

THINGS ABOUT TOWN AND COUNTY

Spring township tax payers can meet collector Miller at the Garman house, in this place, tomorrow, Saturday, November 30th.

All restrictions on building operations have been lifted by the government and in the future it will not be necessary to secure a permit for the erection of any kind of a building.

"True Stories of Trench Life," by Sergt. Arthur Guy Empey, will begin in the "Watchman" next week. If you read the first installment we know you will follow them through to the end.

The flu is abating at Pleasant Gap where it seems to have had a peculiar liking for people by the name of Noll. The William H. Jr., Abner and Samuel Noll families each had four members of the family afflicted with the disease.

Acceptable bail bonds having been filed with the clerk of the court on Monday morning Clyde Gray was released from the custody of the sheriff and discharged from jail until the December term of court, which will be week after next.

J. Thomas Mitchell Esq., has been appointed senatorial return judge for Centre county and today W. Harrison Walker Esq. will take him to Clearfield where the senatorial vote will be counted and a certificate issued to the successful candidate, Dr. S. J. Miller.

Work on the buildings at the government airplane landing station is progressing very satisfactorily. All the lumber is on the ground and there is every assurance that the buildings will be completed in time for the first mail-carrying flight on December 15th.

The Lyric is making a specialty of the Paramount Art-craft motion pictures and in this line the managers know they have something that cannot fail to please the public. If you are not a Lyric patron try it once and see for yourself the high-class pictures shown there.

"America's Answer," which is the second official war picture and the sequel to "Pershing's Crusaders," will be shown at the Scenic theatre next Monday and Tuesday, December 2nd and 3rd, matinee and night, for only 10 and 15 cents. The picture is very interesting and well worth seeing.

The ladies bible class of the Lutheran church will hold a baked bean supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Emerick, on north Spring street, on Thursday evening of next week, December 5th. Price of supper, 35 cents. Proceeds will be devoted to the heating fund for the church.

Next week the "Watchman" will begin the publication of Sergt. Arthur Guy Empey's "True Stories of Trench Life," which equal in interest his remarkable story, "Over the Top." The "Watchman" will be the only paper in Belleville to carry these stories and if you want to read them you should subscribe at once.

Miss Benner and Miss Mary S. Thomas will be hostesses at the December meeting of the Belleville Chapter of the D. A. R., to be held at Miss Benner's home, Thursday evening of next week. Prof. A. E. Martin, professor of American history, of The Pennsylvania State College, will be the speaker of the evening. Lieut. Henry Keller, it is hoped, will address the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gunsalus celebrated Thanksgiving yesterday by doing the family butchering and if the writer had been lucky enough to possess such hogs as the Gunsalus' had we'd take two days to butcher them. They killed two that weighed 350 pounds each and two that weighed 200 pounds each, a total of 1200 pounds. From the above hogs they got 300 pounds of lard. There surely will be no dearth of fats in the Gunsalus household this winter.

Now that colder weather prevails and winter is drawing near there is no comfort in loitering on the street, but Belleville as well as visitors in town can always find a comfortable place at the Scenic. It is not only well warmed and ventilated but the evening programs of motion pictures are all that anyone can desire in the way of entertainment and amusement. Manager T. Clayton Brown always secures the best on the market and scenic patrons are always sure of seeing something worthwhile.

The fact that over three thousand, two hundred hunters' licenses have been issued in Centre county is evidence that the deer hunters will be out in force next week. The Gentzel party will again try their luck in the Green Woods section, while the usual hunting parties from Pennsylvania will go to their old camps in the Seven mountains. While most of the hunting parties will spend the entire two weeks in the woods the "Watchman" would appreciate the fact if any one who hears of deer being killed will telephone the fact to this office.

Contractor R. B. Taylor believes in the old adage of "making hay while the sun shines" and on Sunday had a full force of men at work putting down brick on south Water street, completing the brick work to the intersection of High street. On Monday the gang of workmen began at Bullock's shop and have been laying out toward the railroad this week. Men have also been at work putting the top dressing of cement on the brick and if everything goes right south Water street will be open for travel as far as the railroad in ten days or two weeks.

BIG FIRE AT STATE COLLEGE.

Engineering Building Burned to the Ground Monday Evening.

