THE LITTLE HOME PAPER.

The little home paper comes to me, As badly printed as it can be; It's ungrammatical, cheap, absurd-Yet how I love each intimate word! For here am I in the teeming town, Where the sad, mad people rush up and down.

And it's good to get back to the old lost place.

And gossip and smile for a little space.

The weather is hot; the corn crop's good They've had a picnic in Sheldon Wood. And Aunt Marie was sick last week; Ike Morrison's got a swollen cheek, And the Squire was hurt in a runaway-More shocked than bruised, I'm glad they Bert Wills-I used to play ball with him-Is working a farm with his Uncle Jim.

The Red Cross ladies gave a tea, And raised quite a bit. Old Sol MacPhee Has sold his house on Lincoln Road-He couldn't carry so big a load. The Methodist minister's had a call From a wealthy parish near Saint Paul. And old Herb Sweet is married at last-He was forty-two. How the years rush past!

But here's an item that makes me see What a puzzling riddle life can be. "Ed Stokes," it reads, "was killed in France When the Allies made their last advance." Ed Stokes! That boy with the laughing eyes,

As blue as the early summer skies! He wouldn't have killed a fly-and yet, Without a murmur, without regret,

He left the peace of our little place, And went away with a light in his face; For out in the world was a job to do, And he wouldn't come home until it was through!

Four thousand miles from our tiny town And its hardware store, this boy went

FARM NOTES.

-An experienced cattle breeder says pure-bred cattle that are undersays pure-pred cattle that are under-fed are too bony; when they are over-fed they are too lumpy, and the worst cattle of all are those that can be fed the year round and never get fat.

-Seeds of certain weeds do not germinate until all the early summer days are passed away; and then they grow so plentifully as to mat the ground. Instances are seen in the pursley and wire grasses of the garden.

-There can be little doubt that ul-timately the war will cause a great scarcity of horses in Europe, and the aim on all sides should be to breed as many as possible, for there will be a market for every one that can be pro-duced, says the London Live Stock Journal and New Hampshire, where, with a representative of the War Department, 135 horses were purchased. These horses were three-year-olds and purchased from farmers who were bred their mares to stallions owned by the Department of Agriculture. Through an agreement made by farmers and the government the government agrees to pay $150 for each colt sired by government owned stallions, provided it passes the requirements of the War Department, or the farmer, by paying the service fee, can keep the colt for his own use. -It is not too early for apple growers in Pennsylvania to formulate plans for marketing the crop of the present

Marketing plans should comprehend picking methods, grading and sizing methods, kind or kinds of packages to use, types of pack if box packages are contemplated, shipping methods and facilities, storage and methods of marketing the fruit to the best advan-

The time of picking apples varies considerably with the variety. In any case, however, fruit should mature before any picking is done. Time of picking should be determined in part, also, by the use to which the fruit is put.

Grading and sizing may be done by machinery. Some form of grading is necessary to realize the highest profit. Through proper grading one New York firm received two years ago a minimum of $3.56 a barrel for its fruit and as high as $6.00 a barrel for the best grades. One experiment in honest grading and packing is usually sufficient to convince any grower of types of storage and the type best suited to his conditions must be determined by the individual. For the commercial grower iced storage is by far the best. For the average farmer or the man catering to a small market, a different form of storage is essential.

The co-operative plan of marketing apples has been very successful in ome sections.

Extension Circular 50 of The Pennsylvania State College school of agriculture and experiment station contains valuable information on harvesting, grading, packing and marketing apples.

of the big demand for big horses in the cities. —It seems strange that there are so many farms where fruits are not grown. Most people like fruits, and there are very few localities and farms where some kind of fruits can-not be grown. Let every manager consider the value of a good orchard and then start one on his farm the first opportunity. —There is an increased interest in growing sheep both for mutton and wool. This feeling, according to spe-cialists of the Department of Agri-culture, prevails in many other States. The increase in production is being obtained from the saving of eve lambs and the introduction of good stock from the western range. —The first thing to do with scour-ed calves is to remove the cause and
