AVIATOR BADLY INJURED IN FALL OF PLANE.

Miraculously Saved from Burning to Death by Heroic Work of Boyd Sampsel.

That U. S. mail pilot J. T. Murphy is alive today with good chances of recovering from serious injuries sustained when his plane fell in a tail spin out on Humes' farm on Sunday The thimble bee of the Ladies morning is entirely due to the bravery Aid society of the Reformed church and prompt action of Boyd Sampsel. Had it not been for him the pilot would have been burned to death, and the very fact that Mr. Sampsel took his own life in his hands when he saved pilot Murphy not only places him in the ranks of heroes but surely entitles him to recognition at the hands of the Carnegie Hero Commission. Pilot Murphy is a new man in Bellefonte, having come here from Cleveland last Thursday to trail one of the older pilots to Cleveland in order to learn the route. The bad weather of Friday and Saturday precluded any attempt to make the trip on those days. With the fair weather of Sunday Murphy was scheduled to trail pilot Ellis to Cleveland, flying light. Immediately after the arrival of the mail plane from New York the the basement of the church Friday western fliers made preparations for their trip. Pilot Ellis took off first from the Bellefonte field and circled around awaiting pilot Murphy. A few seconds later the big gas tank exploded shooting the flames in all directions, but fortunately the pilot had been saved from the wreck, and that is where Boyd Sampsel got in his work.

It seems that Mr. Sampsel had gotten out his car to come to Bellefonte but for some inexplicable reason decided not to do so but go over and watch the planes. He put the car in the barn, went over toward the aviation field and sat down on a stone fence, taking out his knife and whitpart of the farm in a year but just felt like going there Sunday morning. He saw the New York plane come in, watched Ellis take off and also Murphy. Aviator Krader Falls at Gordon.

H. M. Krader cracked up at Gordon, five miles from Snow Shoe, yesterday shortly before noon and was quite painfully though not seriously hurt. He left the Bellefonte field at eleven o'clock for his regular flight to Cleveland. Shortly before reaching Gordon his plane developed trouble either because of a loose connecting rod or for the reason that the engine was loose on the frame and being in the mountain district he decided to make the first landing possible in order to investigate the cause of his trouble. A little clearing near Gordon attracted him and he dropped for it, but as it was surrounded with trees he couldn't see that it was also filled with stumps and they caused the accident in land-

The nearest habitation was half a mile distant so that it was some time before any one got to the scene and when they did arrive they found Krader unconscious beside a tree some distance from his wrecked plane.
