

ORVISTON.

Miss Jessie Herr is suffering with a very sore foot, caused by a small cut which became infected.

Jerry Shearer was kicked on the ankle by a vicious mule, Saturday, while he was shoeing it. He is unable to use it at all.

Mrs. Hanna Mayes, of Clarence, is visiting among Orviston friends, and renewing old friendships and making new ones. We were all glad to see her.

Mrs. Amelia Rickard, who has been visiting friends and relatives in and around Bellefonte, returned home on Sunday and says she had a most delightful holiday.

Cloy Shope is talking of leaving us, and we wish him all the happiness and success in the world. Mrs. Shope is, like her cousin, Mrs. Ridge, a loss to our town and a gain elsewhere.

Mrs. Frank L. Bartlow is visiting friends and relatives in Williamsport and vicinity. We are always glad to have our friends enjoy themselves, but we always miss Florence when she is away.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young and children, Charles and Theo., and little nephew, Harvey Young, motored to Romola Saturday and spent the week-end with friends there. They report a very pleasant time.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dietz and baby Korman, spent the week-end with friends at Howard and vicinity, and enjoyed a delightful motor trip to Eagleville and Mount Eagle, with their niece. They returned home on Sunday evening.

Rev. Walter Merrick is removing his household goods to the house recently vacated by Charles Powell. I imagine he had been working rather hard, as he had a very sick turn, and we all feel sure we would not like to have our pastor laid up, as he is quite a favorite here where he is a man among men, and a boy with the boys.

Wesley Emenhizer and family desire to thank, through the medium of the "Watchman," the kind friends and neighbors who came to the fore when their household goods were destroyed in the fire which consumed the cottage in which they were living at the time. He feels that words are inadequate, when he tries to express his pleasure in the new home they have helped him to furnish. Mr. Emenhizer says that nowhere are there so many true-hearted, loyal people, for the size of the place, as one can find in Orviston.

Floyd Womer, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Womer, and other friends and relatives in Curtin township, was tendered a reception at the home of his sister, Mrs. Eda Confer, in Orviston. Floyd was badly wounded during the hot fight in the Argonne forest, but the doctor expects to put him in first-class shape soon. He will return to hospital 41, located on Staten Island, this week. Despite the fact Floyd is the picture of a health and speaks very enthusiastically of the army surgeons.

William Ridge recently moved from Orviston to Bellefonte. We all miss Bill and his genial ways. He has been an employee of the Centre Brick and Clay Co. for about eight years, and in that time has proved himself a good citizen and an able churchman, who will be missed here. Mrs. Ridge is a charming little woman, and we miss her cheery companionship, but feel that as their best interest lies elsewhere, we will wish them all the good fortune possible and hope they will find it convenient to come to our dusty little town and cheer us up once in a while.

Mrs. Lulu Davis and Miss Irene Lucas, of Tyrone, spent Friday at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lucas.

Mrs. Edna Walker and two children, Ida and Cecil, of Wilmore, were welcome visitors among friends several days last week.

Mrs. Grace Allison and two children, and Mrs. Quick, of Altoona, were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Heaton on Saturday.

The many friends of Corporal Wallace McClincy were glad to greet him on his return from overseas. He was in France a year. Mr. McClincy was gassed twice.

George and William Johnson, of Wallaceport, visited among their many friends in this place. Private William Johnson has just returned from overseas, and his many friends are surely glad to greet him. He is looking fine.

Kansas Needs 200,000 Men to Harvest Wheat Crop.

An army of more than 200,000 men will be required to harvest the giant wheat crop in Kansas this year, according to A. L. Barkman, director of harvest work, United States Employment Service. Sixty thousand of this number must come from outside the State.

In making the estimate he referred to the report of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, issued last month, which said that "with a general average condition of 99.32 per cent, on an estimated total of 10,750,000 acres of growing winter wheat, Kansas never had a more flattering prospect for a record-smashing crop."

The harvest labor problem in Kansas is more difficult than in any other State and 47,000 posters have been distributed among government buildings throughout the nation. While 500 letters a day are received there from prospective workers, Barkman said many who write will not come, and that most careful distribution will be necessary to prevent a labor shortage.

Wheat cutting usually starts in the south central counties of Kansas about June 15 to 20, reaching the central part of the State ten days later. The demand for men increases as the harvest district broadens.

"Men should, if possible, provide themselves with sufficient funds to tide them over for a few days, in case of rains or unavoidable delays in securing work," said Barkman. "The harvest fields do not offer light work and the sun is often exceedingly hot. Therefore, boys and men who are unaccustomed to heavy work are handicapped in securing employment in competition with able-bodied, experienced men."

Missouri can care for its big wheat crop with local labor, Barkman said. Nebraska and States north will be supplied with harvest labor by the drift of men from Kansas, if that State, the center of the wheat belt, has a sufficient supply.—Reformatory Record.

Information as to New Bounty Law.

Joseph Kalkfus, secretary of the State Game Commission, says:

House Bill, No. 419, giving this office the authority to issue checks direct to claimants for bounty has been signed by the Governor and after June 1st, 1919, will be the law in this State. Under the provisions of this Act a bounty of $3.00 will be paid for wild cats, $1.00 for a mink and $2.00 each for foxes and weasels.

