Items of Interest Dished up for the Delectation of "Watchman" Readers by a Corps of Gifted Correspondents.

To Correspondents.

Several interesting letters from "Watchman" correspondents were crowded out last week because they did not reach this office until about noon on Thursday, just with the rush of eleventh hour news. On several occasions we have asked correspondents to get their letters to this office on Tuesday, and once again we call their attention to the fact that it is imperative that correspondence reach this office that day to insure publication.

Self-Poise.

Old Davy Skinner, a fisherman on the Cape Cod coast, was noted for un-failing self-poise and economy of words. No one ever knew old Davy to become in the least excited, nor did he ever waste a word.

One summer day he was rowing along in his boat when a dory containing five or six young summer people was capsized near him. Naturally there were screams and wild confusion, in the midst of which Davy rowed over to the scene of the disaster and said placidly to the young people who were clinging to the boat, screaming for help:

"Hadn't you better get in?"—New York Times.

Russian Liberator Lived in America.

Prof. Paul N. Miloukoff (or Milyoukov) the Minister of Foreign Affairs in Russia and described as the "real brains and power behind the Russian revolution," is widely known in this country, says the Brooklyn Eagle. It was after a long residence here that he took back to Russia with him the "spirit of American freedom."

He taught history in the University of Chicago, was Lowell professor at Harvard University, and several years ago came all the way from Russia to deliver a single lecture at Carnegie Hall.

Herman Bernstem, editor of the American Hebrew, perhaps the keenest student of Russian politics, pronounces Miloukoff the big figure in Russia, the representative of the people and the champion of justice for the Jews.

"Miloukoff is the outstanding figure in Russia today," Mr. Bernstem said. "He took with him to Russia the spirit of American freedom. He lived in Chicago for three or four years, teaching history at the University of Chicago."

"This is a clear-cut victory for the people. The result of this revolution means the dawn of a new day for Russia and the emancipation of the Jew. One of the reasons why the officials in power were driven out of office was because it was discovered that they were not making war against the Germans so much as against the Jews."

"I believe that the war now will be pursued with new vigor, there will be an end of the graft and corruption, and we shall see mobilization of the industrial forces of the empire. The Russian people cannot be minimized. The same graft and corruption which existed in Russia at the time of the Japanese war was being practiced on a much larger scale. It accounted for all the reverses of the Russian army."

"One of the men who attacked the Russian government most bitterly and pointed out that the Russian political system under government control, could not handle the troops because there were not sufficient cars available, could not get food to the army and could not handle the wounded with facility, is the man who is now the new Minister of Justice. The entire cabinet, as the names are cable, is a guarantee that Russia has set its face toward a new dawn of freedom."

"The new Prime Minister has been identified with liberal movements for many years, although a member of the nobility."

Prof. Miloukoff has been for years one of the most-talked-of men in Russia. He was one of the great leaders of the movement by which the Czar was forced to create the Duma, and from that day Miloukoff has been looked to as the logical first Prime Minister of Russia under a constitutional monarchy. He speaks English fluently.

He was at the head of the Progressive Bloc in the Duma, which, in the early days of the war, took advantage of a reawakened patriotism among the various groups of liberals and organized 11 out of the 14 political parties into a combination powerful enough to make itself felt. It was through fear of the Progressive Bloc that the reactionaries brought the Czar to the throne. Miloukoff has been called "the leader of Russia's patriots."

When Miloukoff lectured before the Civic Forum at Carnegie hall in 1908 he told his audience that in 1906 and 1908 Russia had condemned 18,274 persons as political criminals, among them the most intelligent men of the country. Because of this plain speech when he returned to Russia he was arrested. But it was not a new experience for him. When he was still a young man he was sentenced to the Siberian mines for criticizing the Russian government. He escaped to the United States, finally returning to Russia to become the editor of Zerk at Petrograd, and suffered imprisonment many times, and once lived in London as a political exile.

Dog Arithmetic.

A little Chicago boy was in a physician's reception room with his mother. The doctor owned a little dog, which had a very long body and very short legs. The boy spent several minutes looking at the pictures on the walls, and finally exclaimed:

"Say, mother, do you see all these pictures? Every one has a dog in it. I know why. It's because the doctor likes dogs. And say, mother, he has the funniest little dog you ever saw—it's two dogs long and only half a dog high!"—The Christian Herald.

