All Star Sport Record.

The 1919 All Star Sport Record, containing the record of every champion and regular participant in aquatic, athletics, auto racing, aeroplane flights, association foot ball, baseball, bicycle, basket ball, bowling, boxing, golf, hockey, ice skating, pacing, pedestrian racing, rowing, shooting, swimming, tennis, trotting, wrestling, and rugby football contests, from their beginning up to the ever present period, will be mailed to any address on receipt of 25 cents. The All Star Sport Record has been compiled by experts, like Al Spink, dean of the baseball writers; Tom Foley, nestor of billiard room keepers; T. W. Cahill, famous association football expert; W. V. Thompson, the highest bowling authority; Tommy White, ex-champion lightweight and veteran boxing expert; Dan O'Leary, world famous pedestrian, and others prominent in the world of sport. The book contains 400 pages, and is full to the brim with information of value to the sporting world. Address all communications to All Star Sport Record, 127 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

The Bison Under Protection.

From the less than one thousand bison to which the millions that roamed the plains were reduced some forty years ago by one of the most wanton orgies of slaughter in all history, there has been such a steady increase under protective laws and conservation that the extinction of this valuable species is no longer feared. Seven year sago a careful survey of the scattered herds proved that the bison was coming back rapidly, when the census taker reported nearly 3000 head. It would be safe to reckon the number of buffaloes today at more than 4000.
Never will the American bison or true buffalo again surge over the western plains. Their range has been reduced from one-third of the whole United States to a few square miles here and there in our national parks and government reservations. They are not the same picturesque specimens as of yore. Living in the zoo and the park these survivors and descendants of a mighty race have that stolid demeanor of the captive. They seem out of place.—Our Dumb Animals.

Must Pay for Paper.

Recently the Supreme court of Minnesota handed down a decision in which every publisher in the State is deeply interested. There is not a newspaper man in the State but has had experience with persons telling him that they did not order the paper, and although they had enjoyed reading it for months, refused payment for same. It is impossible for publishers to keep evidence in their possession as to how every name got on the subscription list. Now the Supreme court in a recent decision covers this line of argument. Justice Dibell in his decision says: "One may accept delivery and make use of a newspaper delivered to him, just as he may order things, under such circumstances as to make a contract implied in fact between him and the publisher."

Every man who receives a newspaper, knows that the publisher expects him to pay for same, and if he keeps on taking it from the postoffice, he will, under the Supreme court's ruling, be compelled to pay for it.

Lost Three Husbands in War; Gets $172 a Month.

A negro woman is drawing three $57.50 checks, or $172.50 a month, from the government, for the loss of three husbands during the war, and will draw that amount for 20 years.
Mrs. Amanda Jones' husband died of spinal meningitis soon after entering the service and taking out a $10,000 insurance policy.
The widow Jones married a man named Smith. He took out a maximum life insurance policy in her favor, and was killed in action.
Then Mrs. Amanda Jones-Smith married private Jackson, a returned soldier, who also named her in a $10,000 policy. Influenza made her a widow a third time in less than two years.

"Here, waiter, ask the orchestra to play the Toreador song while I eat this steak. I feel like a bull-fighter."

LIKE GEM IN RARE SETTING

Lake Klauhne, Close to Arctic Circle, is Beautiful Spot Seldom Visited by Man.

Lying amid the heights of encircling mountains as a mere drop in a titanic crinkle of the continental surface, is the 50-mile length of Lake Klauhne, once reputed source of the Yukon, flowing from its 1,200 miles or more north, northwest and southwest to Bering sea. Barely 350 miles south of the arctic circle, southern boundary of perpetual snow and ice, it is compassed about with mountain ranges and peaks rising abruptly from its waters, says Christian Science Monitor.
The shores of the lake are bare of vegetation, save for the dwarf birch and the hardy northern willow, tundra grasses and lesser shrub.
Lapped in the perpetual silence of the unpeopled North, sternly isolated, untouched by human presence, save for at long intervals a casual Indian or passing prospector, Lake Klauhne has in its very silence and sternness of aspect a beauty that hardly expressed, indefinite, but none the less deeply felt nature which, conscious of it or not, is a main factor in holding the prospector or other man of the open places in his wandering ways, in the sand deserts of the South, or the mountain wilderness of the extreme Northwest alike.

Diamond Setting.

The following method of setting diamonds has been found to be the best: First drill the hole for the diamond to the usual depth, a little deeper than the greatest dimensions of the stone. The drilling should be done without lubricant, as oil of any kind tends to prevent the splter from flowing smoothly.
This being done, the hole should be closed in slightly; just enough to make it out of round. The splter is now poured into the hole, filling it completely, and the diamond, held in a pair of tweezers, is pushed into the liquid splter in the hole until it strikes the bottom. In doing this an amount of splter equal to the displacement of the diamond is pushed out of the hole, and when this drop of splter makes its appearance it is certain that there are no vacant spots under the stone.
After the splter has cooled the end of the rod in which the diamond is located can be shaped up in the customary manner. The fact that the hole is slightly out of round prevents the core of splter from working out of the end of the rod.

Introduced Lilac to Europe.

There are men who in a lesser sphere have been givers of gifts which are enjoyed by millions, though their own names may have slipped out of the memory of the world, says the Boston Transcript.
Such a man was Ogier Ghislain de Busbecq. He was born in the pleasant town of Comines, in Flanders, now half French, half Belgian, with the River Lys between, almost four hundred years ago and educated in that university at Louvain which now, alas, is laid low. Busbecq was a collector, and when he was sent by the Emperor Ferdinand as ambassador to the Sultan Suleiman the Magnificent, on his return brought manuscript and coins and plants home to Vienna. And among these plants was the lilac.

Ancient Battle Standards.

It is probable that the first flag was carried by the Saracens in their battles with the Crusaders, the latter adopting the idea, which thus spread over Europe. Long before that there had been national standards, however, as the ancient Egyptians carried before their hosts the figure of a sacred animal on a spear. A stuffed cat impaled on a stick was the forerunner of the banners now used. In the days of the old Persian empire a blacksmith's apron was carried aloft at the head of the army, while the standard of the Turks was a horse's tail.
How He "Hedged."

His Darling (crossly)—You know that I am five feet nine.