The skins of all animals for the killing of which a bounty is claimed must be sent to the Game Commissioner's office by the claimant, just as they are now sent when the affidavit is made before a Justice of the Peace. The skin must not be mutilated and the affidavit must clearly state when as well as where the animal in question was killed if the claimant hopes to profit by the increased bounty on wild cats and weasels as provided for in this bill. Special deputy game protectors are authorized by this Act to take affidavits of this character and are entitled to the same fee that a justice could claim for like services, but must supply himself with a proper identifying seal at his own expense. A paid game protector is not entitled to such fee. All individuals in the State authorized to administer oaths can take such affidavits.

Any effort to secure the increased bounty on either a wild cat or a weasel as provided for by this Act through the presentation of the skin of an animal killed before June 1st, 1919, is punishable by a fine and imprisonment, and a false affidavit in this regard is perjury.

Wash the Streets!

To dry-clean a dirty street with scrapers and brooms is no more satisfactory than to rub the body with a dry cloth as a substitute for a bath. Washing is the true method of ridding a surface of undesirable matter, whether that surface is the skin of one's face or the pavement of a thoroughfare. An editorial writer in Engineering and Contracting, notifies the managers of water-works plants that though they do not ordinarily have charge of street cleaning, it lies within their power to assist, both directly and indirectly, in securing cleaner streets. He goes on:

"And by 'cleaner streets' we do not mean streets free only of visible dirt, but streets free of the ordinary household charges that ride upon the finest grains of dust. Water, the great cleanser, should be applied daily in large quantities to all business streets, and at frequent intervals to all paved residence streets. The germ-laden dirt should be flushed into the sewers before it can spread pneumonia, tuberculosis, grippe, or influenza, and other diseases of the nose, throat, and lungs.

"It devolves upon every conscientious man who knows the efficacy of water as a sanitary agent to do his best to arouse the public and its representatives to the desirability of flushing all paved streets periodically. The superintendent of every water-works is particularly one who should never rest until his city's streets are as clean as a hospital floor. While it is his duty to prevent the waste of water by meterage and otherwise, it is also his duty to encourage the consumption of more water for sanitary purposes and for garden irrigation. A low per capita consumption of water should not be his ultimate goal, but rather as high a per capita consumption as may be attained after eliminating waste."—Literary Digest.

Never Again.

Afraid to breathe, almost the returned reveler crept quietly into his bedroom as the gray dawn was breaking. Sitting on the edge of the bed he cautiously undid his boots. But with all his care his wife stirred in bed and he presently was all too well aware of a pair of sleepy eyes regarding him over the edge of the sheet.

"Why Tom," yawned the little woman, "how early you are this morning!"

"Yes, my dear," replied Tom, stifling a groan. "I've got to go to Montreal for the firm today."

And replacing his footgear, the wretched man dragged his aching limbs out again into the cold and heartless streets.

SILKS OF GORGEOUS COLOR

Huguenot Collection Exhibited in New York Declared to Be a Marvel of Preservation.

What is perhaps the most wonderful exhibition of old French silks in the world is to be seen in the library of the International Buyers' club at 130 West Forty-second street, New York, says Scientific American. The collection comprises more than 700 specimens of silk manufactured by the descendants of the Huguenots who settled in Spitalfields and Bethnal Green, London, after the revocation of the edict of Nantes in 1685. It has lately come into possession of the International Buyers' club and is said to be the most valuable of its kind in the world.

The fabrics of the collection are as durable and the colors as brilliant as if they were turned from the looms yesterday. The disintegration of the silk fabric that one sometimes sees in Chinese mandarin coats has not taken place. Indeed, the old French silk workers did not develop their art from the ancient Chinese, who jealously guarded the secrets of their craft. The silk industry was originated in the western world by two Persian monks who had resided in China and who in about 550 brought to Constantinople the eggs of the silk worm in a hollow bamboo tube. From these contents developed the silk industry of Europe.

There is an elusive delicacy about the French silks that quite defies description. Many of the French patterns are quite up to date and are said to be in line for any revival of styles. This is particularly true of the tiny patterns in checks, blue, red, green and brown in fields of white silk, all of which are adapted to cravats. The gorgeous colors are shown in the silks of upholstery; the most delicate and evanescent in those evidently intended for women's apparel or draperies. Wonderful dyes the French weavers used, vegetable dyes that increase in their beauty as the years go by. Gold, pure yellow, brilliant gold, is shown; white, ivory, flesh, coral, turquoise, apricot, ocean green, ashes of rose, chartreuse, honey, maple, geranium, scarlet, cardinal, garnet and a thousand other tints that would be hard to match today even when we have 323 shades of navy blue alone.

The strength and durability of the silks in this collection, some of which are hundreds of years old, suggest that with reasonable care they are proof against disintegration of the ages. There is not a cracked, worn or thin sample among them. The brilliance of their dyes, some of whose formulas are at present lost to the world, is evidence that the world may never be forced to be completely dependent upon any one nation for its dyes and that the forgotten lore in the art of dyeing fabrics reveals the varied future that may be revived under the spur of necessity.

The Reason.

"Monday is generally a fine day for motorists."
"Why Monday especially?"
"Because it comes after the Sunday speeding pinches."
