PINE GROVE MENTION.

Miss Bell Goheen has been confined to bed the past week, but is now better.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennison, of Fairbrook, spent Friday in town on a shopping tour.

Mrs. B. C. Bloom and daughter, Elsie, of Scotia, spent Friday in town bent on shopping.

George Emeric, of Centre Hall, was on our streets Saturday on a demonstration tour.

C. H. Martz, of the State highway force near Tyrone, was home with his family over Sunday.

John C. Dunlap, of Twin Rocks, is home for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Dunlap.

Wm. Elder, who has been visiting relatives in this section, departed for his home in Medina, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Walker were visitors at the Grandpa A. S. Walker home on the Branch on Sunday.

Squire J. H. Miller was a very sick man at his home at Rock Springs several days last week, but is now some better.

J. H. Markle and sister, Sadie, came over from Bellwood and are visiting at the home of A. C. Kepler in the Glades.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Williams, of Houersville, took dinner at the Bowersox home on East Main street on Sunday.

Mrs. Nancy Mayes with her two interesting youngsters, were Saturday visitors at the Joseph Harpster home at Tadopole.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clark and the former's aged mother were Sunday visitors at the W. A. Lytle home at Rock Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Johnson on Saturday drove down the pike and paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Johnson at Water Street.

Mrs. Wm. Houtz, Carrie and Betty Houtz and Mrs. Hoy Bender, all of Lewistown, visited the Mrs. Sue Peters home on Saturday.

Henry Elder and family and Samuel Elder and family motored over to Markleysburg Saturday to visit Mrs. D. H. Young and family.

James E. Peters and wife motored to Houserville the first day of the week to visit Mrs. Allman, who is not as robust as she once was.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bell and several children came over from Eden Hill to see J. W. Sunday, who is ill with an attack of indigestion.

John Stover, son of Rev. S. C. Stover, of Boalsburg, recently enlisted in the naval hospital corps and is now in training in Philadelphia.

A new 20-foot span concrete bridge is being constructed on the State highway at Baileyville. Supt. J. B. Longwell is in charge of its construction. After a three weeks' visit among relatives at Jerseytown, Mrs. J. L. Murphy returned to her home on Water street, perfectly delighted with her visit.

Rev. H. F. Babcock, of the Halfmoon M. E. church, and Rev. Victor Nearhood will exchange pulpits this coming Sunday evening at 7.30 in the M. E. church.

Merchant E. M. Watt is shy his driving horse, the animal having committed suicide some time during the night, and the fertilizer factory at Milesburg had a call.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Everhart and Master William, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Houch, of Franklinville, were callers at the Robert Reed home in the Glades on Sunday.

Grandmother Mary Frohm, while walking in the J. C. Bailey yard on Church street last Friday, had a fall, fracturing her left hip which has confined her to her bed.

Prof. Paul Martz and wife, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Will W. Keller, who is one of the postal mail clerks in the Pittsburgh postoffice, have been guests of Squire and Mrs. Keller, on Main street.

This Saturday evening the newly elected officers of the I. O. O. F., No. 276, will be installed by D. D. G. M. Erb. After the exercises a lay-out will be ordered and a full turnout is expected of the members.

That famous bird, the stork, hovered over several homes on Tadpole last week, leaving a dear little girl at the Wilbur Sunday home and a chubby little boy at the Harry Sunday home. Their names for the present are criers.

Fred Roush, a member of Troop 1, last week reported for duty at Camp Hancock, only to be honorably discharged on account of a fractured elbow which has left him a cripple. Uncle Sam evidently thinks that he will have enough crumples to care for before the Kaiser is either crippled or slain.

Last Friday night Hattie, the 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lytle, of Eldorado, died of diphtheria. The remains were brought to Pine Hall for burial Saturday at 3 p. m. The parents, one brother and three sisters survive. The mother and one of the children are also afflicted with the malady.

Rev. John E. Reish, of Loganton, accompanied by J. J. Garner, one of the members of the Board of County Commissioners of Clinton county, were welcome visitors at Mr. Reish's parental home at Baileyville several days last week. The Reverend attended conference at State College and Mr. Carter was a lay member.

Mary, wife of Howard Wright, died Sunday morning at Altoona, aged about 28 years. She had undergone a surgical operation some time ago and had recovered sufficiently to visit relatives and friends here several weeks ago and her many friends were shocked to hear of her sudden death. Her husband, parents, and several brothers and sisters survive. Burial was made Tuesday at 2 p. m. G. Mack Fry, W. K. Coff and wife were among the mourners.

Last Saturday evening H. A. Elder and Mrs. Blanche Louck figured in a head-on motor collision on East Main street. Mr. Elder was driving his Ford and Mrs. Louck a Saxon. Mr. Elder was at the side of the street while Mrs. Louck kept to the road, watching a standing car on the opposite side and did not notice Mr. Elder's machine until the crash. The Saxon car was placed crosswise in the street and was stripped, with the steering gear, fender, lights and spring broken. The Ford was also badly twisted and a fender was broken. After some debating as to whose fault it was they decided to call it quits and the garage man had a job. Mrs. John Keller, who accompanied Mrs. Louck, was thrown out, injuring her head, but not seriously.

