THE SERVICE FLAG.

Dear little flag in the window there Hung with a tear and a woman's prayer; Child of Old Glory, born with a star, Oh, what a wonderful flag you are!

Blue is your star in its field of white, Dipped in the red that was born of fight; Born of the blood that our forebears shed To raise your mothers, the Flag o'erhead. And now you've come, in this frenzied day, To speak from a window-to speak and

The flag of his mother-I speak for her Who stands by my window and waits and fears, But hides from the others her unwept

U. S. Army Base in France Bewildering in Magnitude.

American Port, Western France.-The colony of warehouses, docks and shops forming the base storage depot of the American armies here is bewildering in its magnitude.

Approaching the base is like coming into some great industrial city, such as Manchester or Chicago. Off to the right rise fifteen giant chimneys puffing black smoke from a group of factories. A mammoth re-frigerating plant, said to be one of

done in the last five months. At one point it was necessary to build a concrete dam forty-five feet high—a work comparing with the great Keokuk dam—in order to bring water to one of the great base hospitals adjacent to the plant, with 20, 000 beds. From these warehouses there is always a stream of supplies going forward to an army of more than 1,000,000 men. There is always a reserve mile, indicating the tremendous re-serve of this standard of life. Beans seemed to be another standard in exceptionally strong reserve, and the tobacco stock was also very heavy, with sugar, syrup, coffee, rice, bacon, po-tatoes, evaporated fruit and condensed milk showing full quotas. It was the same in the other warehouses devoted to army clothing, medical supplies, signal corps and aviation supplies—everywhere rose the mountain piles of service coats, trousers, underclothes, socks, puttees, field shoes and an infinite variety of articles for all needs and branches of this vast war machine. In the yards the open storage covered acre after acre of baled hay, covered with can-vas, with barrels, wagons, trucks and an endless array of military material.

There is No One Who Has Not Something to be Glad Of.

There is no one who has not something to be glad of. There is no trouble but there might have been a worse. It is easy to let thoughts of troubles, of unpleasant things, rule our spirits. Carlyle pointed out the trouble when he said: "Always there is a black spot in our sunshine; it is the shadow of ourselves."

It is in ourselves that many of our troubles arise. We give way to envy or jealousy and thus spoil the joy which could have been ours. Why should it make a dark spot in our sunshine that another has something we have not? Why should praise of another cause jealousy to find lodging in our souls? Why can we not glad when another is happy instead of wishing his joy our own?

Why let hatred of any one mar our happiness? We cannot like every one equally. When we find one person uncongenial, why spend time in disliking him and thinking of all the reasons we dislike him? Why not think of those we do like and total think of those we do like and find congenial?

Why should we let our hearts grow hard in hatred of any because of real or fancied wrongs? If it is a real wrong some one has done us, he has hurt himself more than he can hurt us. If we are just, we shall find many things we think wrongs only fancied ones, or things that really do not matter. Remember the things in all 16,500,000 square feet of army supplies, stored and stacked from tent to fifty feet high like a range of low mountains.

The ecean pier under construction will accommodate six to twelve ocean steamships drawing thirty feet of water. With the dock facilities of the nearby city there will be an unloading capacity of 15,000 to 20,000 tons of American army supplies a day. That is, two or three ships can be turned around every day.

At one point a pier 2600 feet long and half a mile wide is being built for general merchandise and high explosives, and just back of it is rising a huge storage depot of ammunition and high explosives.

In all there will be 184 warehouses of which eighty-four are entirely of steel manufactured in the United States and sent here ready to be put together. It has taken on an average four days to put up one of these mammoth buildings. These structures grow as if by magic, in a day, and by miles and miles. Most of these buildings, about 180 of them, are 400 feet long and 50 feet wide. Practically all of the work has been done in the last five months.

At one point it was necessary to the aggregate, at any one time, one million dollars: Provided, however, That the General Assembly, irrespective of any debt, may authorize the State to issue bonds to the amount of fifty millions of dollars for the purpose of improving and rebuilding the highways of the Commonwealth.

Section 2. Said proposed amendments hall be submitted to the qualified electors of the State, at the general election to be held on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in the year nineteen hundred and eighteen, for the purpose of deciding upon the approval and ratification or the rejection of said amendment. Said election shall be opened, held, and closed upon said election day, at the places and within the hours at and within which said election is directed to be opened, held, and closed, and in accordance with the provisions of the laws of Pennsylvania and amendments thereto. Such amendments shall be printed upon the ballots in the form and manner prescribed by the election laws of Pennsylvania, and shall in all respects conform to the requirement of such laws.
