As the summer campaign for a cleaner Bellefonte will open next week, every resident of the town is urged to join in helping to make for it a reputation for beauty, such as no other place in the State may have. If you have your own property looking fit, help those who cannot do for themselves; there are many in our town. Do not let the opportunity go by for doing something for Bellefonte.

The attention of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission has been called to the heroic action of Boyd Sampson in saving the life of aviator J. T. Murphy a few weeks ago at the risk of his own life, and efforts are being made on the part of certain business men and others of Bellefonte to see that he gets due recognition. According to past decisions of the Commission Mr. Sampson should be entitled to a medal and a grant of $2,000. Here's hoping he gets it.

The Pennsylvania Department of Forestry has awarded the first contract for the cutting and removal of chestnut timber from state lands to a Bellefonte man, Harry Mauck, who will cut the chestnut on a tract of twenty-five acres in Furnace Hollow, Franklin county. The timber will be manufactured into telephone and telegraph poles, mine props, etc. Other contracts will be awarded in the near future and as it looks now there will be no use going chestnutting on state lands next fall.

Times used to be that when the circus posters were put up the small boy got busy running errands and doing odd jobs for pennies and nickels, hoarding the same against the day the elephant came to town and the big tent was a greater attraction than a dozen Sunday school picnics. But not so, nowadays. The boy not only demands his entrance money, but money for pink lemonade and peanuts, and a great many of them want to be hauled to the show grounds in automobiles; and they get it, too, and then we all wonder why the expensive tastes as they grow to manhood.

In renewing his subscription to the "Watchman" for the ensuing year postmaster D. M. Kerlin, of Rudd, Iowa, says: "I am sixty-eight years old and have read the "Watchman" ever since I could read anything, and I enjoy the news in it from the first to the last page. I like your stand on the issues of the day and am satisfied there are going to be some hot times in the presidential campaign. I don't believe the man has yet been mentioned in either party who will be the nominee for President. I notice in the "Watchman" many changes in the old town of my youth—the old are passing away and making way for the younger generation."

Two Republicans in Walker township voted the Democratic ticket on Tuesday, but they didn't do it of their own volition. They were given the tickets in mistake by a member of the election board who did not discover the error until the men had deposited their ballots and gone on their way. The two men in question may be good Republicans but they evidently failed to catch the high sign from headquarters telling them who to vote for, else they would surely have discovered the mistake themselves. But they can console themselves with the fact that they voted for some good men, anyway, and the votes had to be counted because the board could not pick out the identical ballots.

MAY TERM OF COURT.

Only Three Bills Given to Grand Jury, One of Which was Ignored.

Judge Quigley's action last week in sending the two Snow Shoe boys charged with the murder of Jarvis Hall to Morgantown instead of holding them for trial this week robbed the May term of court of the only case that would have formed an attraction for the morbidly curious, but it was undoubtedly a wise and humane act.

That case being thus out of the way when the grand jury was polled and sworn at the convening of court on Monday morning the district attorney had only five bills to present, and two of those were later withdrawn which left only three bills for consideration. The grand jury, of which W. C. Cassidy was foreman, found two true bills and ignored one, examined the public buildings and got through with their work in ample time to be discharged before evening. In their report they stated that they found the jail in bad condition and recommended some repairs as well as repairs to the sheriff's residence. The court house was reported as in good condition and janitor John Love was complimented in keeping it in such fine shape.

The first case tried by the jury on Monday was that of W. C. Rowland vs. The Athletic Store, of State College. This case was the result of an action brought to recover a balance due on uniforms furnished for the old Boal troop. According to the plaintiff's testimony the W. C. Rowland store, in Philadelphia, engaged to make the uniforms for the troop for something over $800. The uniforms were made and sent to The Athletic Store and Mr. Rowland received $750 on payment. No attention being paid to his demands for full payment he brought action to recover the sum of $169, being the balance with interest. In the interest of The Athletic Store Major Wilbur F. Leitzell testified that he personally went to Philadelphia and made the contract with Mr. Rowland for the uniforms and that he had in no way made The Athletic Store a party to the contract. The jury returned a verdict for the defendant.

The next case taken up was that of the Commonwealth vs. John Smith, colored, charged with assault and larceny. Prosecutor, C. W. Owens, of Philipsburg. The prosecutor, who is a tailor, testified that the defendant came into his store almost a year ago and selected material for three suits of clothes, for which he was to pay $150, or fifty dollars a suit. A preliminary payment of $25 was made. Two or three weeks later another payment of $31 was made. The young man was working in the neighborhood of Philipsburg but left there last fall to go to school in New York, but before doing so made another payment of $49 on the clothes. Later he sent Mr. Owens $11, making a total of $116. Mr. Owens testified that Smith came to his store in March and after throwing pepper into his eyes took three suits which were wrapped in a bundle and tried to make a getaway with them.

In his own defense Smith testified that on the day in question when he went after his clothes he paid Mr. Owens the balance due, or $34, but that that gentleman demanded an additional ten dollars a suit because of the rise in price of material and that he refused to pay it and took the clothes and left the store. Mr. Owens denied that he had demanded more money whereupon the defense produced a letter written by him to Smith in which the demand was made and which Owens finally admitted he had written. Smith also denied having thrown anything into the tailor's eyes when he took the clothes. He maintained that he just took them, walked downstairs and out of the building and that Owens followed him crying "stop thief, murder, etc." He said he "walked down the street a distance until the multitude began to gather when I jess' naturally increased my speed." He ran into a house and the testimony differed as to how he got out, but he was later captured and sent to jail for trial. The case was still on trial when court adjourned on Monday evening until Wednesday morning.

The case was compromised at the opening of court on Wednesday morning, Mr. Owens agreeing to give the defendant sixty days in which to pay the balance of $34 he claimed due on the clothing.

The Academy Minstrels.

The Academy minstrels made their initial performance for this season in the opera house last night and confirmed the advance notices that they are the real thing in amateur minstrelsy. They made good the claims of the management that the singers this year are the most talented and the end men the funniest that ever appeared in the Academy aggregation.

The minstrels will be repeated to night and tomorrow night and the friends of Troop L are urged to remember that one of the objects of the three performances is to raise a fund to purchase suitable furnishings for the soldiers club room in the armory. No matter where you live, good auto roads lead to Bellefonte and the Garman opera house and you'll get a pleasant ride as well as a big evening of splendid entertainment. The chart is now open at Parrish's drug store for tonight's performance and will open at 9 o'clock tomorrow (Saturday) morning for tomorrow evening's show. The Postoffice Department has announced that the mail carried on the New York to Washington route has shown a saving of $42,000 in the year and on the New York to Chicago route a saving of $100,000 for the year, and yet there are people who question the expediency of the air mail.

Now that the primaries are over a number of people who imagined they were born leaders of men will be able to give their individual attention to their own business. They may not have the consolation of looking at "victory perched upon their banner," but they at least have learned the lesson that politics is a game that two can play. But it is all over and settled and we should all be glad for a little breathing spell before the heat of the fall campaign.

The big baseball game between the Academy and Mansfield Normal nines will take place on Hughes field this (Friday) afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. Don't miss it.
