ORVISTON.

Mrs. Newton Cameron is suffering with an attack of neuralgia.

Mrs. Amelia Rickard is home from a very pleasant trip to Bigler, where she spent a few days visiting among relatives.

Mrs. Charles Young and children, Charles and Theo, visited Mrs. Louis Hume, at the Lock Haven hospital, recently.

Mrs. Margaret Jones and Louis Macdonald, of Lock Haven, spent Wednesday with Mrs. Jones' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hume.

Mrs. Leonard Shearer was agreeably surprised, Saturday. Her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ryan, of Mackeyville, paid her a very nice week-end visit.

Mrs. Hensyl Young is very ill, following a heavy cold. Mrs. Young is far from strong at the best of times, and her sudden collapse causes her friends much concern.

Mrs. Ira Condo had her mother, Mrs. Mary Archey, and her sister, Mrs. Harold Free, and baby, of Mackeyville, for a day's visit. She was disappointed that they were unable to stay longer.

Mrs. William Ridge and babies, Dorothy and Kenneth, of Bellefonte, are visiting for a few days with Mrs. Ridge's aunt, Mrs. Amelia Rickard. Mrs. Ridge was at one time a resident of our little town and is always welcomed heartily.

Mrs. William Lucas is home again and feeling much better, we are glad to say. During her stay at Howard her sister-in-law, Mrs. Shuman Williams, died, and of course Mrs. Lucas stayed for the funeral. Mrs. Williams was well known and well liked by many Orviston people, who sympathize with Prof. Williams in his great sorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison, of Coburn, gave Mrs. Amelia Rickard the surprise of her life, two weeks ago, by coming to see her rather unexpectedly, and were welcomed heartily. They spent a very pleasant time and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leathers, at Curtin, afterward going to Bigler, accompanied by Mrs. Rickard, and returned home with a cordial "come again" after them.

Billie Hume-Jones came near going to his long home, Sunday evening. He crawled over the banister railing on the front porch and fell headlong on the brick walk, a distance of five feet, striking his forehead and knocking his left knee cap out of place. Mrs. Hume ran as soon as she heard the cries, but Hensyl Young, who lives next door, leaped (there is no other word to describe it) off his porch to the little fellow's aid. Billie was badly stunned and jarred, but is almost as good as new again. He has a nasty mark on his brow and his leg gets tired, but the great mercy is that he is alive.

Mrs. Clayton Poorman was so unfortunate as to severely cut and burn her left hand, all in the one operation. She was turning the lid on a Mason jar, containing canned fruit, and the glass broke, cutting her severely from the index finger to the thumb, laying it quite open. Mr. Poorman, as soon as he learned of the accident, telephoned immediately for Dr. Kurtz and hastened home. The doctor did not come until the next day, and the poor little woman suffered frightfully all night, and until she had medical attention. The hand is still very tender, but we learn is improving. It is best to inspect all glass jars before putting fruit into them, as they are often cracked or have a small schrent in them, which is less liable to be seen and consequently more dangerous.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bartlow combined business with pleasure on Friday on a trip to Williamsport, shopping and visiting some of their old-time friends, including Mr. Bartlow's mother. They report a fine time, but state that sugar is a scarce article in Williamsport, as well as here. People are losing money by having fruit rot on their hands, and what is worse, without sugar is going wrong. There is a big "Dark Man" hidden in the fence somewhere, as sugar is surely not as scarce as reported. Somebody is holding on with both hands some place. We may be all wrong, but the scribe thinks there will be a big reckoning some day. Last year when the sale of sugar was restricted there were lots of people who were unable to obtain their quota, while others had sufficient for all their needs. Personally, the scribe used white syrup, and the youngest said, "wet sugar."

Three little Orviston ladies autored to the Lock Haven hospital, Saturday, to have their tonsils removed. Mr. and Mrs. George Walker, of the lower works, took their daughter, Mildred; Mr. and Mrs. Hensyl Young, of the upper works, their daughter, Relda; and William Walker his daughter, Olive. The girls were all in poor health, caused by their enlarged tonsils, and the parents thought it best to get it all over at once. All are improving and expect to be able to attend school in a few days.

