The management of the Lyric theatre is giving the public high class motion pictures every evening during the week, and the increase of patronage proves the wisdom of this determination. Good pictures, good order and a comfortable room are attracting larger crowds every evening at the Lyric.

Goosebone and other weather prophets are predicting a green Christmas and a mild winter with only one blizzard, and that in February. With coal soaring around the ten dollar mark every householder will not doubt hope the goosebone prognosticators will hit it this year, if they never did before.

Larry Vorhis, one of the most popular students at State College from 1907 to 1910, died at Wilkes-Barre on Sunday and was buried at Tarrytown, N. Y., on Tuesday. Mr. Vorhis was one of State's star ball catchers and also made good on the gridiron. The cause of his death is unknown at this writing.

The Bellefonte public schools which were closed for the second time on November 20th on account of a new outbreak of influenza, were opened again on Monday. At this time there are very few cases of the disease in Bellefonte and the school authorities are hoping there will be nothing more to conflict with keeping the schools open.

Rev. George E. Hawes, pastor of the Market Square Presbyterian church, Harrisburg, will preach in the Bellefonte Presbyterian church on Sunday evening, coming here from State College where he will preach in the morning. Schmidt, who has entirely recovered from his long siege of illness as the result of an attack of appendicitis, left on Tuesday morning for East Pittsburgh where he will take up his old work in the Westinghouse plant. Don't stand around on the streets these chilly evenings, exposed to the danger of colds and influenza, but go to the scenic and be comfortable. Comfort for his patrons is one of the cardinal principles of manager T. Clayton Brown; another is to give them the best program of motion pictures to be seen anywhere. These are two incontrovertible reasons why you should go to the scenic.

Father John E. Downes, of the Bellefonte parish St. John's Catholic church, will go to Snow Shoe to officiate at the laying of the cornerstone of the new Catholic church being erected there. Garvey, Bishop of the Altoona diocese, will bless the church after which Father Downes will deliver the sermon. In the absence of Father Downes Bishop Garvey's secretary will hold services in the Bellefonte church on Sunday.

The patriotic service at St. John's Reformed church last Sunday morning proved to be unusually interesting. A new service flag was unfurled containing twenty-seven stars—one gold one in memory of Harry Ott, and two silver ones for Lieut. Henry Keller and Harry Fisker, both wounded in action. Lieut. Keller was present and made a most interesting talk, dwelling chiefly upon the work of the Y. M. C. A. and the bravery of the army chaplains. The "Y" secretaries and the chaplains were with the men right up in the front firing lines and were constantly exposed to death, but never shirked what they considered their duty.

MANY DEER SLAUGHTERED.

Four Days Kill in Centre County Totals 49 Deer and One Bear.

Picture in your mind a herd of forty-nine deer, all bucks with visible horns, and one good-sized bear in the midst of the herd, and it would make a very good showing, now wouldn't it? Well, that picture would represent exactly the number of deer and bear compiled by the "Watchman" as having been killed by hunters in the mountains of Centre county since the opening of the deer season on Monday morning. It has probably been one of the biggest slaughters of deer made in four days for a number of years past, but the fact that from now on the deer will become wilder and gun-shy leads to the conclusion that the bulk of the season's kill has already been recorded.

The one prominent fact to note in the list of deer killed is that with the exception of two they have all been gotten in the Seven Mountains and the Tussey Mountains, which is the same system only under different names. During the summer every indication pointed to the fact that deer were very plentiful in that region, and the very fact that the Decker hunting party have already gotten their limit of six deer, the Bradfords and the Hess-Homan party four each is evidence that the deer are not only very plentiful but are not very wild. Already hunters are endeavoring to find a solution of the fact that notwithstanding the killing of nothing but bucks every year they seem to be growing more plentiful year after year instead of scarcer, and the only decision arrived at is the breeding of the does.

Only one doe has been found so far as having been killed by mistake and that one at Cherry Run on Monday. The carcass was dressed and sent to the Bellefonte hospital and game wardens are endeavoring to locate the dens or parties who did the killing. In the list of deer killed it is noticed that only one is credited to the Allegheny mountains, while one was killed in Sugar valley, all the others in the Seven mountains. Another fact will be noticed and that is that very nearly all the deer were killed by Centre county hunters and not by hunting parties from other parts of the State.