The big brownstone engineering building at State College was burned to the ground on Monday evening, so far as it was possible for it to burn, while further demolition was wrought in the cracking and falling of the walls, and all that remains of the handsome and commodious structure today are portions of the blackened and misshapen walls and possibly the big boilers in the engine room which supplied the college buildings with steam heat and furnished the power for the electric light plant, which is also out of commission.

The fire started in the wood working department shortly after seven o'clock but just how it originated is not known. One theory is that a student might have thrown aside a lighted cigarette; another that the fire started in the conveyor used to transport the shavings and odds and ends from the room to the boiler room in the basement, but both theories are only problematical. No one knows definitely how it originated, but once started it spread with great rapidity.

All the woodwork in the interior of the building was southern yellow pine, and naturally very dry, so that it not only burned easily and fiercely but made a very hot fire so that it was almost impossible to get close enough to fight it successfully. When it became evident that the building was doomed telephone messages were sent to both Belleville and Tyrone for assistance and the Tyrone fire department responded with their big chemical engine. Belleville sent up the Uadine engine and truck and the Logan truck and a lot of hose, some thirty or more firemen going along.

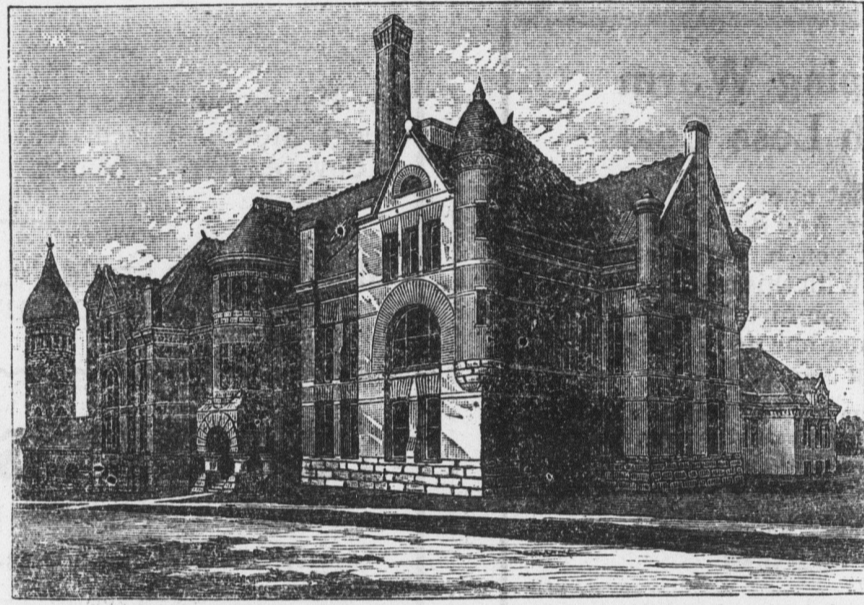

While they were unable to save the engineering building they assisted

The building was of red pressed brick with brown-stone trimmings and Saracenic capping. It was designed by F. L. Olds, architect, and had a frontage of 266 feet, being 208 feet deep. It contained 50,824 square feet or about one and one-seventh acres, had 57 rooms with a combined floor space of two and one-third acres and over four million brick were used in its construction.

At its completion it was far and away the finest building on the campus, but little was known of steel and concrete then so while its walls were of most massive masonry the interior construction was practically all of wood which made it an easy prey to the flames. The building was only the nucleus of a great many engineering units that have sprung up about it in later years and while its destruction is a very serious loss to the college it really only vitally affects the mechanical branch of the great school of engineering there.

The building was completed and dedicated February 22, 1893, with one of the most notable gatherings ever witnessed at State College. Among the distinguished persons in attendance were Hon. John W. Noble, Secretary of the Interior; Governor Robert E. Pattison, former Governor James A. Beaver, Gen. Francis A. Walker, president Boston Institute of Technology, and Supt. of the 10th U. S. Census; Adjt. Gen. Greenland, Hon. James Keer, clerk of the National House of Representatives; Congressman Charles W. Stare, Reuburn, Knobs and Ammerman, and many members of the Pennsylvania Senate and House; Col. T. H. Hudson, Col. Edwards, Col. Booth and Lieut. Paxton, of the regular army.