How It Struck the Boy.

A Philadelphia divine was entertaining a couple of clergymen from New York at dinner. The guests spoke in praise of a sermon their host had delivered the Sunday before.

The host's son was at the table and one of the New York clergymen said to him:

"My lad, what did you think of your father's sermon?"

"I guess it was very good," said the boy, "but there were three mighty fine places where he could have stopped."

UNITED STATES FOOD ADMINISTRATION.

The food economics which Herbert C. Hoover of the Food Administration desires to suggest to the American people were officially promulgated a few days ago.

They constitute the cardinal principles of the food campaign and are set forth in clear type on a small card in terms so definite and concise that all will know exactly what and how to save.

This Food Administration card will soon hang in every American kitchen and its directions followed with scrupulous care by the home makers of the land. Already the appeal has met with a generous response. The information at hand that a million food pledges have already been signed.

A reading of the card, which is printed in full below, shows that to follow its suggestions entails no real hardships. The rules are concise and simple. Less wheat, meat, milk, fats, sugars and fuel. More fruit, vegetables, foods that are not suitable to be sent to camps or firing lines. No limiting the food of growing children; not eating by anyone of more food than is needed. Buying food that is grown close to the home.

Is any of this too hard? Win the war by giving your own daily service. Save the Wheat.—One wheatsheaf meal a day. Use corn, oatmeal, rye or barley bread and non-wheat breakfast foods. Order bread twenty-four hours in advance so your baker will not bake beyond his needs. Cut the loaf on the table and only as required. Use stale bread for cooking, toast, etc.

Save the Meat.—Beef, mutton or pork not more than once daily. Use freely vegetables and fish. At the meat meal serve smaller portions, and steaks instead of steaks. Make madeishes of all left-overs. Do this and there will be meat enough for every one at a reasonable price.

We are today killing the dairy cows and female calves as the result of high prices. Therefore, eat less and eat no young meat. If we save an ounce of meat each day per person, we will have additional supply equal to 2,200,000 cattle.

Save the Milk.—The children must have milk. Use every drop. Use butter-milk and sour milk for cooking and making cottage cheese. Use less cream.

Save the Fats.—We are the world's greatest fat wasters. Fat is food. Butter is essential for the growth and health of children. Use butter on the table as usual but not in cooking. Other fats are as good. Reduce use of fried foods. Soap contains fats. Do not waste it. Make your own washing soap at home out of the saved fats.

Use one-third ounce less per day of animal fat and 375,000 tons will be saved yearly.

Save the Sugar.—Sugar is scarce. We use today three times as much per person as our allies. So there may be enough for all at reasonable price. Use less candy and sweet drinks. Do not stint sugar in putting up fruit and jams. They will save butter.

If everyone in America saves one ounce of sugar daily, it means 1,100,000 tons for the year.

Save the Fuel.—Coal comes from a distance and our railways are overburdened hauling war material. Help relieve them by burning fewer fires. Use wood when you can get it.

Use the Perishable Foods.—Fruits and vegetables we have in abundance. As a nation, we eat too little green stuffs. Double their use and improve your health. Store potatoes and other roots properly and they will keep.

Begin now to can or dry all surplus garden products.

Use Local Supplies.—Patronize your local producer. Distance means money. Buy perishable food from the neighborhood nearest you and thus save transportation.

GENERAL RULES.

Buy less, serve smaller portions. Preach the "Gospel of the Clean Plate."

Don't eat a fourth meal. Don't limit the plain food of growing children.

Watch out for the wastes in the community. Full garbage pails in America mean empty dinner pails in America and Europe.

If the more fortunate of our people will avoid waste and eat no more than they need, the high cost of living problem of the less fortunate will be solved.

HERBERT HOOVER, United States Food Commissioner.

—Boring holes into the stumps of hard wood trees and filling these holes with equal parts of nitric and sulphuric acid will so soften the wood that it can be removed by ordinary picks. This has been demonstrated in Germany, and is the common treatment there of hard wood stumpsage.
