

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

DAILY THOUGHT.

Spotlessness may do for angels—repentance unto life is the highest that belongs to men.—F. W. Robertson.

"We stained this floor ourselves," said the man of the house, who was showing an old friend over the new bungalow in the country. "Yes, we have done a lot of the work on this house; we liked to have a hand in its building ourselves. Then, too, we like to experiment and we knew the effect that we were after. Now, it was not a bit difficult, doing this floor. We wanted a certain shade of brown. So we bought a gallon of green walnuts, bruised them well and covered them with a gallon and a half of water. We let this stand over night; then, the next day, we strained it and added 5 cent's worth of permanganate of potash to it. When this was thoroughly dissolved, we got out our paint brushes and set to work. We just painted the floor with it. When it was dry, we went over it with a good oil filler and rubbed it in as hard as we could. That is how we got this lovely reddish brown tint. We gave it a coat of shellac, too, which hardened the finish and makes it easier to keep it clean; also it prevents splintering, we are told.

"We experimented with the plastering, too. We did not want glaring white walls, but the workmen said that we must have them unless we were to cover them over with paper. We did not want paper, either. When they brought in their pails of white plastering stuff, we said nothing, but calmly turned a lot of yellow ochre into them. The men were much annoyed at first, and were quite certain that we had ruined our walls. In fact, I will confess that we had serious misgivings ourselves, when we saw the results of our experiments. But we decided to wait awhile and see what would happen. This room is sunny and airy, as you see, and, sure enough, it wasn't long before the disagreeable aggressiveness and rawness wore off. Now we are enjoying the soft warm brown tones of the wall, even if there are occasional shadows on it where our coloring matter did not get mixed in well enough. It is certainly an improvement on the glaring white walls those workmen wanted to inflict upon us. Don't you think so? When you get ready to build your bungalow, we added smilingly to the caller, "just come over here and we will tell you about all our experiments and help you all we can."

Motor women are showing a decided preference for silk and satin frocks. There was a time when a motor frock of silk or satin was not looked upon with favor by the motorist, as they were not considered practical or serviceable; but with the wonderful materials of this character being given us by the American manufacturer, there need be no feeling of this kind in the future. The new models for motor frocks are of the simple and graceful afternoon type of frock, not so dressy as the dinner frock, and yet have a smart appearance which makes them quite appropriate for almost any informal occasion.

Satins, tricollettes, tricotines, serges and the various new and charming silks are all high in popular favor. The newest silks for motor wear are of rough weave and beautiful color combinations. There are some silks larly attractive and have the added advantage of giving a little extra warmth. A henna-colored jersey motor frock of fabric so fine that it resembles cloth, is designed in coat effect with a box-pleated tunic and each seam is faggotted in heavy black silk. Another interesting model is a Copenhagen blue heavy crepe of silk and wool which has an overbodice of very fine jersey in navy blue. It is trimmed with soutache and tiny metal buttons and there is a girde of Victory red ribbon half hidden under the loosely hung tunic.

Motor millinery in great variety is shown. The French models appear largely in brown of various shades. The fabric hats are high in favor and there are many very delectable models from which to make a selection. A Hindoo draped turban is very chic and is made of chiffon cloth or the soft voiles. The material is laid in little folds for the entire brim and the crown is made of braided natural raffia with little straw flowers all around the crown. Crash linen is to be used largely and will be combined with contrasting colored satin and trimmings of novel metallic flower clusters. Some very new cotton ribbons are to be used extensively on motor millinery.

Short sleeves in frocks of silk and wool are an innovation in fashions this spring, and the lengths vary to half way between the elbow and wrist.

Madame Talbot presents some lovely all-taffeta hats, the under brims faced with straw and straw embroidery as the only trimming.

The Directoire note, as earlier reported, still continues to be in evidence both in garments and millinery designed in Paris.

Ribbon is the only form of trimming seen on many of the Paris-designed hats, and there are also many hats made entirely of ribbon.

Half-length and three-quarter-length coats with plain straight in-step-length skirts are the lines adopted by several of the big Parisian designers for their spring suits of cloth.

Waistcoats of white organdie made without collars are a smart detail of combination suits of cloth skirts and taffeta or velvet jackets.

Many afternoon dresses have round necks, some finished with flat collars, others with pipings or cordings of bright-colored satin. This same finish completes the elbow or three-quarter sleeves.

Women Give Out

Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every Bellefonte woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to heed this Bellefonte woman's experience: Mrs. Sara Miller, 108 Curtin St., says: "My kidneys were weak and I had dizzy spells and headaches. At times there were black spots before my eyes. I didn't know what was wrong until some one told me the trouble came from my kidneys. I had pains in my back and suffered for a long time in this way. Sometimes a dull ache bothered me and then again, if I bent over or did any heavy lifting, it was a sharp pain. When I sat down, I couldn't get up without help. I also suffered from rheumatic pains. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and after using two boxes, the rheumatic pains left me and the trouble from my kidneys was removed." (Statement given April 21, 1914). On October 18, 1918, Mrs. Miller said: "I very gladly confirm my recommendation for Doan's Kidney Pills, which I gave four years ago. I have had no trouble since then." Price, 60c, at all dealers. Cicada or Locust.

Fruit growers should not be greatly alarmed over the appearance this summer of the seventeen-year cicada or locust, is the advice of J. G. Sanders, Economic Zoologist, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Records in recent years show diminished numbers in the reappearing broods. The cutting of timber throughout the agricultural sections has destroyed their food plants and untold millions have perished in the ground before maturity. Cicadas do not migrate, and ordinarily fly but short distances to the nearest trees for laying eggs in the young twigs.

Fruit growers should thin out unnecessary branches to a reasonable degree but should leave young branches without cutting them back until the cicada season is passed. A heavy coating of lime wash with a little lime-sulphur solution added will act as a partial deterrent to egg laying cicadas.

In spite of the fact that we have just passed through the greatest war in the history of the world, the common superstition that a letter "W" on the wings means "war" is a foolish fallacy.

Modifying the Demand.

"My friends," said the preacher, "the Scriptural rule for giving was one-tenth of what a man possessed. If you feel you cannot afford so much, why just give a sixth or a fourth, according to your means."

Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Spring Medicine

Hood's Sarsaparilla is Needed Now As Never Before— Because, although the war is over, its work, its worry and excitement have undermined your reserve strength. Because the coughs, colds, grip and maybe severer illness, have broken down your power of resistance. Because winter's work and close confinement have worn out your stomach and exhausted your blood. Can you afford the good long rest the doctor advises? If not, take a course of the famous old medicine—the one that mother used to take—Hood's Sarsaparilla. It's the finest extract of Nature's purifying, vitalizing and strength-making roots, herbs, barks and berries, such as physicians prescribe, prepared by skillful pharmacists, in condensed and economical form. If you want the best Spring medicine you'll surely get Hood's Sarsaparilla. Hood's Pills help the liver. 64-13

Wood Compared With Coal.

In heating value one standard cord of well-seasoned hickory, oak, beech, birch, hard maple, ash, elm, locust, or cherry wood is approximately equal to one ton (2,000 pounds) of anthracite or hard coal. However, a cord and a half of soft maple and two cords of cedar, poplar, or basswood are required to give the same amount of heat. One cord of mixed wood, well seasoned, equals in heating value at least one ton of average grade bituminous or soft coal.
