PENNSYLVANIA WILL STUDY TRACTORS.

Two Big Demonstrations in Pennsylvania This Summer.

More tractors will be made and sold this year than ever before; and this year's record will be broken next year—if conditions remain good and the country generally prosperous.

A lot of farmers visit tractor demonstrations and get not a thing out of them. They stand around on the head-lands and look wise—and are just as wise when they get home as when they started out in the morning.

In this State only two demonstrations of any size will be held this summer, one at Harrisburg, August 12-13; and the other at Butler, August 21-22. The way to get something out of these demonstrations is, first to attend them; and second, to observe the following suggestions in studying the tractors on exhibition:

1. Observe with great care the relative ease with which tractors pull their loads. What is the rating? How many plows are being pulled? Does the motor seem to labor under its load or does it give evidence of reserve power?

2. Is there noticeable slippage of the drive wheels? If so there is lack of traction, which might be due to lack of weight or to poor design of lugs, granting that the footing is reasonably good.

3. Observe the ease with which the operator handles his machine. Are two wheels in the furrow or are all wheels on the land? If the latter, does side draft seem to continually pull the front wheels toward the furrow?

4. Is the operator placed in a comfortable position? Is he protected in any way from the dust and dirt?

5. Do you see gears exposed where they will collect dust and mud or are they enclosed?

6. Does the tractor seem to pack the soil either when plowing or when working on plowed land? Do the traction lugs seem to be effective in preventing packing of the soil as well as in giving traction?

7. Does the machine have a neat, finished appearance, giving evidence of good materials and good workmanship? Can it be adapted to different kinds of work?

8. Observe the number and size of fitting tools which the tractor seems to pull easily.

9. Observe the work done by the different plows and note the attachments with which each is equipped. Also study the harrows and other tools shown.

Goats' Milk Pure and Fresh.

Should you like now to see the goat giving proof of its tame, trustful nature? I will tell you how the milk-peddler of our southern towns are in the habit of leading their flocks of goats through the streets, to sell from door to door the milk freshly drawn under the buyer's very eyes, writes J. H. Fabre in "Our Humble Helpers."

What would the timid sheep do if led through the turmoil and confusion of a populous town? It would take fright and run away, and in its foolish terror it would get crushed under the wheels of passing vehicles. The goat is not alarmed at anything.

Thronging of people, the noise of traffic, the barking of quarrelsome dogs, to all this it is quite indifferent. The horned company, its approach heralded by the tinkling of little bells, moves with a confident and familiar air in the midst of all this hustle and bustle, as if in the perfect solitude of the mountains. With graceful coquetry it looks at its reflection in the large shop windows and strikes the flagstones of the pavement with ringing hoof. At the customers' doors, which the flock never fails to remember, it comes to a halt. Each goat in its turn is taken in hand by the milkmaid, and the warm milk spurts foaming from the udder into the tin measure. They go on through the crowd to another customer, and so it continues, a measure of milk at a time, until the flock has exhausted its day's supply.

Fuel Shortage Certain.

Washington, D. C.—Urging congressional investigation of the coal situation, government officials and coal operators told the House Rules committee that a fuel shortage was impending.

"Coal men fear the situation may get away from them, and that prices may rise $5 or $6 a ton," declared C. E. Leshar, of the Geological Survey.

"Their advertising of the situation is in hope that this may be averted, for they know that the condition would reflect on them."

Anthracite production since January 1 was 10,600,000 tons less than last year and bituminous 74,700,000 tons, Leshar said, due to lack of demand.

"The only remedy is for the consuming public to lay in supplies now," he said.

George H. Cushing, managing director of the American Wholesale Coal Association, said the coal shortage in the East and Northeast during the war would be repeated this winter, adding that its extent would depend on the industrial activity in those sections.

Packers' Big Reserves.

Chicago.—In a report issued the officials of the Illinois Department of Agriculture declare that enormous quantities of meats, butter and eggs are now in storage in Chicago warehouses, chiefly under control of the five big packers. The report states that since the last regular compilation of figures on June 1, the stocks of these commodities have grown in abnormal proportions and that their release would go far toward relieving the present shortage and tend to reduce prices.

