THINGS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

Conductor Ambersson Hoff has been transferred from Tyrone to Snow Shoe and has moved his family to the latter place.

Coming to the opera house on Monday, March 4th, Chas. M. Hinton, appearing in the "Ace of Hearts," with real pretty girls, who can sing and dance with such grace and charm that you will want to see them. It is a real musical comedy.

The Bellefonte High school boys' basketball team was defeated by the Tyrone High school five, on the Y. M. C. A. floor Saturday night, by the score of 28 to 15. Decker, playing centre on the Bellefonte team, made every point of Bellefonte's score.

Among the contributions to the St. John's home for boys and St. Mary's home for girls, Catholic institutions at Cresson, were a pair of candy and groceries from St. John's parish, Bellefonte, and a large box of dry goods and clothing from the Dorcas society.

The time for taking out war risk insurance has been extended to April 12th, 1918, and as the government offers to insure men in the service at rates lower than any reputable life insurance company can offer, it is to the interest of the families and friends of enlisted men to urge them to take out insurance.

Trains on the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad were held up over two hours on Monday afternoon because of a freight wreck in the Paddy mountain tunnel, occasioned by the engine jumping the track. The wreck was cleared up and passenger train west reached Bellefonte between seven and eight o'clock in the evening.

Raymond R. Jenkins, who has recently been with the Philadelphia branch of the General Electric company, has been transferred to Washington to assist in the handling of the contracts that company has with the U. S. government, consisting of a great deal of the electrical equipment for the army cantonments and camps both in this country and in France.

County superintendent David O. Etters is on the last lap of his term as superintendent of public schools of Centre county, and it will be up to the school directors of the county to elect a superintendent on the first Tuesday of May. Mr. Etters, naturally, is a candidate to succeed himself while one or two others are already mentioned as probable candidates, although it is yet a little early for any strenuous campaign work.

Notwithstanding the fact that the scenic virtually outdid its reputation in the big program of motion pictures presented this week it will continue to show good pictures next week and every week thereafter. Manager T. Clayton Brown believes in giving Bellefonters the most up-to-date pictures obtainable and to this end has made arrangements for the production of several new film companies which he will exhibit from time to time. Watch for them.

Only four members showed up for the regular meeting of council on Monday evening and as this number did not constitute a quorum no meeting was held. Burgess W. Harrison Walker was present with several important propositions to bring before the borough law makers but as no official session was held he had no opportunity of making his desires known. This was the second regular meeting that went by default owing to the absence of a quorum.

Dr. Frederick A. Dale in charge of the medical depot of the United States army at Manila, Philippine Islands, underwent an examination early in January for promotion from lieutenant colonel to colonel, and has quite likely been given his promotion by this time. His many Centre county friends will be glad to learn of his advancement another point in Uncle Sam's military service, as the doctor is just as important a part of the United States army as the man who carries the gun.

The "Watchman" last week told the story of the fence unearthed in Lock Haven by chief of police Harry Dukeman and constable W. W. Pettigill when the former went there on the search of some wearing apparel stolen out at Clarence. The alleged proprietor of the fence, Oscar J. Andrews, pleaded innocence but when taken before alderman John P. Anthony for a hearing he pleaded guilty. On Saturday he was sentenced by Judge McCortick to pay a fine of $100 and costs and in default of same was sent to jail for ninety days.

There are at least a few people in Bellefonte who are taking the "Watchman's" advice and will store their own ice this winter instead of taking a chance on getting it next summer, when the scarcity of ammonia may result in the enforced closing of the artificial ice plants. Among the number who thus believe in husbanding the natural ice supply are landlord August Glinz, of the Garman house, who had his old ice house cleaned out and will put away eighty to one hundred tons, and Hugh N. Crider and Judge Quigley, who will fill the old ice house at the former's home. A number of others who have ice houses have had them filled already.

LOCK HAVEN SUBMERGED AND SUFFERING.

Ice Gorges in the River Back Flood Waters Up and Inundate the Town. Great Damage Done and Many Suffering from Cold.

