Hoover Has Six Rules for Economy.

First-To save the wheat. If we eat as usual from our harvest this year we shall have little more than enough for our own supply, but we can divide with our allies if each individual makes some sacrifice by eating at least one wheatless meal a day.

Second—We want to save the meat, for our cattle and hogs are decreasing, and we must send meat to our allies Third-We wish to save the fats. We wish no butter used in cooking,

Mr. and Mrs. George Houser and lard, bacon and other pork products family, of State College, were visitors used. Fourth—Deficiencies in food supply can be amply covered by increasing the use of fish, potatoes, beans, turnips, cabbages and vegetables generally and supply and sup erally, corn, buckwheat, rye and rice, which we will have in abundance this harvest. Fifth—We want to save transportation. To meet the war pressure for nothing of value goes into the garbage

Aside from eating an increased proportion of these commodities in order to save on the staples, it is extremely important that any surplus of these commodities shall be preserved or well stored for winter use.

What America Has Done.

Eentering today upon its fifth month of war, America finds herself far advanced as a potent factor in overcoming Germany. About 400,000 national guardsmen are in arms, ready to move into southern camps for intensive training. The regular army, gradually filled with volunteers, is only 3,000 or 4,000 short of its complete quota, while the American flag actually flies over European land and sea.

Pershing's division is rapidly shaping for actual trench service. American destroyers prowl the U-boat zone, while scores of new destroyers are building. Other things that America has done include the following:

Registered 10,000,000 youths, who are now being selected for the first national army of 687,000. Seized ninety-one German ships, started repair work on all of them and actually put some into service. Authorized without a dissenting vote $7,000,000,000. Appropriated $750,000,000 for merchant shipping and $640,000,000 for airship construction. Agreed to loan our allies $3,000,-000,000 and advanced over half of it. Sent a commission to Russia and France.

constructing thirty-two Began camps for soldiers. Authorized and is enforcing embargo to keep food from Germany. Launched great food conservation measures. Gave $100,000,000 to the American Red Cross and $3,000,000 to the Y. M. C. A. America realizes that she has a big part to play in the world war and is preparing to play it. Second Liberty Loan Date Open.

Washington, D. C .- There have been a number of reports circulated of recent date informing the public that the second liberty loan campaign would be launched at such and such a time. Some reports have set September 1, as the date of the flotation, others have designated October 1, and so on. Secretary McAdoo, in a statement issued last week, announces that all such reports are absolutely without foundation, speculative and misleading to the public. It is known that plans are being laid to carry on the next campaign for popularizing the movement and making the liberty loan a veritable household word. This, according to Oscar Price, new director of publicity, will be the aim of the next liberty loan campaign. It is thought that definite plans for the flo-tation of the second liberty loan will be announced shortly, although it is not known just when the campaign begin. Secretary McAdoo issued the following statement last week relative to the various inauthentic reports which have been circulated as to the time of the flotation of the next big bond:

"Sometime ago I warned the public against recurring unreliable reports with regard to the next liberty loan. These reports, purporting to give information as to the date, amount, and other details relative to the next issue, continue to appear. I take occasion again to state that these publications are unauthorized and untrue. They are merely speculative, and the The farmers are busy hauling in oats and plowing for the fall seeding.

-A hint of the difference which the airplane is likely to make in civil life is afforded by some recent accounts, from France, of the rapid way in which news is circulated. The utility of the Panama Canal in time of war was strikingly shown, recently, in the exploit of the United States torpedo boat destroyer Shaw, which made a run of 5858 miles, from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic Coast, in fourteen days, ten hours and twenty minutes, including a record-breaking passage through the canal of five hours and forty-five minutes. It was just nineteen years be-fore that the United States battleship Oregon, under the command of Captain Charles E. Clark, at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, dashed down the west coast of the American continent, through the Strait of Magellan, and up the east coast, a distance of 13,000 miles, from San Francisco to Key West, in sixty-five