It was a desperately cold, snowy day but a gala one at the college. A great dinner was served in the then new Armory and in the evening the materially in saving the big annex, which is just being completed; the Nittany Inn and other business buildings and dwellings across the avenue. The Nittany Inn was on fire twice but the flames were extinguished before they did much damage, although the interior was more or less damaged by water. A peculiar incident of the fire was the throwing of a big stone weighing upwards of one hundred pounds into the Times office and just how it happened no one knows definitely. It is believed, however, that it occurred when the walls fell down. The stone must have hit something that sent it hurtling on its course, as it crashed through the upper window of the Times building and over presses and machinery back to the rear of the room, injuring no one and doing little damage outside of breaking the window.

The loss on the engineering building is complete and is estimated at $300,000, including machinery, etc. Everything, however, is covered by insurance, but the worst phase of the fire is the destruction of the heating and lighting plants. These are installations that cannot be replaced in a few days and in the meantime stoves and oil lights will be in great demand at the College. Experts are of the opinion that the great battery of boilers that supplied the campus with light and heat have not been damaged beyond repair and that after some new connections are installed a few of the boilers can be put into service within a few days. Another unfortunate result of the fire will be the enforced suspension of the work of the students in some of the engineering courses, as they not only lost their workshops but all their mechanical instruments. The building was erected in 1892 at a cost of $210,000 and dedicated February 22nd, 1893.

The fire burned itself out between ten and eleven o'clock and the Belleville firemen started home when the delegation of the Logan fire company met with an accident in which four of the members were injured. There were eight of them in their big Pierce-Arrow car with Homer P. Barnes at the wheel. At the sharp curve just as they were coming out of the college limits the steering gear caught and the brakes refusing to work the car ran ahead on into the ditch at the side of the road, which at that place is over three feet deep. Fortunately the car didn't upset, but most of the occupants were thrown out and some of them rendered unconscious. George Eberhart had his left shoulder broken, Recorder William Brown received an injured back, Register Frank Sasser had one knee badly hurt and Herbert Auman his right ankle twisted. One of the soldier boys commandeered a car and brought the injured to Belleville, taking Mr. Eberhart to the hospital and the others to their homes.

class of '93 gave its mid-winter assembly. One of the incidents worthy of recall was that in those days most of the visitors to State College functions assembled in Belleville and journeyed from here by special train. There was a great crowd in the train that evening. In fact much of the beauty and grace that was expected to add charm to the assembly. But the snow was drifted ten feet deep some places along the line of the B. C. R. R. and the train had trouble getting through as far as Struble with its eagerly waited for cargo of lovely maidens and austere chaperons. It arrived at Struble after a hard struggle only to be held up by more snow and tracks that had been greased with butter stolen from the college canteen by a lot of staves who didn't dance and therefore had no girls on the train in whom they were especially interested. The result was that the train didn't get into the college until midnight and as the lights on dancing parties were put out at 1 a. m., the visitors and their college beaux were near about heart-broken until Dr. Atherton considerably "suspended all rules" and permitted the affair to continue until 2 o'clock.

Court Dismissed Appeal in Humes Will Case.

An opinion and order was filed with the clerk of the orphans' court in Lycoming county last Friday afternoon in the Humes will case of Jersey Shore by Judge Harvey W. Whitehead in which he dismissed the appeal from the probate of the will by the register and dismissed the issue. The case which involves over $200,000 has attracted wide attention and prominent Jersey Shore families are interested.

The will, which named Mrs. Rachael H. Hepburn, the chief beneficiary and one of the executors, was contested by Margaret P. Humes and Samuel Humes, children of Mrs. James Krom. Mrs. Flora S. Humes, wife of Hamilton B. Humes, made the will over which the contest has arisen. All the parties in interest are quite well known in Belleville, having a number of relatives here.

Soldier Vote Counted.

The return judges for Centre county met on Friday and opened and counted the vote cast by Centre county soldiers in this country. Votes were received from eighteen camps but it was quite evident that the soldier boys were devoting their time to something else in preference to voting as the total vote cast was only a forty-two, and these were so scattered and mixed up that they showed very plainly that the soldiers had no interest in the election. Prothonotary D. R. Foreman certified the complete returns to Harrisburg the same day, so that the Centre county returns were the third received by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

MAN SHOT FOR WILD TURKEY.

James H. Fetzer Victim of Harris Hugg's Mistake.

