county will contribute at least $400.

It isn't a large sum that we are calling upon you to raise and our proportion can be made up speedily without any one feeling it, if all will give just a little.

The list is already started in three amounts, so that if you are disposed to help along to the finish of the big work you helped begin when the campaign opened send or bring us either $10, $5 or $1.

Any amount will be appreciated and it will be forwarded at once to the National Treasurer who will acknowledge its receipt direct to the donor.

RICHARD.—Seldom have the people of Bellefonte been so shocked with the announcement of the death of any one as they were last Saturday morning when they learned that Charley Richard had been found dead in bed at the home of his brother, Edward H. Richard. He had not been sick, or even complaining, and had been around the day previous as usual, going home about nine o'clock in the evening. Saturday morning when he failed to make his appearance as usual the maid was sent to call him. Getting no response his brother went to his room and was horrified to find him cold in the embrace of death. Every indication pointed to the fact that he had passed away in his sleep, at least his death was as calm and placid as his life had been. Apoplexy was given as the cause of his death.

Charles Frederick Richard was born in Philadelphia on July 13th, 1858, hence was 58 years, 4 months and 27 days old. His parents were Frederick Constant and Isabelle Hedley Richard. His mother was a native of Cardiff, New South Wales, and his father of Locle, Switzerland. An ancestor, by the way, was the inventor of the Swiss watch and he was led to it through a peculiar circumstance. When a boy he was a locksmith's apprentice and was peculiarly adept with tools. One day a stranger appeared in the village where he worked and inquired for a watchmaker to repair his watch. He was told that there was none in the village but was referred to young Richard as a man who might be able to make the repairs. He went to him and he soon put the watch in order. That set him thinking, and it wasn't long until he invented a watch of his own and called it the Swiss watch. The Swiss Republic voted a special medal to the young inventor in recognition of his achievement and it was the property of the deceased, who was the oldest son of an oldest son, when he died. Locle has come to be the great watch making city of Switzerland and in front of the horological college there is an heroic bronze statue of the elder Richard.

When Charles was twelve years old the family came to Bellefonte from Philadelphia and it was here that he received his education. He later went into the store of his father and learned the watch repairing trade, an occupation he followed all his life. He never married, and of late years had made his home with his brother and wife. He was a member of St. John's Episcopal church, of the Bellefonte Lodge of Masons and of the Bellefonte Club, at the time of his death being president of the latter.

Really it is hard to describe just what manner of man he was. He lived so methodically, so placidly that only by knowing him well could the full measure of his character be taken. The casual acquaintance knew a gentleman in its fullest sense, but the intimate associate knew something more. Behind the reserve of dignified gentility was a love for companionship, for music, for clean amusement, for mankind and for his church that stamped Charley Richard a real Christian man. Few thought of him that way, for he made no pretension other than to live it, but only yesterday it was remarked that "if but three people were gathered together for service in the Episcopal church he was invariably one of the three." His every act seemed to run true to his conscience as the needle to its pole.

Funeral services were held in St. John's Episcopal church at ten o'clock on Tuesday morning. The Bellefonte Club attended in a body, the following six members acting as pallbearers: John M. Shugert, Ad Fauble, Harry Keller, Philip D. Waddle, William T. Kelley and John Blanchard. Rev. Malcolm DePrue Maynard read the burial service at the grave and interment was private, except for the members of the Club who escorted their honored fellow's remains to the cemetery.

MURRAY.—Thomas Holt Murray, the pastor of the Clearfield county bar and who was well known in Centre county and throughout all of Pennsylvania, died at his home in Clearfield at three o'clock last Friday afternoon, after many weeks illness with Bright's disease.

Deceased was born in Girard township, Clearfield county, on April 5th, 1845, hence was 71 years, 8 months and 3 days old. When but seventeen years of age he entered Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport and virtually worked his way through school, one of his duties being to go through the halls with a hand-bell ringing it to awaken the students. He was out of school a year on account of poor health but finally graduated in 1857. He then read law with H. Bucher Swoope, at Clearfield, and was admitted to the bar in 1869. In his chosen profession Mr. Murray became quite prominent and was identified with some of the biggest cases in Clearfield county.

But his notoriety throughout the State was acquired mostly through his active and earnest work in the Methodist church and as an ardent temperance advocate. For over fifty years he made this a part of his life's work and during the last thirty-six years he attended every ecumenical conference of the church held in the United States. His lectures on temperance and church extension work always drew good audiences. He is survived by his wife, three children and a step-daughter.

The funeral was held at two o'clock on Monday afternoon. Rev. Henry K. Bender was in charge of the funeral services and burial was made in the Clearfield cemetery. Ex-Judge Ellis L. Orvis and W. Harrison Walker were the only members of the Centre county bar association in attendance at the funeral.

HUEY.—James Huey, a well known farmer of Buffalo Run valley, died at his home near Fillmore on Monday as the result of heart failure caused by over-exertion. He had not been in good health for some time and Monday morning went to a neighbor's to get a cow. The exertion of leading her home was too much for him and he died a half hour after reaching home.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Huey and was born at Fillmore on August 15th, 1838, hence at his death was 78 years, 3 months and 27 days old. He served during the Civil war as a member of Company A, Forty-ninth Pennsylvania volunteers. Returning home he engaged in farming, an occupation he followed all his life. In addition he also did some lumbering and at the time of his death was road supervisor in Benner township. In politics he was a Democrat and could always be depended upon to support his party ticket. He was a member of the Methodist church and always lived a consistent christian life.

