Some of the girls and young men of this place seem to think that the only object the builders of the state highway had in view when they made the concrete guards at the ends of the culverts was to make them a roosting place.

Mary Kultan, a ten year old Slavish girl who lives at the home of Valent Swansae, wandered away from the other children, with whom she had gone for huckleberries on Monday afternoon, and was not found until Tuesday about noon, when a section foreman on the Penna. railroad discovered her in the woods near the Beech Creek trestle.

Last Sunday evening little Mikie, the two year old son of Michael Kuzma, wandered away from the door yard where he was playing with the other children of the family. His absence was not discovered until time for the children to retire, when Mikie could not be found. The parents and neighbors searched every conceivable place in the neighborhood. The search continued all night without a trace of Mikie. On Monday morning the state troopers, John A. Vazarik and William J. Bradley, were called into service and found the child at the old Heartline camp, nearly three miles from home. Aside from a few mosquito bites on his hands and face and a big scratch across his nose, Mikie was none the worse for his experience. place in the neighborhood. The search ience.

The Armenians

A new kind of bond is offered in aid of the Armenians. Because the war is over are you tired of giving? You should not be for millions are in need. Will you buy a bond? They have no maturity date: they never will be paid: they bear no interest. They have no money value. A queer investment you may think, yet one of the best you can make. You will be repaid by the joy that comes with the doing of a generous act. Your purchase will save a starving child, will bring a little hope where hope is almost dead.