Lock Haven is in a pitiable plight. Since Wednesday afternoon it has been practically isolated and suffering under a flood of back-water that ranges from two to four feet deep.

Early Wednesday morning the river began to raise and by noon that day it overflowed its banks and was rushing into the city. The continued rise caused the water to take a new course over the islands a mile or so below the city and then a great ice gorge was formed that dammed the swollen current until it began to back up with portent of disaster. Slowly the water raised all Wednesday afternoon. The lower parts of the city being flooded first. At 3:45 that afternoon the Buffalo flier left the station and not since that moment has there been a car wheel turned in or near Lock Haven. At 5 o'clock last evening the water was four feet deep around the P. R. R. passenger station and all the lower sections of the city. Main street gradually rises to higher ground as it runs west, but even up as far as the monument at the junction of Bellefonte avenue the flood was 2 1/2 feet on the streets. Out over Bellefonte avenue to Jefferson street the greatest depth has been 3 feet.

MANY PEOPLE SUFFERING.

While the water kept creeping up all Wednesday night families were busy moving into second stories. Few realized that the flood would be of long duration and made no provision for heat. The result has been that many of them are there now with no heat and little if any food. The cold wave froze the water in their lower floors and cellars and stoves and coal cannot be procured.

Yesterday afternoon the streets were still frozen over so that boats could not be run to carry succor to the marooned and the ice was not thick enough to make walking on it possible, except at great risk of breaking through. On west Main street a party of citizens broke up the ice in order that they could get out to the hill district in the vicinity of the Normal school. In fact that is the only section of the city that is not inundated.

The worst part of it all is that they can't tell when the critical situation will be relieved. While the river is not raising any more the ice gorge is still holding so tight that the back water fell only about 3 inches all day yesterday. Unless the gorge breaks or is blown out there can be little prospect of relief until the river falls almost to normal.

Apparently all of the trouble has been caused by the river, for the Bald Eagle flood passed off without danger to the city and that stream was falling when the river began to rise.

The story to the effect that a house burned down while surrounded by water and no one able to approach it could not be verified in Lock Haven last evening. The manager of the Bell telephone exchange there, who with the operatives, was marooned in the building, was of the opinion that the fire was in reality a car of lime on a siding in the freight yards.

Tuesday's Hard Rain Brought High Water.

The hard rain and consequent melting of snow and ice on Tuesday resulted in the highest water in Spring creek seen in a number of years, but fortunately it did not get high enough to do any real damage. The creek reached its highest point at midnight Tuesday night when the water was within a half inch of the floor of the pressroom in the "Watchman" office. It stood there for a brief period and then began to recede, and by Wednesday the colder weather averted all danger of a flood at present.

But if the "Watchman" office thus escaped by a narrow margin the Bush house across the street was not so fortunate. The water was high enough to flood the boiler room in the basement of that well known hostelry and they were compelled to draw the fires from under the boilers, but fortunately within two hours the water had receded sufficiently that the fires could be rebuilt and the usual pressure of steam gotten up.

The Buffalo Run got so high that it overflowed its banks and ran over the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad company but owing to the ice and frozen ground no damage was done. The Bald Eagle creek was also quite high but no special damage was done throughout the valley.

E. S. Bennett Sues C. W. Corman for Price of Coal.

An interesting hearing took place before Squire S. Kline Woodring at eleven o'clock yesterday morning between E. S. Bennett, doing business as a miner and shipper of coal in Snow Shoe township, and C. W. Corman, of Milesburg, a dealer in coal. From the evidence submitted by Mr. Bennett it appears that during the latter part of January Mr. Corman telephoned him for a car load of coal. He at first told him that he could not give it but being urged to do so he claims that he told him that the price would be $4.00 a ton f. o. b., and on being asked the quality he said that the coal was not the best neither was it the worst. The coal was shipped to Mr. Corman on the 8th of February and he accepted it.

Last Friday morning Mr. Bennett came to Milesburg to see Mr. Corman and got his check for the coal but when he came to Bellefonte and went to the bank to get it cashed he was informed that payment had been stopped. He then brought suit to enforce payment. Mr. Corman testified that the coal was so full of slate and dirt that it could not be used with any degree of satisfaction and he had a score of witnesses present, in people who had purchased some of the coal to prove his statement.