The list as secured by the "Watchman" up to noon yesterday is as follows:

- The Decker party hunting in Decker's hollow, 6 deer, the limit for one party. Judge Quigley went over yesterday morning to spend the day looking at the deer.
The Bradford party of Centre Hall, encamped in the Seven mountains, 4.
The Hess-Homan party of Ferguson township, 4.
The Penn township party, 3.
The Potters Mills crowd, 2.
The Loop hunting party, 1.
The Pennington camp from Lewis township encamped at the Crow field, 2.
The Coburn party, 1 deer and 1 bear.
The Lancaster crowd, 2.
Woodward gun club, 1.
The Woodmeadows of Woodward, 1.
The Hosterman crowd of Woodward, hunting by the day, 2.
The Snyder party of Haines township hunting in High valley, 3.
A party of hunters from Curtin and Howard, a four-pronged buck on Fishing creek, in Sugar valley.
The Woodrow Wilson party of Pine Grove Mills hunting in Erb's gap, 3.
The Slack party on Stone creek, 3.
The Snyder-Rossmann party in Sholl's gap, 2.
The Riley-Fisher party of Boalsburg, 1.
The Modock's of Boalsburg, 1—an eight-pronged buck.
The Robert Smith party of day hunters from Centre Hill, 2.
The Rote-Wingard party at Paddy Mountain, 1.
The Greenbriar party, 2.
The Foster Woodring party of Port Matilda hunting in the Alleghenies, 1.

The amount is the splendid sum of $415. The officials of the Bellefonte chapter wish every one who had anything to do with the success of this baseball project, the managers, players, enthusiastic supporters, to feel that the entire membership of the Red Cross is indebted to them and appreciates highly what they have done. Great Aero Visitation Today.

At some hour today, probably near noon, one of the great Hanley-Page airplanes that are to be used in the transcontinental air service that will open on December 15th, will arrive at the new Richard aviation field in Bellefonte.

Ten pilots are coming on the machine. They will be the pilots who are to run the air planes over the New York to Chicago route that is charted over Bellefonte and are to make an exploration tour today.

The plane that will carry them here is the same great machine in which a hot turkey dinner was served the pilots and some guests while they were flying over Elizabeth, N. J., on Thanksgiving day last.

While the exact hour of its arrival in Bellefonte was not known at the time of going to press last night the probabilities are that it will reach here somewhere near the noon hour.

Look out for the aerial visitor, for it will be an enormous one and great doings may be expected.

Harvey, Republican candidate for the Legislature, spent $341.63, without accounting for any advertising he did during his pre-election campaign. John Noll, the Democratic candidate, spent $116.00. In the congressional fight Evan J. Jones spent $2197.91. W. E. Tobias spent $1722.91, and received in contributions $2150 and expenditures $1789.20, showing a balance in the treasury of $360.80.

All Sugar Restrictions Canceled.

Retail dealers are no longer limited in the amount of sales in sugar to consumers, and from now on it will not be necessary to keep the record of sales of sugar. Public eating-places may now use sugar in their establishments as in normal times, which means that sugar bowls may be used on tables and individuals may be given as much as desired.

W. F. REYNOLDS, Food Administrator of Centre County. On Tuesday afternoon as one of the U. S. army transports from the College was on its way back to that place from Bellefonte it met with a mishap at the sharp curve at the Kline farm. Coming this way was a big Buick car of the American Car and Foundry company, of Berwick, the driver of whom was racing to pass another car. The driver of the army truck realized that a collision was imminent and turned out with his big truck which went down over the bank into the creek. Of the four men in the truck all jumped out but the driver. Not a man was injured but one of the soldiers got his feet wet.

The Bellefonte High school basketball team corralled their first game of the season by defeating the Phillipsburg High school five by the very emphatic score of 47 to 16. The team work of the Bellefonte boys was superb and from the start to the end of the game they had the best of their opponents so that the result was never in doubt. The Bellefonte boys are determined to do their very best to make the current season a successful one and to this end we bespeak wholehearted encouragement on the part of the people of the town.

FOUR BIG HUNTERS BRAVE

Sallied Forth On Hunt of Game, but Chased Back Home by Wildcats.

Once upon a time not so very long ago—or to be more exact one day last week—four stalwart young men, evidently students at State College, sallied forth into the foothills of the Alleghenies on the hunt of big, wild game. Owing to the burning of the engineering building and the closing of the college for ten days the young men decided to spend their enforced vacation gunning for game, and the bigger and wilder the game might prove to be the more to their liking.

They took along a big tent and plenty of eats, and in order to be on the safe side took along as armament thirteen high-power rifles, a brace of big Colt revolvers, and the necessary complement of knives, etc. They evidently deemed it inexpedient to go too far away from civilization so pitched their camp just below the siding on the Bellefonte and Snow Shoe railroad at Gum Stump. They had visions of wild turkeys galore, a deer or two this week and bear enough to furnish pelts for each room in their frat house at the college.

But the wild animals in that section of the mountains were too numerous, too big and too bold for the brave hunters and Tuesday evening they engaged a man to haul them out, bag and baggage, and they returned from their trip with a lot more knowledge of woodlore and wild animal life than they had ever learned at college.