Madam Breshkovskaya Recalls Meeting With Prince When They Discussed Hopes for Russia.

Catherine Breshkovskaya tells the story of when, as a girl, she was going up to St. Petersburg with her mother and sister, "a handsome young prince, returning from his official duties in Siberia," entered their compartment. For hours, she says, he discussed with her the problems of the Russian people. "His words thrilled like fire. Our excited voices rose steadily higher, until my mother begged us to speak low." The handsome young prince was Peter Kropotkin.

The years have passed, and the cause to which the two ardent young politicians in that Russian railway carriage devoted their lives has been vindicated. Madam Breshkovskaya, honored and free in her own country, is leading, exhorting, advising the forces of the revolution which she helped so powerfully to make, and Prince Kropotkin, still in England, his refuge from the persecutions of autocracy, is forming a committee for the better instruction of the people of Great Britain concerning that practically unknown quantity which is new Russia. The old world may well sit up, rub its eyes and stare, for dreams, in the twentieth century, have a way of coming true.—Christian Science Monitor.

Helen Keller Aids Blind Soldiers.

Recently a friend left to Helen Keller $500 to be used to aid the sightless in the way the blind poet and author judged best. Miss Keller, who has been summering at Wells, Vermont, has forwarded the money to the American-British-French-Belgian Permanent Blind Relief War Fund, 590 Fifth avenue, New York, with the stipulation that it will be devoted to one blinded and maimed soldier.

The letter accompanying the gift, addressed to Mrs. George A. Kessler, honorary secretary of the fund, endorses with touching pathos the fund's work in re-educating blind soldiers to earn their own living at each individual case and then outfitting them so that they can get a fair start in their chosen career, and she adds a word of cheer and encouragement to her "comrades in the dark." It reads in part:

"The plan for helping blinded soldiers and sailors that you outlined in your last letter interested me. I think it is a good idea to help individuals directly—to be a sort of big brother or big sister to them. The plan should meet with a liberal response. The personal touch that will go with the aid will multiply its value tenfold. Of course the training and instruction of these blinded men is very important; but sympathy and encouragement are quite as necessary. No matter how grateful they may be for financial assistance that comes through bureaus and agencies, their needs miss the warm touch of friendship. In order really to console and help the blind, we must take into account their particular needs, their peculiar difficulties, their individual capabilities.

"A newly blinded man is braced by the faith friends show in him while he is learning over again the ways of living and working in the dark. He adapts himself more readily to his new environment if a real friend—one whose name he knows—is near. How much more do the poor men who are maimed as well as blind need others' faith and encouragement. Their damage is irreparable. They are doomed to live the remainder of their days with the pleasure of living utterly gone out of them. Their lot is so horrible that any effort to break through their isolation and cheer them must be precious beyond our powers of comprehension.

"I am agonized by the suffering of the young men of all countries who lose their sight on battle-fields and in the seas. My blindness is realized anew in theirs. We are bound together by our common affliction. I wonder if a seeing person can understand how a man in the vigor of youth feels when he knows that he will never again see the light of day. Try to imagine the experience of having the dear familiar world that you have looked upon for twenty odd years fade suddenly out of your sight like a phantom world! If you can imagine such an experience, you will realize what is happening to thousands of young men and boys in this most frightful of wars.

Beside the immediate work in hand I should like to emphasize another aspect of the problem. That is, we are only at the beginning of this work. The burden will grow heavier each year. We have found in our work with the sightless in this country that very few of them will come self-supporting in either the long years of partial or entire dependence for those brave fellows; for we must remember, they are still young men. After the glamor of the war is passed, and the enthusiasm and novelty of giving to blinded heroes is over, their need will be just as urgent ten years from now, perhaps more so. It is our duty, therefore, to contribute liberally to the permanent fund for their support. Besides providing the necessary instruction and equipment for them, we must find occupations suited for their abilities and handicaps. We must be ready to take them by the hand and lead them kindly over the dark years. There will never be a day in the years to come that they will not require our help.

I should also like to say a word of cheer and encouragement to my comrades in the dark, and tell them that, when they get used to the "feel" of the world, they will experience a joy in things that perhaps they never thought of which they had eyes. I know that the earth under my feet gives me a sense of tranquil strength. It is not only in the wide pathways of life that pleasure comes. Every day I feel the thrill of a discoverer journeying through my little walled garden which sunlight fades from our vision, there is a new delight in its warmth. When the color is gone from hill and sky, we find a strange sweetness in the winds and the odors they waft to us. The night has other beauties than the stars—it's cool serenity and its silvery silences. Under its healing wings we may dream worlds with unlimited horizons. It is only at the beginning that despair clutches us and beats us to the ground. If we have the will and courage to face the dark, a gentle warmth steals into our fearful hearts and comforts them, as if a tender hand were laid upon one's shoulder, and a dear voice spoke to one, sweet and near. We are so constituted that we can adapt ourselves to almost any condition if only a friendly hand is reached out to us, if we could hold fast to our faith in the conquering night of the spirit.