The little settlement of Runville, in Boggs township, was the centre of a very distressing incident on Tuesday afternoon when James H. Fetzer, a well known and highly esteemed citizen of that locality was shot and killed instantly by Harris Hugg, of Union township, who mistook him for a wild turkey. Both men were out on the mountain hunting turkeys. They were on the woodland of Martin Brower, where they felt certain there were turkeys in hiding. Neither man knew of the other's presence in that locality. Fetzer decided to lie in wait for the birds and concealed himself between a ledge of rock and a fallen tree. Hugg quietly picked his way through the brush and as he neared Fetzer the latter raised his head. Hugg saw the movement through the underbrush and believing it to be a turkey pulled up and fired.

Hugg was from fifty to sixty yards away from Fetzer when he fired and after the shot, seeing no further movement and hearing no noise, he reached the spot he was horrified to see the prostrate figure of a man, and a cursory examination showed him that instead of a turkey he had shot James Fetzer, the bullet, which was from a 32-40 high powered rifle, entering the man's head just above the left ear and passed clear through. Horrified as he was at the mistake he had made Mr. Hugg did not lose his presence of mind, but at once made his way to the Martin Brower home and told what had happened. Word was telephoned to Belleville for coroner John Sebring but he being out of town sheriff George H. Yarnell was notified. He deputized E. S. Bennett to go out and make an investigation of the shooting and upon receiving his report of the affair decided that while it was a deplorable accident Mr. Hugg was not guilty of intentional wrong and should not be held accountable for the deed. He also gave permission to remove the body. Consequently the remains were carried to Mr. Fetzer's home by Rev. Erb, Martin Brower, Franklin Lucas, Harry Harper, Roy Eckley and Harris Hugg.

James H. Fetzer was born in Boggs township on July 6th, 1886, hence was 32 years, 4 months and 20 days old. He was a son of George Michael and Elizabeth Fetzer. His father died a number of years ago and James remained at home with his mother until her death eighteen months or more ago. On December 22nd, 1917, he was united in marriage to Miss Marjorie Eckley, of Fleming, who survives with no children. He leaves, however, one brother and three sisters, namely: Harry Fetzer, of Snow Shoe; Mrs. Annie Heverley, of Mt. Eagle; Mrs. Lulu Hawk, of Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. Elwood Comley, of Fleming. Mr. Fetzer also had a host of friends who deplore his untimely death.

Funeral services will be held in the Runville U. B. church at ten o'clock tomorrow (Saturday) morning by Rev. Erb, after which burial will be made in the Advent cemetery.

A Lease Case from Hecla.

Some five years ago John Tressler leased a plot of ground from Albina and Daniel Peters, at Hecla, for a period of ten years at an annual stipulated rental of fifteen dollars a year. He later subleased the ground to E. R. Miller, who erected thereon a small store room and during the past four years or more has kept a little store there. Recently when it became evident that the Central Railroad Company of Pennsylvania would go out of business Miller decided to move his store.

Mr. Tressler offered to give bond to the Peters' for the payment of the annual rental of the ground but they refused and brought action to restrain Miller from removing the store. On Saturday Judge Quigley filed his decision in the case in which he required Tressler and Miller to give bond for the payment of the rent, dissolved the order of restraint and put the costs upon the Peters', plaintiffs in the action.

Titan Metal Company to Switch Work.

During the past year the Titan Metal company, of this place, has devoted their entire time and output to war work, making bronze material for the government, but now that peace is practically in sight and the exigencies of war are past they are going to prove that the organization is elastic enough to switch from war work to peace times without missing the turn of a wheel. The government has already issued them a permit to solicit commercial work and they anticipate launching out in the old line of manufactured material at an early date.

In order to give them ample facilities for the work they expect to engage in they will need more room and this week they placed an order with the Truscon Steel company, of Youngstown, Ohio, for a steel frame building 130x30 feet in size to be completed and ready for occupancy by January first.

The Kaiser.

Exemplifying to a remarkable degree of reality the monstrous cruelties, barbarous inflictions and inhuman treatment being practiced by a war-crazed monarch on a civilized people "The Brute of Berlin," which will be at Garman's, Friday, November 29th, is said to be the last word in the spoken drama. Its patriotic appeal interests every man, woman and child in our glorious land, and should be an incentive to a better nationalism.

NEWS PURELY PERSONAL.
