Frank Kokan, who two years ago was convicted of selling liquor without a license at the Whitecock quarries and left go with a suspended sentence, was arrested again on Monday on the same charge. Tuesday morning he pleaded guilty before Squire Woodring and was fined one hundred dollars and costs and given the alternative of leaving the county or going to jail and he chose the former, leaving on Wednesday for Allegheny county.

John B. Derstine, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Derstine, is now serving in the United States navy and has made one trip to France and return in the Vaterland, one of the big prize ships of the German government seized by the United States and converted into a transport. The young sailor alleges that the ship was torpedoed two days out from France but landed her complement of soldiers and cargo of ammunitions safe at a port "somewhere in France."

Mae Marsh, in "Polly of the Circus," will be the Wednesday afternoon and evening attraction at the Scenic next week. This is the first Goldwyn picture and has been released but a short time. It is said to be a fine picture and everybody who read the very clever story of "Polly of the Circus" when it was published in the "Watchman" a year or two ago will want to see this picture. On Tuesday afternoon and evening dainty Marguerite Clark will play the tomboy to perfection in a fine picture called "The Amazons." Picture lovers should not miss either of the above.

How Bellefonte Soldiers Are Training in Camp.

Troop L Guarded the Arsenal, Staged a Circus and is Now Back in Camp. Many Rumors Heard, but None Believed.

(By Corp. Henry Keller.)

Hdqrs. Troop L, 1st Pa. Cav. Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga. Friday, October 27th, 1917.

Editor "Democratic Watchman."

One week at the arsenal has been a most glorious one for us. Tomorrow evening we return once more to Camp, but we surely feel sorry about leaving the arsenal. We could hardly realize that we were in Georgia. For the last five weeks we have seen and lived upon the sand, and we felt that we had once more touched Pennsylvania soil when we found the sod—real green grass—at the arsenal. To have that springy touch once more under our feet was wonderful and our joy was indescribable.

Our work surely brought home to us the fact that our country is at war. We carried Colt 45 automatics while on duty and we were ordered to use them if the necessity arose. Naturally several amusing incidents occurred, but in every case it showed that our men were on their job. A very important post—the powder house post—was favored one day by having Trooper John Steele as guard. Here no one may approach the powder house closer than ten feet. One of the arsenal employees was digging yams on this post and Trooper Steele felt that the man was getting too close, so he gave the order to "Halt!" "Must I halt," asked the workman, and "Pikey" replied, "well, you don't have to halt but if you come any closer I have to shoot." The man halted.

Trooper Charles McC. Scott also set the arsenal in an uproar by stopping a number of men from going to work, and one of the darkeys ably described his sentiments when speaking to a friend about it. "Did I halt? Why nigger, that man carried a smoke gun two feet long." And so, although the guard trick of four hours at a stretch seemed pretty long at times, the monotony was often broken by such amusing incidents, and when we were not actually on guard our time was pretty much our own. Our officers were very liberal with the passes into town and many of us went in at every opportunity, while nearby was the Partridge Inn, where we could buy real sodas and such things that cannot be bottled and sent out to the cantens.

Tuesday afternoon was a holiday for us and many of the boys went into town to see Barnum and Bailey's circus. It was fine but many of the boys were afraid that the management would kidnap "Slats" Norris, for he made their thin man look like one of the Knisely brothers.

Wednesday was Liberty Bond day. A holiday was declared throughout the division but the joy was spoiled by a second order allowing no one outside of camp. So we had an entire day with nothing to do. But it did not take us long to work up a program. All morning we cleaned up our camp. When it was in the proper shape mess was quite ready. After eating we staged a circus of our own. Few people can realize how well Trooper Bender held down the job of ringmaster, and the boys all performed their parts reasonably well. All kinds of daring stunts were practiced and Trooper "Piney" Devine was voted the best performer, although many of the boys gave him a close race. The most spectacular event was presented by Corporal Robison when, "by his own request," he showed us how to dismount from a bucking horse while galloping. Fortunately no bones were broken.

After staging a "Rescue for the Indians," in which Sergt. Schreffler and "Piney" Devine played the leads, and running several races, we closed the festivities with a ball game. Troop L played a picked team from the Troop and several dollars were collected as gate money. Once again the Troop L holiday was victorious. So all in all our holiday was a great success.

Sergt. Yeager and Trooper Scott made quite a figure in police court the other day. The Sergt. was run over by a Ford and the man wanted damages. Trooper Scott was witness and the case was settled amicably, but both the men in question have great tales to tell as to how a southern police court is managed.

The camp has seemed more homelike than usual this week for we have been favored with visits from several Bellefonters. Col. and Mrs. W. F. Reynolds have been here for a few days and likewise the writer's mother has been down. To say that we were glad to see them would be putting it mildly, and since mother has been here I wonder now how I have found the time to write even this letter.

