Musical Speech.

All speech, even the commonest speech, has something of the song in it; not a parish in the world but has its parish accent—the rhythm or tune to which the people sing what they have to say. Accent is a kind of chanting; all men have accent of their own—though they only notice that of others. Observe, too, how all passionate language does of itself become musical—with a finer music than mere accent. The speech of a man in zealous anger becomes a chant, a song. All deep things are song. Poetry, therefore, we will call musical thought. The poet is he who thinks in that manner. It is a man's sincerity and depth of vision that makes Miss Phoebe Gettig, of Altoona, is siting among relatives in this vicining everywhere music, if you can only reach it.—Carlyle.

Farmers the Real Aristocrats.

"These are the days when the farmer is the real aristocrat, and the 'city chap' is the rube of reality," said F. W. Steele, a prominent grain merchant of St. Louis, to the Washington Post. "The record prices for both wheat and corn established last year did more to inspire the farmers of the middle west to plant greater acreage than the patriotic plea of the President. The result is that the great wheat belt of the west and northwest, and the corn belt of the middle west, are showing crops staggering in their supply. "Recently I have gone over the States of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri, and viewed the growing crops; at the same time receiving at I think there has been a change in first-hand information concerning the sentiment. Certainly the women have crops in sections which lack of time ity of the grain is simply perfection.

The production per acre of wheat will run from 28 to 30 bushels, as against prevented me from visiting. The qualan average of 20 in other years. In Nebraska and parts of Kansas the wheat crop will not be up to the average, perhaps, but there will be a big crop of corn. Iowa will break her own stupendous record for corn production this year, and the quality of the crop is far and away in advance of these of other years. The farmers have followed instructions of the United States Department of Agriculonly been selected with the greatest goods to this country. care, but tested for fertility before planting. "With cash wheat selling at from grandfathers, and that 160 acres of the land the Government granted title to without price, is now worth any-where from $200 to $500 per acre, you can't blame the young farmers for attending the stock and automobile shows at Chicago and purchasing the finest cattle and most expensive motor cars. They have the money to pay for #### the gasoline. The Passing of Pants?

If the great war is to popularize overalls for women the suggestion has been made that it may also spell the doom of trousers for men. The knee breeches worn by the soldiers, it is thought, may prove so popular with the fighting men that on their return they may be loath to go back to the old "stove pipe" garments, and the necessity of keeping them creased and dodging bagging at the knees. The death of Herbert Kelcey, the actor, a few weeks ago, started a story that it few weeks ago, started a story that it was he who introduced the crease in America, his appearance in creased 40 years in which to complete paytrousers on the stage setting a fashion that at first scoffed at (like the turned-up cuff which used to be attributed to the desire of our Anglomaniacs to imitate the dandies in onies of 12 or 14 farmers on adjoining rainy London,) soon became riveted land. The settlers may thus organize LEMONT.

followed him. Trousers are traced back to classical times, when soldiers were permit ted to don them for campaign in colder climates. The Turks were perhaps the first to adopt them, for both sexes by the way, the baggier the better. Then the Venetians acquired a modified style from their trading in the Levant and pantalcons, as they were called, figured in the Italian comedies, spreading later to France, where they became the badge of the revolution-Brummel had a pair of tight fighting ones built for him, but trousers did not become popular in England until the great Duke of Wellington, returning from the Breiters. from the Peninsular war in Spain and Portugal, appeared in them. if one war marked the introduction of the pants, another might appropriately enough mark their disappearance.

well-drained the apple orchard would make an ideal location for the corral. An open shed with southern exposure and good drainage, built in the corral, protects sheep from cold rains and thus materially lengthens the pasturing season. The equipment, including fence and shed for 100 mature sheep, costs about $125. It affords dog protection, simplifies the breeding of ewes, the feeding of grain and the weaning of lambs and safeguards against exposure to severe weather and wet quarters.

Australian Sentiment Changed.

"Australia defeated conscription, largely because the women voted against it," remarked J. A. Devine, of Melbourne, to the Washington Post. Mr. Devine, a barrister, is making his first visit to the United States. He expressed himself amazed at the extent of this country, and was particularly impressed with the high buildings, although Melbourne has its share of large structures.

"An American architect, you may know, designed the new capitol building at the federal seat of government," said Mr. Devine. "But the work on the edifice has not progressed very rapidly. There has been talk of suspending the work temporarily. "Sizes the very on the conscription." slowness of immigration into her areas of vacant land to undertake a new policy of encouragement to settlers. By a recent constitutional amendment the Legislature was ailowed to appropriate $250,000 for the purpose, and has actually set aside $100,000. The State, which has about 2,000,000 acres open to settlement plans to sell them at local auction at a minimum price of $5 per acre. The State's fund is to be used to clear the timber from a part of every farm, and —if the settler wishes—to erect a modest cabin upon it for which the settler must pay in five years. As the settler, says the New York Post, need ments, a man can enter Minnesota with little capital. The State does not intend to sell the land piecemeal and at random, but is trying to form coi-