The cause of their leaving the woods was owing to the fact that that particular section is literally alive with wildcats, panthers and bear—at least that is what the young hunters aver. They claim that these depredations animals are so numerous and so bold that they persistently stole the bulk of their estates which they had stored outside their tent. On Sunday they decided to protect their little store of meat at all hazards so took it inside the tent and stored it under one of the cots. Now it happened that this particular cot was occupied by a naval recruit and he volunteered to defend the grub. Consequently he went to bed with a revolver in each hand determined to kill any wild beast that would venture to disturb their larder. In that train of mind he fell asleep but sometime during the night he was awakened by a noise, and sitting up he saw an animal with eyes that he declared looked like twin headlights on a steam locomotive. It darted from one part of the tent to another and finally getting the scent plunged under the very cot on which he lay, grabbed the meat and was gone. The young man avers that the animal was too big for a wildcat or a catamount, and just about the size of a panther or a bear.

Believing it to be the latter he was afraid to shoot while it was in the tent for fear of "the rumpus it would make," and after it got out he fired some nine or ten shots at it but missed every time. But the young hunters aver that it was nothing to see a dozen or more wild animals around their tent every night and these regular visitations got on their nerves to that extent that they decided to break camp on Tuesday evening and return to college, as the college was about to reopen anyway.

What Will Become of the C. R. R. of Penna.

Over two months have passed since the last wheel was turned on the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania but up to the present no move has been made to scrap the road and the line is still intact from Bellefonte to Mill Hall. While the decree of the Philadelphia court dissolving the charter became effective September 28th Drexel & Co. gave the citizens of Centre county thirty days' grace in which to determine whether ways and means could be devised to take over the road, but the time limit expired and the money necessary to finance the proposition and start the railroad under a new management was not forthcoming. Naturally, then, all hope of seeing the railroad resume business was given up by those most interested.

While it was a condition the people of Bellefonte, Mill Hall and Nittany valley did not contemplate without regret they could not help but anticipate an early scrapping of the road. But more than another month has now passed and not a move has been made in any direction. It is a well known fact that Drexel & Co. had been offered $225,000 by a certain firm to scrap the road but it has since been rumored that the offer for that amount had been withdrawn and one for considerably less substituted. Just what the reduction was is not definitely known, but it was evidently a price that did not appeal to Drexel & Co. And just what the next step will be in the history of the road is at present unknown.

Red Cross Membership Campaign.

The Red Cross membership campaign will be inaugurated in every city, town or village in the United States on Monday, December 16th, and will continue one week. In that time it will be the endeavor of those in charge of the campaign to enlist as members as many people as possible. The fact that the war is over does not mean that the work of the Red Cross is done. There will be work for this splendid organization during the ensuing three to five years, and the fact that a yearly membership costs but one dollar makes it within the reach of most everyone today. Therefore when you are approached for a membership when the campaign is on put down your name and pay your dollar as if it was a privilege to do so instead of a burden.

Result of the United War Work Campaign in Centre County.

The drive to raise $41,000 in Centre county for the allied organizations doing war work in the cantonments at home and abroad has officially closed, but as belated subscriptions are still coming in it is impossible to give a statement of exactly how much the county will be finally credited with.

Suffice it to say that at this time the receipts and pledges show that we are away over the top and one more great achievement must be added to the many highly commendable efforts old Centre has made during the war.

The table published herewith shows what the quotas of the various districts in the county were and what these districts have thus far reported.

The industries gave most generously and these sums were credited in nearly every instance to the township in which the plant was located, although the men, some of them, lived in adjoining townships and boroughs. In the same manner the Victory boys and girls were credited where they attended school, although both State College and Bellefonte High schools draw their attendance from adjacent localities.

Table with 3 columns: District, Quota, Contrib. Lists various townships and boroughs with their respective quotas and contributions.

As chairman for the county Mrs. J. Thomas Mitchell has made a most notable success. With the active assistance of Mrs. Robert Mills Beach, only she organized the county, looked after all the details and personally handled the correspondence and reports of district chairmen. She is to be congratulated and every member of the splendid organization working with her shares in the honor of having brought about another triumph for Centre county.

A New Departure for The Basket Shop.

The Basket Shop, after twelve years of specializing upon hand-made baskets, has decided to enlarge its scope of work by adding a new department to its shop. The basket weaving will be continued as formerly, but the shop feels that during the years of reconstruction as well as in war times, when all will be called upon to economize in every particular, there is an apparent need for simplicity in children's clothes, and that there is an opening for this line of work in Bellefonte and the surrounding towns.

The models designed by the shop are for every-day general use and have been made with the four following basic ideas in mind: Simple lines, easily laundered, serviceable materials, correctly priced.

These dresses will be shown for the first time in Bellefonte at The Basket Shop's regular Christmas sale, to be held at the State-Centre Electric Co., December 14th to December 24th. A cordial invitation to attend this sale is extended to the public. 48-11

The new materials for the refugee and reconstruction work which has been assigned to the Bellefonte chapter have been received, and there will be plenty of work for all when the work rooms reopen.