We have all come to feel that the cavalry regiment is indeed a most important unit at Camp Hancock. What the newspapers and division would do for gossip and rumors were not here no one can know. We hear every thing and believe none of it, but we know that the new physical examinations are going on daily. The surgeons are now working in the cavalry and in a few days Troop L will get this new, and I suppose final physical test. But we feel that we are all in fine condition and so will lose no one.

We have had several disappointments in the sunniness of the "sunny South." This week a cold wave overtook us and we experienced weather that we never hoped to see down here—at least this time of year. The days have been wonderful, although some have been somewhat chilly. But the nights were terrible and on Wednesday we broke ice in the watering trough in order to water our horses that morning. Ice in the month of October! But the cold snap lasted but a few days and it surely helped to ripen the persimmons.

Many of the boys have now become fairly well acquainted in Augusta and consequently we have been invited to many charming dances, which surely help to enliven the monotony of the military training. We can hardly realize that over six weeks have passed since we left Bellefonte, but we have surely made good use of the time.

This week we start once more with our training and although we surely are sorry to leave the arsenal we will be glad to get back to work once again.

All the boys join me in wishing every one the best of health and happiness and we all look forward to the day the "Watchman" arrives bringing us news of home. Here's hoping that all is well in Bellefonte.

(Col. and Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds have returned from their trip to Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., and while there they made it a personal affair to see practically every soldier from Centre county. For the information of parents having boys at the camp the Colonel says that they are well located, have everything a soldier needs, are all well and in good spirits, the only disheartening feature being the breaking up of the cavalry regiment. But this will pass away when the men get properly settled in the new units to which they may be assigned.—Editor.)

Suffragists Held District Convention at Lock Haven.

Representatives of Suffrage organizations in the Fifteenth and Twenty-first Congressional districts composed of the counties of Clinton, Lycoming, Potter and Tioga, and Centre, Clearfield, Cameron and McKean, met in a group convention at the home of Mrs. R. S. Quigley, in Lock Haven, last Thursday.

Mrs. Robert Mills Beach, chairman of Centre county and member of the State board, presided. An assessment of two dollars was made on each county body to cover the expenses of the convention. The following district officers were elected: Chairmen, Mrs. R. S. Quigley, of Clinton county; Mrs. Harry Keller, of Centre county; and Mrs. M. C. Burt, of Potter county. Vice chairman, Mrs. Benn, of Potter county; secretary, Miss Smith, of Lycoming county; treasurer, Miss Katherine Potter, of Tioga county.

Delegates to the national convention to be held at Washington, D. C., December 10th to 16th, inclusive, were elected as follows: Mrs. R. S. Quigley, of Lock Haven; Miss Henrietta B. Lyons, of Williamsport; Altermates, Mrs. Clarence Davis, of Tioga county, and Mrs. McCoy, of McKean county.

Resolutions were adopted condemning in no uncertain terms the women who, posing as Suffragists, have persisted in picketing the White House to the embarrassment of the administration and thus doing injury to the national organization as well as the cause in general. The resolutions follow:

Whereas, In spite of the fact that the National Woman's Suffrage association, and its various State and county branches, have repeatedly repudiated the picketing at Washington and repeatedly explained that the small group of women carrying on this and similar activities are in no way connected with the national organization, there still exists in the public mind such misconceptions as to bring injury to the cause of Woman Suffrage and to the efforts of the women, who, subordinating their own cause, are turning their energies and organizations to the service of the Nation; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the Woman's Suffrage party of the 15th and 21st Congressional districts of the State of Pennsylvania, in session at Lock Haven October 26th, 1917, again repeat this explanation, and that we as women and Suffragists repudiate and renounce the picketers, their organization and methods.

When the Milesburg Red Cross Auxiliary was organized this summer they went a begging for a place for headquarters and a work room. Finally Toner A. Hugg came to their rescue and gave them his store room, which just then happened to be vacant, for "as long as the war lasted, be it one year or five years," and the women have the room well fitted up for their headquarters. Naturally they appreciate Mr. Hugg's generosity in the matter as the room he gave them always rented for $10.00 a month.

W. F. Haas, of the Bellefonte fish hatchery, has a dog that has proven quite expert as a fisherman. He will go to the stream, hunt his fish and with a quick stroke of his paw pin it fast to the bed of the stream and hold it until he gets a good mouth-hold. Some of Mr. Haas' friends are considering the idea of trying to induce him to breed a regular line of fish dogs, as they would come in good during the trout-fishing season.

The cent or two cents extra admission as the general public's part of the war tax should not deter any person from patronizing the Scenic who wants to see high class motion pictures. Manager T. Clayton Brown did not impose the tax but he is determined to show pictures that will give the public their money's worth, regardless of the price of admission.

