At the recent session of the Free Methodist church conference held at Warren Rev. G. B. Tingue was returned to the church at Fleming and Rev. G. J. Kelley was continued as presiding elder of the DuBois and Tyrone district.

C. Y. Wagner submitted two propositions to borough council in connection with the Phoenix mill. One was to purchase the plant at the price the borough has been obligated to pay and then lease the water power to the borough at an annual rental of $600. Proposition No. 2 was to lease the plant, exclusive of the water power at an equitable yearly rental with an option to purchase the same, exclusive of the water power, at the end of four years for $15,000, or water power included for $25,000. The propositions were referred to the Finance committee.

A communication was received from the State Department of Health calling attention of council to the fact that complaint had been made regarding foul air issuing from the sewer at the entrance of Burrows alley. Inasmuch as no such complaint has ever been made to council members of that body rather resent the complaint made to the State Department of Health over their heads and the secretary was instructed to write the Department for the name of the complainant. In the meantime the matter was referred to the Street committee for investigation.

Residents of Bishop street sent to council a petition requesting the oiling of that thoroughfare as the increased travel thereon on account of it being a detour for the State Highway Department has resulted in almost a continuous cloud of dust. Inasmuch as the borough has the dust-aline matter of oiling the street was referred to the Street committee. The Street committee presented the report of the borough manager for the month of October showing a total of $324.70 collected from various sources and numerous repairs upon the streets and alleys.

The Water committee presented the borough manager's report as it affects the water department, including a suggestion that a new spiral water meter be purchased for use at the water tank of the P. R. R. Co., as the kind of meter now in use there is not adapted to such high pressure work and breaks frequently. The new meter suggested will cost in the neighborhood of $75.00 and council authorized the purchase of one.

The Fire and Police committee reported that there had been considerable complaint about the police not doing their duty and that the committee and burgess had decided to put the force under the direct control of the borough manager. In making the change it was decided to do away with a "chief" and place both men on the same level, and to equalize the wages it was recommended that policeman Yerger's salary be increased from $70.00 to $75.00 a month. The committee also reported that a six week's leave of absence had been granted policeman Harry Dukeman and that A. J. Robinson had been appointed to the force for that period of time.

The Finance committee reported a balance of forty dollars in the hands of the treasurer on October first and presented for renewal notes aggregating $11,800, which were authorized. Bills to the amount of $3,900 were approved and council adjourned.

WITH THE BOROUGH DADS.

Burgess Walker Makes Appeal for Better Fire Fighting Apparatus.

The six active councilmen were present at Monday night's regular meeting, the first in five weeks. Jacob Marks, M. R. Johnson and George Eberhart were present representing the Logan fire company and through burgess W. Harrison Walker submitted to council a proposition to turn over to that body a fund of $1,500 which they received from the sale of the company's Pierce Arrow car on condition that council purchase for the company a modern chemical fire truck, of a design and capacity that will meet with the approval of the company. In presenting the proposition burgess Walker took occasion to point to the fact that Bellefonte's volunteer fire department is sadly lacking in up-to-date fire fighting apparatus, while neighboring towns are spending thousands of dollars in purchasing the best that money can buy. The matter was referred to the Fire and Police committee with the request that they make a report on the same at next meeting of council.

Burgess Walker also informed council that the War Department is sending to Bellefonte one of the captured German "77" guns, and naturally a suitable place will have to be selected for a permanent resting place for the gun. Mr. Walker suggested the triangle in the Diamond, known as the "safety zone," where a concrete foundation can be erected and the gun anchored permanently with its muzzle pointing down High street. The matter was referred to the Street committee.

A communication was received from tax collector J. Kennedy Johnson requesting an increase in commissions allowed him from three to five per cent. during the rebate period and an equitable increase after the expiration of the rebate period, and the matter was referred to the Finance committee.

The propositions were referred to the Special committee.

Inasmuch as no such complaint has ever been made to council members of that body rather resent the complaint made to the State Department of Health over their heads and the secretary was instructed to write the Department for the name of the complainant. It was Some Altercation.

The Marklesburg correspondent of the Huntingdon Globe says: "During an altercation between C. H. Buckius, road engineer of the State Highway Department, and Daniel Brindle, last week, Mr. Brindle suffered a double fracture of the lower jaw. He was brought for treatment to the office of Dr. Koshland and later removed to the Blair Memorial hospital, Huntingdon, to have an X-ray examination and a dental splint applied."

Contractors George Rhoads and Son on Monday completed the foundation for the new radio station in connection with the Bellefonte aviation field and Gehret and Lambert are now at work on the erection of the station building.

As a good part of the equipment is already here it ought to be only a matter of a few weeks until the station is completed and planes can then get in communication with the Bellefonte field by wireless.

After so closely following the college work of Miss Anna Shuey, now Mrs. Whiting, through the columns of the "Watchman" and noting her many prizes and honors while at Dickinson, it is scarcely necessary to call the attention of our readers to what they already know was an error in our comment upon her school work. Mrs. Whiting, the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Shuey, was a member of the class of 1916 Dickinson College, instead of the Seminary, as we inadvertently put it.