Fifty years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Ellen Chronister who survives with the following children: Thomas Huey, of Halfmoon township; H. C. of Fillmore; Cyrus, of Fillmore; Mrs. T. G. Johnson, of Orviston; Mrs. Anna Marshall, of Fillmore; Mrs. Samuel Kelly, of Philipsburg, and Mrs. George DeVal, of Morgantown, W. Va. He was the last surviving member of his father's family.

WAITE.—James Edward Waite died very suddenly and unexpectedly at his home on east Lamb street at 6:15 o'clock on Tuesday morning of inflammation of the brain. The young man was employed as a driver for the Bellefonte Fuel and Supply company. He went to work last Thursday morning, notwithstanding the fact that he had a sore throat. He did not work the day out, however, but went home and went to bed. Later a well defined case of quinsy developed and on Monday evening at five o'clock a physician lanced his throat. During the night the disease went to his brain, causing inflammation and he sank in a stupor from which he never awakened.

Deceased was a son of George H. and Sarah M. Waite and was born in Spring township on July 27th, 1891, hence was 25 years, 4 months and 16 days old. His entire life was spent in this vicinity, having gone to work for the Bellefonte Fuel & Supply company when only seventeen years old. Bellefonte in Darkness Sunday Night.

Many people in Bellefonte who have done nothing but push a button in the past decade when they wanted a light were compelled to resort to candles on Sunday night or go to bed in the dark. And with that the State-Centre Electric company was hardly at fault.

Just recently they installed a new boiler to their battery of two and in order to connect it up it was necessary to make an addition to the big steel box in the rear that carries the smoke from the boilers to the big smoke stack and has ample space for sufficient draught. This box is 6x4 feet in size and over ten feet in length. It was made by the E. Keeler Co., of Williamsport, according to their own measurements and workmen from that plant came here to do the splicing job. The State-Centre people furnished them a dozen or more men to help with the work.

On account of so many churches using light at the morning service it was deemed best not to attempt the work Sunday morning, inasmuch as the Keeler people claimed that they could do the work in three or four hours. Consequently after dinner the big turbine engine was shut down and the current turned off of the entire service except Bellefonte, Milesburg and Unionville, which was kept up by the water power. But when five o'clock came and the work was not anywhere near completed it was necessary to cut the service off of Bellefonte as the water power was not sufficient to carry it. This left Bellefonte in darkness and the result was a scramble for lamps, candles and everything that could be utilized for light. As it was some of the churches were compelled to cancel their evening service. The bright full moon, however, gave plenty of light to get around on the streets.

Over in Centre Hall the Lutheran congregation had arranged a special program of services but inasmuch as they could not secure ample light for the church these services had to be abandoned.

One of the worst predicaments encountered anywhere was up at the new penitentiary. There all the prisoners, between four and five hundred were housed in one building with only two guards and when the time came for light and there was none the prisoners became somewhat clamorous. From low murmurs they grew louder and louder and the situation began to look quite serious. Finally the electrician took out the plugs connecting the State-Centre lines with the service and started the engine and big dynamo in the death house and thus was able to furnish light for all the buildings and avert trouble among the prisoners.

In the meantime the workmen at the plant worked diligently at their task but it was not until ten o'clock Sunday night that the work had so far progressed that they could fire the boilers and it was almost midnight when they had a sufficient head of steam to start the big turbine engine and dynamo and turn on the current. As it is, the Keeler people did not get the job completed but when they finish it, it will not interfere with the service.

Colobine Caught in New York. Charles Colobine, who was convicted at the February term of court on the charge of extortion and threats and who jumped his bail bond and failed to appear at the May term of court for sentence, was arrested in Franklinville, New York, on Sunday and brought here on Tuesday and landed in the Centre county jail.

Chief of police Harry Dukeman has been on the track of Colobine most of the summer, but was never able to locate him. Several weeks ago Colobine made a trip to Howard but he did not stay long and was gone before the authorities found it out. Finally last week Dukeman learned he was at Franklinville and he communicated with the officers there and the result was he was arrested on Sunday and word to that effect sent here, and Burdine Butler, his bondsman, notified of the fact.

Early Monday morning W. G. Runkle secured a bail-piece from prothonotary D. R. Foreman authorizing Burdine Butler to bring Colobine back. Shortly thereafter district attorney James C. Furst requested a bench warrant for Dukeman to go after Colobine. After some hesitation, it was issued and Dukeman left on the one o'clock train for Lock Haven. At that place, however, he met Butler, who insisted that he would go himself. Dukeman returned home and Butler made the trip, bringing Colobine back and landing him in the Centre county jail about five o'clock Tuesday evening.

On Wednesday morning Earl Schreckengast shot a nice doe by mistake while hunting in the Green valley gap. Other members of the hunting party telephoned the fact to Sheriff Yarnell and district attorney J. C. Furst and they got Harry Burns, of Zion, to bring the carcass to the Bellefonte hospital. Schreckengast is liable to a fine of $100. A small buck with invisible horns was found on the mountain near Coburn early in the week, and the carcass was also sent to the Bellefonte hospital.

Charles W. Brown was arrested on Tuesday on the charge of wife desertion and non-support and taken to Lock Haven where he was given a hearing before Alderman Anthony and in default of $500 bail was sent to the Clinton county jail. Brown married Miss Mary Jane Bechdel, of Blanchard, on September 30th and in her complaint she alleges that he has never contributed anything to her support. At present she is working in a hotel in Lock Haven.