TROOP L TO BE BROKEN UP.

To be Used to Fill Vacancies in Other Pennsylvania Units.

Camp Hancock, Ga., Oct. 29, 1917. Editor "Democratic Watchman."

In the past week many changes have taken place at Camp Hancock, one of which should be of interest to every person in Centre county. It is the complete breaking up of the First Pennsylvania cavalry, of which Bellefonte's crack troop has been a part. The order, though of several weeks' standing, was only made public Friday night. It caused quite a commotion, and not without cause, for there are many troops of old standing which will completely lose their identity.

It is really a shame that so many good, young men, who volunteered to serve the United States should be robbed of the privilege of doing their bit with their outfit, and along side of their long-made friends, but the order is no doubt for the best, though it may seem very hard to stand.

However, Centre county has, and will continue to have, a company which it may well be proud of. It is the well known Boal Machine Gun company, which is the ranking company of the 55th Brigade. This company will without a doubt remain intact until every member has given his life for his country, either in holding that sector of trench allotted to them or in the mad dash for liberty over the top and on to Berlin.

The first and second squadrons of the cavalry, which includes the four troops from Philadelphia, the Governors' troop from Harrisburg, the Sheridan troop from Tyrone, Troop H from Pittsburgh, and Troop F from New Castle, will be transferred to the artillery, enough men going to each battery of the three regiments to completely bring them up to war strength. While the third squadron which is made up of Troop L from Bellefonte, Troop M from Lewisburg, Troop K from Lock Haven, and Troop I from Danville, will be even more broken up. A few of the very best men will be transferred to the signal corps, and the remainder will be used to fill up the numerous regiments of infantry.

All commissioned men will be transferred as second class privates, regardless of their previous non-commissioned offices while in the cavalry. The Boal Machine Gun troop, which is now the First company of the 108th Machine Gun battalion, moved to new quarters Wednesday one week ago. The camp site now occupied is in front of division headquarters. It is much more desirable than the one previously occupied in the cavalry. Eighty-two men will be required to bring the company up to its new quota. A Machine Gun company is very complicated, due to the work it is called upon to do and the equipment which it requires. A battalion of machine guns moves independently, taking entire care of itself, it having over fifty machine guns, all of which are of the large type. It has been well termed the "suicide club."

Due to there not being any literature written on machine gun drills in the United States, and only a short time now for a drill to be drawn up, Captain W. F. Leitzel, of the First company, has been invited to write up a drill, which will undoubtedly be accepted by the War Department as the regular drill for machine gun units. To date the efficient captain has made wonderful strides toward that end, and last Saturday one platoon from each of the three companies formed a company and tried out the new drill, which proved very efficient. 166 mules were required to move the necessary equipment. Only seven officers and sergeants were mounted. All commands for the various movements were given by whistle signals from the steam kitchen which is a part of the train. The necessary equipment for a machine gun unit is most interesting, but at this date cannot be made public.

All the men are in the best of health and spirits, they having won several very important sham battles, and are always recommended for having the best inspections wherever they are.

A mad rush is always made when the "Democratic Watchman" is brought into camp, evidence that it is very much appreciated by the men.

He Just Won't be an Old Man.

Dr. E. S. Dorworth, of this place, is eighty-four years old and while we all know that he gave up real active practice of his profession several years ago he is still specializing in a few diseases the treatment of which he has always been singularly successful in and what do you think? On Sunday he took a patient to Philadelphia and after their safe arrival there, just as if that wasn't enough to exhaust an ordinarily old gentleman, he took a train for Baltimore to surprise his son William, who is in business in that city. Still going as good as many a man of his age figures transposed he took a run over to Washington and the last word from him was to the effect that he was seeing everything to be seen and enjoying every minute of the trip.

The Junior Red Cross recently organized by Mrs. W. F. Carson, will meet in the Red Cross rooms in Petrikin hall every Thursday afternoon, immediately after school. This organization is composed of the children from the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, their work, which is but for an hour, is making snip pillows. Mothers are urged to send their children, that they may learn to do their bit in the great work.

Edward left on Wednesday for his home in Philadelphia where he holds a position with the Sheppard Stove company.

Miss Bertha Laurie left Bellefonte Wednesday afternoon, expecting to sail for France some time next week, having signed for a year's service in the Y. M. C. A. canteen work. This work is entirely with the men returning from the trenches—a cup of coffee, some food, comforts, amusements or a little encouragement, which the Y. M. C. A. rest rooms are providing for the soldiers as they leave the front on short furloughs. Miss Laurie is the first woman in Centre county to volunteer for service, and being rarely qualified in the requirements of the work, will no doubt add much to the bit of cheer America's good women are giving to the soldiers within the French lines.