Penn State opened its football season on new Beaver field last Saturday by defeating Gettysburg by the score of 33 to 0. The visitors held the State team without scoring in the first half of the game but a shake-up between halves put pep into the State aggregation and during the third and fourth quarters they gave a better account of themselves with the result that the pigskin was safely placed behind the Gettysburg goal posts five times. The game brought to light the fact that State has good football material and with proper development it should make a winning team.

The United States Navy is seeking enlistments of young men to help man its ships. The life of a sailor these days is very different from what it was twenty or thirty years ago. Then it was regarded as almost a dog's life, but today it has been elevated to the plane of any other calling in life and has the advantage of giving the young man who enlists an opportunity to acquire various trades as well as affording him the chance of seeing much of the world. Any young man who is at all interested should read the advertisement published on the 6th page of today's paper.

Mr. N. Clair Doyle, manager of the Bellefonte office of The McVey Co., real estate dealers, whose head office is in Altoona with other branch offices in Johnstown and Mt. Union, was in Altoona last Friday attending the first annual business meeting and banquet of the company held at the home of Mr. Charles McVey, the president and general manager. Though The McVey Co. has been doing business the past four years this was the first meeting of that character and as evidence of the success of the firm is the fact that at its head office in Altoona and different branch offices it now gives employment to eleven people, all of whom were present at the meeting. The McVey Co. has already established a clientele in Bellefonte and Centre county and has bright prospects for good business in the future.

Two more prisoners were foolish enough to think they could get away from the penitentiary and they tried it on Sunday evening. They were Homer Davis, sent up from Lawrence county, and Alexander Johnson, colored, of Allegheny county. They had one night's liberty under the stars but were picked up by a guard early Monday morning as they were walking down the railroad toward Milesburg. Railroad trackmen saw the two men go by but not knowing they were escaped prisoners did not molest them and thus virtually allowed one hundred dollars in rewards to slip through their fingers. The prisoners were taken before Judge Quigley on Monday, given the customary sentence, which in their cases runs from two to three years, and on Tuesday morning they were taken back to the old institution at Pittsburg. And thus ended their attempt to gain freedom before their time had legally arrived.

In the regular report of the borough council proceedings published in another column will be found the proposition of the Logan fire company to turn over to borough council the sum of $1,500 if council will purchase for the company a good chemical truck. While at a casual reading the real necessity for such a truck may not be apparent, but when the fact is considered that practically all of the equipment the two fire companies have are horse drawn, and horses for such a purpose are next to impossible to secure now, at least as promptly as they are needed in time of a fire, the proposition is one that deserves the most careful consideration. Another fact to take into consideration is that the big majority of fires could be extinguished in their incipency could the fire companies get there promptly and with the proper kind of equipment with which to fight it. And the damage done by the small amount of chemical compound used would be very slight compared with the damage always done with water. These are all incontestable facts and should be carefully considered. The only question that can be brought up against the purchase is that of finances, but other towns have laid a bonded debt for the purchase of up-to-date fire apparatus, and the question for the Bellefonte council to solve is which way will display the greater wisdom: Go further in debt for the purchase of proper equipment for the fire companies or run the risk of getting along with the present equipment and taking the chance on no fires occurring.

AMONG THE ARMENIANS.

Bellefonte Young Woman Writes of Her Work Among the Refugees.

The following letter was received by Mr. Charles F. Cook from his daughter Elinor (now Mrs. Robert MacDowell), who is doing uplift work among the Armenian refugees in Kars, Russia, and it tells in a direct way of the conditions and needs of those people who have been driven from their country and in addition to being homeless are almost friendless:

Kars, Russia, July 16 '19. Well here I am at last! The ride over from Jolloghli was beautiful. One winds around and around, up the mountain side, almost to snow line, and coming from eighty feet below sea level, and terribly hot weather, it was some contrast.

Kars is in the Caucasus mountains and our house is on a hill outside the city. It was a military city and few civilians lived here—everything in barracks, towers, etc., built by Russians. Our house is an officer's billet—forty rooms—fifteen of which we use. The Russians surrendered, or gave over the city to Armenians, who were chased out by the Turks, who in turn were chased out by the English in March, and they gave over the city to the Armenians in May.

My work for the present is helping in the office and taking charge of material in stock, as well as arranging some means of distribution, and it is no easy job, I assure you.

Kars has been badly neglected, and has almost nothing, compared to other stations. I think it will be one of the big orphanage centres, and as soon as supplies, etc., arrive, I will have plenty of orphanage work to do.

This week we are expecting five hundred orphans from Erivan, next week four hundred from Tiflis, as well as one hundred others as soon as I can take them.

I will have two barracks for orphanages, each holding six hundred and fifty. Will put girls in one and boys in one, and am so anxious to get started.

My, these orphans are so different from those in Baku, who have been a long time in orphanages. These thin, little tads just sit playing with a string—no, not playing, just holding it.