Up to the time of going to press Justice Woodring had not rendered any decision. After being held up two months on account of the deep snow and cold weather workmen started again on Monday morning on the Kelley & Wion garage, on the corner of Bishop and Allegheny streets, and hope to complete it without further interruption.

CHAOS WROUGHT WHEN ORDER SOUGHT.

State College Students Clash With Nittany Theatre Management.

Because the management of the Nittany theatre at State College requisitioned the services of three state constabulary on Wednesday night of last week in an effort to conduct an orderly house the State College students left the theatre in a body and committed acts of depredation to private property which resulted in three of them being arrested on the charge of boisterous riot.

The theatre is leased and operated by Morris Baum, who had as his manager the past two years Linn Blackford. During his management the students were accorded the first show every evening when they could josh the movie actors and actresses to their heart's content, eat peanuts and throw the shells on the floor, etc. Some time ago Mr. Blackford resigned as manager and Ralph Edmunds, a former manager of the Little theatre, Philadelphia, was secured to take charge.

In an attempt to conduct an orderly house at all times Mr. Edmunds put out a program on Monday night of last week in which he demanded good order at all times. When the show opened on Monday evening the students conducted themselves as formerly, if anything probably more boisterous, though doing no actual harm. Tuesday was featureless day and the theatre was closed. A matinee was billed for Wednesday afternoon but it was not given and the theatre kept closed owing to a rumor that the students had intended rushing the place. Wednesday evening when the students gathered for the first show they were confronted by the three state policemen.

When the house was well filled one student arose and spoke the one word "boycott" and the entire audience got up and marched out. They paraded up on the campus and it was not long until they were joined by the big bulk of the student body and then they started on a parade around the town. When on the campus the state policemen paid no attention to them but when they began their parade around town the policemen followed. The student body, however, kept on parading but every now and then a student would drop out of the ranks. When the main body had gotten the state cops out of the way the students who had dropped out secured red and green paint and painted signs on the windows of the theatre, on the pavement and other places. A large sign was also suspended on two trees with the legend "Boycott Sim," while the theatre manager was hung in effigy.

On Thursday the theatre management had two students arrested on the charge of boisterous riot and another one on Friday. In the meantime the theatres did comparatively no business the remainder of last week. On Monday, however, Mr. Baum agreed to pay the costs and withdraw proceedings against the three students on their promise to conduct themselves in an orderly manner in the future and to desist from organizing any movement against the theatre which they did and the prosecutions were withdrawn on Monday afternoon.

In the meantime the faculty called on the students council to know if there was any concerted action toward boycotting the theatre as that was unlawful and could not be tolerated. The students council investigated and reported that so far as they could find out there was no organized movement toward a boycott and the council on Wednesday evening went on record in a resolution passed deprecating any acts of boycotting or posting notices designed to injure property or business anywhere. The students council is the authoritative body at State so far as student activities are concerned.

While the "Watchman" realizes the fact that college students do many things thoughtlessly without any intention of doing harm or committing a wrong, yet on the other hand the manager of the Nittany theatre was entirely within his rights when he demanded good order at all times. His business represents a big investment and no individual or set of individuals have the right to jeopardize it in any way whatever. He had a perfect right to demand of the students the same kind of order he would expect from any other individual.

The fact may also be recalled that only a few years ago Dunn & Wood were put out of business there in almost a similar manner. They willingly granted the students the liberty of a good time and unthinkingly perhaps they took advantage of the privilege until their conduct grew unbearable even to the two ex-State students. And when expostulated with the students rebelled and it resulted in a near riot one night in which both clubs and fists were used. Such conduct is not only injurious to any business but it is inimical to the best interests of the college as an educational institution and the students themselves ought to be manly enough to realize this fact.

It is now to be hoped that out of last week's unpleasant incident a better feeling will grow up between the student body and the owner and management of the theatre. As far as the writer can understand all efforts toward a boycott have been abandoned and the attendance at the theatre is increasing every evening.
