Harry Keen and family, of Belle-fonte, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keen.

Abram V. Miller left on Friday for Philadelphia where he will make his home with his daughter, Mrs. James

The farmers surrounding Pleasant Gap and Pennsvalley are busily engaged in hauling lime ashes from the Whiterock plant. But a trifle is charged for this product and it is said the same is a very productive fertil-

The phenomenal increase in the value of our homes at Pleasant Gap is occasioned in consequence of the steady employment at the Whiterock quarries, and the energetic work in progress at the new penitentiary. May the good work continue.

Two months ago Pleasant Gap had fifteen vacant houses. 'Less than half of that number are now unoccupied and it is expected that all will be articled for by April first. These va-cancies were occasioned in consequence of a number of families moving into the munition districts on ac- in the Glades. count of the attractive wages paid there. Should the war terminate a return of the prodigals is anticipated. We are told that over a half a century ago frequent dances were in vogue at our hotel at the Gap, and now the old landmark has been completely overhauled and remodeled the old-time custom is being revived. The result is that our home talent enjoy their weekly dance during the winter season. The management bars all questionable or undesirable citizens from patronizing. Not only our own set enjoy these festive occasions but joy riding parties from various sections of the country are taking advantage of the inducements prevailing here. The excellent refreshments Walker, John Reed and W. H. Goss interested parties. It is to be regretted that some of our own people are opposed to these innocent and pleasureable enjoyment. A few have gone so far as to declare that they will see to it that teachers of our public scools who patronize these dances will find it difficult to again secure a school in this community, and that if they propose to follow school teaching they will have to go elsewhere to prosecute their profession. Dancing, like most other festivities and merits, is, to a large extent, the subject of voluntary culture, and the preservation and development should be looked upon as a duty which we owe alike to ourselves and society regarded as innocent and harmless exercise, sleighing since a week before Christ-conducive to health and longevity, mas until Washington's birthday; and when properly conducted deserves to be encouraged. Dancing was first decried by the Puritans in the seventeenth century. They had reasonable cause to cry out against the way it was then conducted. It had become a chief feature of revelry and no doubt was very harmful. The descendants of Puritans have ever held it to be a sinful practice. Several branches of the Presbyterian church hold its practice sufficient cause for dismissal from church fellowship.

in a social dance, when properly conducted, claim the course of certain religious denominations has had the effect of making it more injurious by those to public balls, who would have otherwise done the dancing at home. These stringent rules relating to the practice has no doubt kept a good many young people out of their church-That it was not regarded as a sinful practice prior to the Puritanic revolt against the church of Rome and the churches of England, is certainly true. There is probably better grounds for objecting to our crowded ball rooms and inadequate dressing of the ladies than to the mere existence of dancing. It is true there are some styles of dances that by many are considered highly objectionable. These are principally the round dances. Dancing semes to be one of the natural habits of mankind; an outgrowth of his nature. As far back as history goes it formed either a part of his religious ceremony or those celebrating important events. Miriam and Moses led the dance of triumph when the Israelites landed dry-shod on the other side of the Red Sea. David danced before the ark because of the joy and satisfaction he felt on account of the prosperity of his people. Primitive christians danced in their religious services, but the command. They had arobe not by command. They had proba-bly been accustomed to indulge in this exercise before their deities and in the temples of their gods, before they became christians. In later years it began to be indulged in for the purpose of driving dull care away. Then it simply meant enjoy-ment. Dances, as conducted at our hotel are not objectionable, and surely don't deserve the ridicule of a sensible, generous public. When none but reputable people are tolerated how could the result be otherwise?
