Similarities.
An old colored man was burning dead grass when a "wise guy" stopped and said: "You're foolish to do that, Uncle Eb; it will make the meadow as black as you are."
"Don't worry 'bout dat, sah," responded Uncle Eb. "Dat grass will grow out an' be as green as you is."

PINE GROVE MILLS MENTION.

The long rainy spell last week kept farming at a standstill.

A Word About Shot.
Why asks the Philadelphia Public Ledger, are lead shot made by dropping the molten metal from the top of a high tower? The popular supposition, it goes on to explain, is that they acquire the requisite spherical shape from falling from a great height; but it is not so. The leaden globules are as perfectly spherical when they start from the top of the tower as when they strike the water in a well at the bottom. The stuff is held at the top of the tower in a large iron pan that has a perforated bottom, and the metal drops that fall through are the shot.

In falling they cool, hardening sufficiently to suffer no deformation on striking the water two hundred feet below. This indeed, is the reason for the tower—to give the leaden globules time to cool while passing through the air. The use of the water in the well is to furnish a soft cushion for the shot to fall on. Later the shot are scooped out of the well and are put through a series of sieves to sort them into sizes.

—Only 48,768 of the 107,444 deaths in the American army during the war were due to injuries suffered in battle. In the expeditionary forces the total was 72,951. Of these 20,829 resulted from disease, 48,768 from injuries suffered in battle and 3,354 from all other causes. Deaths from disease among the troops in the United States totalled 32,737 and from other causes 1,756, giving a total for the troops in this country of 34,493.

Correspondent Answered.
"How will Prohibition affect the full Supreme Bench?" Robert inquires.
"Won't affect it at all, sir; as a matter of fact every member of that body is as 'sober as a judge.'"

SET EXAMPLE IN COURTESY

Venetians Were the First to Put Before World the Nobleness of Gentle Manners.
Pompeo Molmenti, the historian, relates that in the sixteenth century the gentle manners of the Venetian people were evident in every department of daily life, even down to the greetings in the street. The very nobles in the Seicento, the period of greatest hauteur, were wont to salute courteously by raising their cap with the left hand and laying the right on the heart. The populace was always obsequious, especially toward patriots and foreigners, and to every question addressed to them would never answer brusquely, "Yes," but always, "At your service," though this humility of expression had not so much servility as an Italian courtesy of feeling. The penalties for blasphemy were exceptionally severe. For instance, Benigna, in his memoirs, writes, under June 28, 1724: "A certain Bertelli for having used foul oaths was placed in the pillory and had his tongue cut out." Yet, ceremony in Venice was never allowed to degenerate into ridiculous etiquette. As early as the close of the sixteenth century a resolution was passed forbidding the use of glowing expressions in salutations.

Skating Has Patron Saint.
Skating is the only sport that can boast a patron saint. Her name was Lydwina, and she sponsored skating back in the fourteenth century. Her home town was Schiedam, in Holland. Her family name was ancient and honorable, and her father followed the honorable profession of night watchman. Nevertheless, Thomas a Kempis, among other notables, found her interesting, for he met her and wrote the details of her life for all to read. Lydwina was fifteen when some boisterous girl friends dragged her out against her will to skate on the frozen canal. No sooner had they started on their holiday excursion than one of them bumped into poor little Lydwina—and jammed a perfectly good rib. That put her out of the running for all time, it seems, and as she lay on her couch of pain she was comforted by strange visions, and before her death in 1483, it is claimed, wrought several miracles through her piety.

Doubts Mechanical Skill.
A "prominent business man" has offered $50,000 for the privilege of being carried as mechanic on the first transatlantic flight made in an airplane. If this offer is accepted, it is to be hoped that his mechanical ability equals his enthusiasm.—Springfield Republican.

Unemployment Increases.

Washington, D. C.—Increasing unemployment during the week ending April 5 was shown in reports from 66 cities to the Federal Employment Service, a summary of which was made public tonight. Thirty-eight cities showed a total labor surplus of 133,505, an increase of 5855 over the preceding week, while 19 reported a labor shortage totaling 4650 and nine showed an equality of supply and demand.

Points in New England reported the heaviest increases in surplus, although increases were indicated generally in the Eastern cities. The surplus on the Pacific coast remained practically stationary, while many Southern points continued to show a labor shortage.