According to report the following quantities are at present stored in Chicago:

- Beef, 85,971,000 pounds.
Pork, 70,517,000 pounds.
Butter, 7,893,000 pounds.
Eggs, 1,280,000 cases, or 360,000,000 dozen.

The figures in the report will be used by District Attorney Clyne in the Federal government's inquiry into the high cost of food products in Chicago.

A CURE FOR SLANG.

The boy, a lad of ten, was quick to learn and particularly good in "language," as his report card showed. His vocabulary was not so choice as varied, and the slang of the street was irresistible.

"By heck, I'm cold!" he would exclaim as he came in, and at a request from his mother would inquire, "Who do you think I am?"

She explained to him that these phrases were not used by well educated people, but he was unconvinced. "All the fellows talk that way, but I can cut it out if you say so."

But he continued to use the expressions; and, while his mother did not wish to "nag," she felt that she ought to show in some way that she disapproved and that the language was undesirable, even though it was not profane.

One evening as she was reading aloud from Swiss Family Robinson and noting its formal, precise sentences, a sudden thought came to her. She acted on it instantly, and continued to read.

"It seems absolutely necessary, my dear wife," I began, "to return at once to the wreck while it is yet calm, that we may save the poor animals left there, and bring on shore many articles of infinite value to us, which, if we do not now recover, by heck, we may finally lose entirely. On the other hand, I feel there is an immense deal to be done on shore, and that I ought not to leave you in such an insecure shelter in that tent."

The boy raised her eyes in startled surprise, but the mother continued her reading:

"Cut it out. Return to the wreck by all means," replied my wife, cheerfully. "Who do you think I am? Patience, order and perseverance will help us through all our work, by heck; and I agree with you that a visit to the wreck is without doubt our first duty. Come, let us wake the children and set to work without delay."

The boy's face was red with embarrassment, which changed to anger as his sister giggled.

"That isn't there," he declared, rather impatiently, but the mother continued her reading, with no comment at all, but she inserted no more slang. She had shown him for once just how the words sounded to her.

He sulked a little during the evening, but was himself again at breakfast. And when his mother asked whether he wished another dish of oatmeal, he cried, "Yes, it's good, by—Yes, mother." He did not overcome the habit at once, but he had become conscious of how the words sounded and in time he succeeded. His mother saw he was trying, and they never spoke of that peculiar page in Swiss Family Robinson.—Christian Endeavor World.

Lightning Calculation.

The following "short cut" in addition is much used by expert accountants and auditors, also by bank and insurance clerks. The following example practically explains itself:

Table with 2 columns: numbers and their sums. 6,478.35 + 3,514.62 = 10,992.97, etc.

Instead of "carrying" from one column to another, set down the sum of each column by itself, as shown above. The sum of these smaller amounts will be the total of the whole. The recommendation of this method, where one has to work rapidly, is that if the figurer's attention is distracted in any way, thus causing an error, only the column then being added would be affected, and the mistake could be corrected in a fraction of time.—The Presbyterian.

More Modern Make.

Newell—Banks has strange ideas. He says he prefers a Corot to a Rembrandt.

Newrich—Well, as between them foreign makes of cars I don't know but I'd choose the French one myself.

A Genuine Antique.

"My dear, this egg—" "Don't say it's not good. The grocer's card on them said 'prime firsts.'" "Well, this one should have been labelled 'primeval,' that's all."

WHAT IS AN ALTERATIVE?

An Alterative is a Medicine Which Gradually Induces a Change and Restores Healthy Functions.

Always needed when you do not receive the proper nourishment from your food. When your digestion is not complete or when the bowels and kidneys do not act properly.

Are you troubled with any of the following: Abscesses, albuminuria. Do you have headache, pain between your shoulders, bad taste in your mouth in the morning, or does your back ache low down across your kidneys, or when you eat a meal do you feel distressed about two hours after eating. Do you have cramps, have you a sallow complexion, do you have pain in your sides, do you feel half sick and half well, just drag around day after day, and not sleep at night. Do you feel yourself going down hill, are you troubled with lameness, stiff joints, or troubled with rheumatism?

If you should be troubled with any of these, get a bottle of GOLDINE ALTERAC at once. Take it according to directions, and be one of the many happy ones from its use. Be sure you get the original and genuine Goldine, manufactured at Youngstown, Ohio. Get it at Green's Pharmacy. 30-1t