Little Relda Young came near leaving her loving parents last Wednesday evening. After having her tonsils removed at the Lock Haven hospital, Saturday, September 13th, she was brought home. Previous to the operation she had been ill and being quite young had been very low, and doubtless the trip was too much for her. After the operation she did not seem to gain and kept losing ground. Wednesday she began bleeding at the mouth and although the doctor was summoned, he seemed to think it nothing serious. The little girl grew gradually worse, and after many trials another doctor was secured, who came up as soon as possible. Charles Powell going after him with his auto. He arrived just in time to prevent another hemorrhage, which would have been fatal, as she had lost almost two quarts of blood. She is still very fragile, and unable to leave her couch. She had in all about six hemorrhages. It is a wise thing to leave patients undergoing an operation, however slight, in the hospital under scientific care until all reaction is past. The most pitiful part of this case is that the little mother is very delicate, and had been ordered to keep her bed for a time, but anxiety for her little daughter, who tried to be patient and good, made Mrs. Young leave her bed to care for her, and the excitement made her feel very bad, so that her condition is not at all of the best.

Our old-time friend, R. R. Randolph, of Union county, spent Monday in town looking up a place for a comfortable home, as he contemplates again making this place his home. Fred went from here to Salsburg to help Oliver Gibbons finish his fall seeding, the latter having been on the sick list for some days. Fine Grove Mills folks will gladly welcome the Randolph family upon their return here.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Harpster, of Pennsylvania Furnace, was the scene of a happy gathering on Tuesday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Harpster gave a home-coming party in honor of their three sons who served overseas in the world war. Oscar W. and Lawrence B. Harpster served in the Third division and returned home some time ago, but Howard Dewey Harpster, who served in the Fourth division, only recently returned home. About two hundred friends of the young soldiers were present and the gathering proved a very happy occasion for all.

Rehabilitation Law.

Washington.—The vocational rehabilitation law was amended by Congress on July 11. Under the law as it now stands the Federal Board for Vocational Education, the agency charged with its administration, is not a free lance, as apparently many would have it be, but must work within the limits of the law. It may be interesting to note some of the duties and limitations of the board in its dealings with disabled soldiers.

The federal board can: First. Provide training for men whose disabilities due to service prohibit their return to the old jobs.

Second. Provide allowance for families of men in training under Section 2 of the act.

Fourth. Provide free tuition for men whose disabilities do not constitute a vocational handicap, but who desire training for improvement.

Fifth. Certify disabled men who are otherwise eligible for civil service positions.

Sixth. Provide equipment—such as books, tools, etc.—for men in training.

The federal board cannot: First. Provide support for all disabled men.

Second. Provide training for all disabled men.

Third. Provide training for men whose disabilities do not prohibit a return to their former occupations, unless they have been awarded compensation under the bureau of war risk.

Fourth. Provide maintenance during training for men whose disabilities due to service do not prevent their return to the old job.

Fifth. Provide allowances for the families of men in training under Section 3 of the act.

Sixth. Provide support for disabled men eligible for training immediately on discharge from the service.

A Clerical Diplomat.

Said a lady to her pastor: "The gentleman in the pew behind ours, when he tries to sing, destroys all my devotional feeling. Couldn't you ask him to change his pew?"

"Why," replied the minister, "I have a little delicacy about doing that especially if I have to explain the reason; but—I might ask him to join the choir."

Quite a Difference.

"You don't see many of the old fashioned girls nowadays, do you?" asked a visitor.

"No," sighed the boss of a local marriage bureau, "now the girl who used to say 'Ask papa' has a daughter who cries, 'Give her more gas, George, father's gaining on us!'"

GOLDINE DID IT.

Put Mrs. Clarence Kont, 500 Parker St., Conneaut, Ohio, On Her Feet.

She says: "For several years I had rheumatic pains and lameness through my joints and muscles. I had headaches in the front of my head, through the temples. The pain was severe and constant and at times almost made me frantic. I had catarrh, dropping of mucus in the throat and would take cold easily. I was short of breath, had dizzy spells, was weak, nervous and trembled. The inflammatory and muscular rheumatism affected me all over the body. I had pains over my liver, my tongue was coated, skin scaly. I was constipated, had no appetite. My kidneys were bad, I had bladder trouble and was generally in poor health."
