He told the writer the pelts are worth at least twenty-five dollars, and with the two dollars bounty he has realized about eighty dollars. Mr. Stover is to be congratulated. He also has five live foxes at his home.

Mrs. Charles Wolfe was very happily surprised when her son, Lester Cummings, arrived home from Camp Lee, Va., having been discharged during the past week. We are glad to welcome Mr. Cummings back. It was his sincere desire to cross the ocean to help fight the Boche and had finally been passed for overseas service, but the war ending he was mustered out, thus putting an end to his great desire to cross the ocean. He, however, is not the only young man who will not be gratified in this, notwithstanding the fact that they are thankful that peace has come.

No Mission Necessary.

From the Williamsport Sun.

The latest appeal of Secretary Solf to Secretary Lansing that Germany be granted to send a commission here to acquaint this country with the needs of the conquered land, received just treatment and Solf has been rebuffed. America is in no mood to receive a German mission or a mission from any of the enemy countries, unless it be a delegation coming under guard as hostages. The American government has ways and means of keeping in touch with conditions in Germany without the assistance of an enemy commission. We are sending our own representatives to study the situation. Herbert Hoover will soon visit central Europe and upon his report will largely determine the extent of assistance America will give Germany. We need no mission to appeal to us. If aid is necessary, it will be forthcoming, along with justice which the whining Germans must learn to bear with more fortitude than they have shown so far.

AN AMERICAN ACE.

They stood me up against a wall, I watched six drunken soldiers crawl; I heard the brutal sergeant bawl; I blinked at the spot where I must fall. That was not I.

They reckoned I'd my message sell. They offered life. Before I fell I answered with a furious yell. And bade them straightway "Go to hell!" And—that was I.

—By James Church Alford.

The above poem, quoted from Everybody's Magazine, is pronounced by Charles Wharton Stork, editor of Contemporary Verse, as probably the best war poem produced in this country so far.

How He Got It.

"You seem able bodied and healthy; you ought to be strong enough to work," she remarked, scrutinizingly. "Yes, ma'am, I know. And you seem beautiful enough to be on the stage, but evidently you prefer the simple life."

He got a square meal without any further reference to work.—Memphis Commercial-Appal.

"What misfortune then happened to Bishop Ode?" was a question asked of the history class, according to a correspondent of the London Spectator. "He went blind," one pupil answered. "There, sir!" triumphantly exclaimed the youthful historian, "the book says so." The sentence indicated read, "Ode was deprived of his see."

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

DAILY THOUGHT

Be merry if you are wise.—Martial.

A positive rage for all shades of yellow prevails, starting with pale amber and deepening to canary color, and eventually leading up to orange and flame. Then there are the lovely warm reddish-browns of autumn foliage and wallflowers, deeper wine shades, fuchsia crimson and purples; and a splendid range of deep, bright blues; jewel and blossom shading among the most beautiful of all; white jade and malachite-greens, geranium-pink, and cerise are also having a good show in all kinds of fabrics and garments.

Of course, too, the more sober shades are also available, beige and gray being much favored. As to navy blue, it need never fear any rivalry—for, indeed, it reigns supreme, as being the most universally suitable and becoming and smartly sensible wear for daytime tailor-mades and gowns.

And this year it will, as usual, be the most general choice, for all that wine and amethyst, and wallflower and browns are being much worn.

All of these demand all sorts of new accessories to match, and for the autumn outfit, without any undue extravagance of outlay, is the choice of a soft shade of gray for shoes, stockings, gloves, hat and fur, which can then all be worn most successfully with either navy blue or wine colored costumes and gowns.

Anyone, however, who decides to be content with navy blue can find plenty of compensation and change in the way of gaily embroidered jumpers and little hats or caps to match, or in the woolly sets of scarves and caps, or toques and waistcoats, which are the novelty of the moment and are going to be the rage of the season.

In fact, fashion has most distinctly been "wool-gathering"—and, it is only to be hoped, has accumulated a sufficient reserve of stock to supply the demands which will be the result of her lavish use of wool on anything and everything.

This wool craze is, indeed, the feature, and almost the sensation, of the season, and at the moment is just welcomed as a novelty, and a very pretty and becoming novelty, too.

As to the woolly sets of cap and scarf, they are absolutely the most coveted things, a good many of them, I admit, being best suited to the framing of a pretty, youthful face, though.

Then even in a blouse of filmy Georgette you will find a collar and pocket and cuff borderings of wool—coke on navy blue, orange on gray, and so forth; while an even more striking novelty is the blouse of white or delicately colored Georgette, which is provided with long waistcoat folds and downy soft hand-made wool, with, perhaps, a striped bordering in a different color.

Then, of course, there are woolly hats and caps and toques, and all sorts of woollen trimmings for coats and other fabrics; woven embroideries on coats, hats, and blouses; and, in fact, wool everywhere, in such a wonderful variety of aspects as deserves more space than one has to give.

Women Give Out

Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every Bellefonte woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to heed this Bellefonte woman's experience.

Mrs. Sara Miller, 108 Curtin St., says: "My kidneys were weak and I had dizzy spells and headaches. At times there were black spots before my eyes. I didn't know what was wrong until some one told me the trouble came from my kidneys. I had pains in my back and suffered for a long time in this way. Sometimes a dull ache, bothered me and then again if I bent over or did any heavy lifting, I felt a sharp pain. When I sat down, I couldn't get up without help. I also suffered from rheumatic pains. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and after using two boxes, the rheumatic pains left me and the trouble from my kidneys was removed."

On October 18, 1918, Mrs. Miller said: "I very gladly confirm my recommendation for Doan's Kidney Pills, which I gave four years ago. I have had no trouble since then."