I have the things I brought from home for a starter to use in kindergarten work, and if the box you sent arrives, as I sincerely hope it will, I can use everything to advantage. Do thank every one for me, wish I could write each one a letter of thanks, but that is out of the question.

Many refugees pass through Kars every week on their way home to Armenia. Things are still very unsettled in Central Turkey. The government feeds the people. We confine our work to the children. Flour and bread is given daily. Each person is now allowed three-fourths of a pound of bread each day, and when one considers that they live almost entirely on bread, it is a small amount. But even on those short rations the flour may not hold out. The spirit of revolt has seized the people and they are striking, both for us and for the government, and we are hoping by cutting off the bread allowance to force them to go to work.

After five years' wandering they naturally do not know their own minds and follow any leader, and almost all the best type of Armenians have been massacred. Then those Russian Armenians are not the strong type the Turkish Armenians are.

I do wish all the Americans and English here could realize how different in environment, heritage, and in every other way these Armenians are from them, and maybe some would love them more. They seem to have expected to find people of the average American type. Had we Americans been refugees for five years, living often upon grass and roots as the very best and wealthiest Armenians often had to do, I wonder if we would not have become degenerate too—at least temporarily.

Why, little wizen, dried-up people come here, and it is hard to tell whether they are old men or children, and they never laugh. Those Miss Bond has had for three months are brightening up and taking a new interest in life. For some, it is their first interest, for being born on the march they know nothing but starvation and dirt.

Now that cold weather is coming on I hope we can take more in.

Gregory Bros. Sell "Candyland."

The Gregory Bros., who have conducted the Candyland store in the McClain block, alongside of the "Watchman" office ever since they opened the same five years or more ago, on Wednesday sold out to James Caldwell and Edward Osmer, who will conduct the same in the future. The Gregory Bros. hereafter will devote all their time to their store at State College. The new proprietors are enterprising and courteous young business men and the "Watchman" wishes them success in their new undertaking.

Whose Letter Was It.

In Monday's mail the "Watchman" received an envelope addressed "Watchman Office, Bellefonte, Pa." Upon opening it we found that it contained not a thing and hoping that some one in Pittsburg, where it was posted, might have intended to send us something worth while we publish this notice with the hope that if such was the intention we want to inform the sender that the supposed enclosure didn't get here.

Who Sneaked Our Flivver?

It is a wonder that all of Bellefonte and many parts of Centre county were not kept awake most of Tuesday night for some one, or more, took possession of Geo. R. Meek's rattlin' old Ford and rode about six gallons of gasoline away.

The flivver was left standing in front of his house Tuesday night and when he emerged next morning it was gone. The first impression of the owner, of course, never conveyed an idea that anybody could have stolen such a thing so he made inquiry in the neighborhood thinking it possible that some kindly disposed person had taken it in out of the cold. But no such good fortune befel it. Then he got to thinking that Henny's child of 1915 was, on occasion, still fond of a race and that it might have started off alone to give Mitch Cunningham, another has-been runner, a trial of speed. But it wasn't down where Mitch hangs out.

Later it was found in front of Blackford's restaurant on Bishop street, with nothing gone but its blanket.

Mrs. Blackford said she had heard a noise in front of the place between four and five in the morning and upon looking out of the window had seen two boys, both in their shirt-sleeves and hatless, wrestling with the critter. Finally they gave up trying to get it to move another inch and when one of them said: "Let's beat it," they both ran up Bishop street.

Last Tuesday night assistant county superintendent Milford Pletcher parked his Ford in the Diamond and when he went to start home in it found that the switch key was missing. As Mr. Meek had removed the switch key from his car it is quite likely that the rascals took the one from Mr. Pletcher's in order to get the other one going.

About three o'clock the same morning S. D. Ray saw two boys get into Dr. Reed's car but before they could get off with it he frightened them out and they got away without identification.

Modern Health Crusade Work in Centre County.

Elizabeth B. Meek, by invitation of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, went to Phillipsburg, Monday evening, to give an illustrated talk on public health and the Modern Health Crusade work. Last year the Society for Prevention of Tuberculosis, instead of confining its work to the prevention and cure of tuberculosis, launched into a general educational campaign on public health, called the Modern Health Crusade, for children of school age in grades one to eight. The scope and result of the crusade in the schools of Bellefonte, was published in the "Watchman," June 6th, and the list of officers and pupils who had earned the title of "Squire" in issue of June 13. It is the purpose of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society of Phillipsburg, of which Miss Laura Crissman and Miss Carrie Hess are leaders, to introduce the Crusade into the schools of Phillipsburg and this work will be in charge of Miss Wynn, a graduate of Goucher, who has volunteered her services and who will have the aid of several others interested in this important work. Systematic plans are being made to extend the Crusade into all the schools of Centre county and thereby emphasize a few simple health truths as an aid to teachers in interesting pupils in health work. The members of the Society ask the cooperation of all teachers in this earnest endeavor to help make our county the healthiest possible.
