Mrs. Elsie Taylor's public sale on Saturday was quite largely attended. The same netted her nearly four hundred dollars, and only three notes were given, buyers preferring to take advantage of the 3 per cent. discount, thus making the sale practically a cash sale.

The venerable Mrs. Baumgardner was 89 years old on Sunday, March 4th. Her sons, their children and grandchildren celebrated the event elaborately, something like twenty-seven participating. A most enjoyable time was the result and no one was more interested and enjoyed the gay festivities more than the good old soul, in whose honor the event was commemorated.

Just a little advice to the numerous children who run about the streets until nine or ten o'clock and later at times. This is decidedly wrong, detrimental to health and morals as well. Permit me to suggest to you a motto that's both wise and true, although it's hard to keep. Of all I know this is the best:

The day, my child, was made for rest. The night was made for sleep.

RUNVILLE.

Claire Poorman, of Hornell, N. Y., arrived in our town during the past week.

Roy Lucas, who is employed at Phillipsburg, spent Sunday under his parental roof.

On the theory that white surroundings in operating rooms shock patients and affect the vision of surgeons, a San Francisco doctor has finished a room in green and buff.

Count Zeppelin's Original Idea Perverted.

Count Zeppelin, according to an article in the London Pearson's Weekly, in designing his airship, really had in mind primarily its usefulness as a commercial carrier. He believed that the machine could be used in transporting goods across the Atlantic, and that a regular service could easily be built up.

The Count's confidence in the possibilities of his machine was not felt by German business men, who scoffed at his ambitions, but he did succeed in establishing an aerial passenger service between Potsdam and Berin. The fare for a round trip was $12 and for one way $10. During the first few weeks of the operation of the line there was a rush of passengers who took the trip for its novelty.

After that the service failed to be profitable, but was maintained by the Government at a cost of $3,500 a week for the purpose of training crews for possible military use.

The Kaiser and Kaiserin, with other notables, were the first passengers on the opening day. The machine used was originally named the Hohenzollern, but after the completion of his trip the Kaiser instructed Count Zeppelin to change the name.

As the new name, and a selected second machine was named Frederick II. Nominally the service continued to be operated commercially by a small company headed by Count Zeppelin but it was in reality under the control of the Government and used for training purposes.

Fifteen men would have sufficed for the manning of the passenger Zeppelin, but 25 or 30 were always used. As soon as one crew was trained 10 of the men were discharged or sent back to preliminary training at Friedrichshagen for further training. Officers and men served six months before their instruction was completed in the airship, and six months' preliminary training at Friedrichshagen was necessary before entering actual flying service. Count Zeppelin often complained of the hindrances placed in the way of the development of the commercial possibilities of his machine by German military men, who were interested only in the construction of machines for war use, which must be so built as to be able to fly at great heights, and consequently be made of materials too light for commercial use. The end of the war may see a great advantage in the use of the craft for commercial purposes.

A great deal has been learned in regard to the construction and operation of flyers, and this knowledge, when peace comes, will probably be directed in more useful channels.

Medical.

Dangers of a Cold

BELLEFONTE PEOPLE WILL DO WELL TO HEED THEM.

Many bad cases of kidney trouble result from a cold or chill. Congested kidneys fall behind in filtering the poison-laden blood and bacchae, headache, dizziness and disordered kidney action follow. Don't neglect a cold. Use Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of kidney trouble. Follow this Bellefonte resident's example:

Mrs. B. Holter, Pine St., Bellefonte, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for about two years. Whenever a cold or strain causes a dull, constant ache across the small of my back, I use a box of Doan's Kidney Pills long enough to be cured, but when I take them, a few doses always fix me up."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Holter had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Medicines Like Men Have Character

From their fine outward appearance, through the various elements of strength that go to make up the standing of a remedy, including the final and absolute test—does it "make good"?—does it cure?—Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptonin Pills conclusively prove every day that they are medicines of the highest character.

Hood's Sarsaparilla originated in a physician's successful prescription. Peptonin Pills, named from pepsin and iron, include nux and other tonics. For scrofula, eczema, humors, boils, pimples and other eruptions—for loss of appetite, indigestion and dyspepsia of appetite, indigestion and dyspepsia—for kidney and liver troubles—for loss of brain-fag, nerve exhaustion, anemia and poor, thin blood—Hood's Sarsaparilla and Peptonin Pills make the ideal course of medicine, the former before meals, the latter after.
