LUCKY SIXPENCE SAVED HIM

Good Story of How Fate Intervened to Preserve Beau Brummell to History's Pages.

The old superstition about the lucky charm of a crooked sixpence arose early in the Eighteenth century, and its author was none other than Beau Brummel, the most famous of the world's dandies, Brummel, although the bosom friend of the prince of Wales, came from common enough stock, his grandfather having been a valet. But he saved, as did Brummell's father, and Brummell had some $150,000 to serve him. He became a great gambler and a good loser, often staking thousands of pounds. One night he played at Walter's club, and when he rose from the table he was a pauper. Not only that, but heavily

He wandered out into the London streets, with head downcast; and as he strolled along he picked up a crooked sixpence. In a whimsical moment he returned to the club and matched it with a chance friend. He won, matched again and again, and won each time. The game changed to shilling matches, and then to gold pieces, and Brummell at the end of a few minutes found himself with two or three pounds. He went to the gaming table, sat down, and when dawn came and the game closed he had won over 12,000 pounds, or about $60,000. The crooked sixpence he carried with him for years, and shortly after he lost it his bad luck arose again, and he once more became a pauper.

RANKED AS MARVEL OF ART

Michelangelo's Superb Decorations in the Sistine Chapel Sufficed to Give Him Eternal Fame.

Michelangelo's decoration of the vault of the Sistine chapel was hailed as the greatest piece of work ever done by a painter's hand. It was a task of colossal proportions, the ceiling alone measuring 132 feet by 44 feet. The painter had to do much work lying flat on his back on a scaffold. For some time afterward he was unable to read except when in that position.

Michelangelo arranged the vast space as though it had been roofless, framing it with architecture in perspective delusion and filling the open spaces with paintings. Just above the windows are the figures of the ancestry of Christ in attitudes of eager ures of prophets and sibyls; in the corners, four representations from the history of Israel. In the center of the vault the stories of the "Creation of the World," the "Fall of Man," and the "Deluge" are told in nine pictures. Among the central pictures is the "Creation of Adam." Adam is depicted just on the point of rising, just as God's touch sends the first thrill of life through his veins. Of the prophets, Jeremiah is the image of deep thought, and Zachariah a type of mental absorption.

Fidelity Marked Telegrapher. One striking example of the early spirit of endurance under great stress of which the telegrapher of the old school was capable was given by John Carnahan, then a young man in his thirties, at the time of the Custer massacre. He was operator and newspaper correspondent at Bismarck, which was the nearest telegraph office to the scene of Custer's last fight, 500 miles west. Attending his regular duties, and gathering here and there from the incoming scouts and plains stragglers the thrilling story of Custer to send to the anxiously waiting world, he worked 40 hours without rest, and for several days and nights he only caught a few winks of sleep, yet all the newspaper reading world were eagerly grasping for the thousands of words of story he was gathering. They never knew how one man was working to satisfy them.

Wonderful Theatrical Setting. A variegated Richard III, was offered in Berlin to an audience that gasped a little at first but proved appreciative when the first surprise was over. For Richard was clothed symbolically in black when he was brooding, in blood-red when he ascended to the throne, and this actual ascent was presented literally by a flight of steep blood-red stairs that lead to the coveted seat. The scene was so drenched with the dreadful color that when later on, in the dream, the phantom warriors were luridly clad, too, the appearance of Richmond's forces in pure white completed the symbol. No attention was paid to court customs and costumes; all else paled besides the enhanced effect of Richard's demoniacal appearance.

AMERICAN WOMEN-A EULOGY

Frenchman Pays Pretty and Deserved Tribute to the Sex as He Has Observed It.

American women are far and away the prettiest, youthfulest and smartest (clothes and brains) women on earth. They can also be the sensiblest, kindest and helpfulest, the hardestworked-no, I mean the hardest working-and they have no rivals for charitable enterprise.

They have a wonderful capacity for being excellent housekeepers, even though they may seem not to keep their houses more than a few minutes in the morning, before flying away, and an hour or two in the evening when they drop exhausted on a sofa. They are good mothers, good daughters and good sisters, and their husbands, who ought to know, proclaim to the whole world, to the earth and to the stars, to the believing and the unbelieving, that they are incomparable wives. I am ready to testify that they are invaluable friends. But somehow the American woman, has faults from which French women are free, and the latter frequently criticize her to the disgust of the uncompromising American man.

In England and France, and generally in all old countries, there is a providential excess of women, and men choose.

A Frenchman marries when he needs help; an American marries when he can afford it.—Ernest Dimnet, in Harper's Magazine.

MORE IN LIFE THAN WEALTH

Man Who Refuses to Let Money Dominate Him Calls Forth Eulogy From Rudyard Kipling.

Sooner or later you will see some man to whom the idea of wealth, as mere wealth, does not appeal, whom the methods of amassing wealth do not interest, and who will not accept money if you offer it to him at a certain price. At first you will be inclined to laugh at that man, and think that he is not smart in his ideas. I suggest you watch him closely, for he will presently demonstrate to you that money dominates everybody except the man who does not want money.

You may meet the man somewhere, but be sure that whenever or wherever you meet him, as soon as it comes to a direct issue between you, his little finger will be thicker than your loins. You will find that you have no weapon in your armory with which you can attack him. . . . If more wealth is necessary to you, for purposes not your own, use your left hand to acquire it, but keep your right hand for the proper work in life. If you employ both arms in that game, you will be in danger of stooping.-Rud-

BRIDE OBSCURES THE GROOM

Louisiana Court Has Solemnly Held That the Man Does Not Attract Any Attention.

It is at last judicially determined that the groom at a wedding is merely a necessary incident, accessory, or piece of furniture. The bride is the whole cast. In a divorce action in Louisiana, in which defendant denied he was the man who had married plaintiff, and his identity with the bridegroom was in issue, the court

"The only evidence introduced by the defendant in support of his denial that it was he who married plaintiff in Indianapolis on October 9, 1911, was the testimony of the Probate judge who performed the ceremony and that of the proprietor of the Imperial hotel. The Probate judge and the proprietor of the Imperial hotel both testified that they had identified the plaintiff as soon as she had spoken to them when they stepped off the train in New Orleans; and from that circumstance, counsel for defendant argue that the Probate judge and the proprietor of the hotel would surely have been able to identify the defendant if he were the individual to whom plaintiff was married by the judge in presence of the hotel proprietor. We do not think so. With due respect for his honor, the Probate judge, and for the proprietor of the Imperial hotel, it may be that the bride attracted more attention than the groom." - From West's Starter in Life's Race Foolish to Handicap Himself by Forebodings That Hinder Success.

Don't be hampered at the start of life's race by the thought that perhaps there is something about you that hinders success.

Don't run yourself out. Take a gait that you can hold. Don't endanger your health or sacrifice your happiness by overeffort. The man who runs too fast at the start lags at the finish unless he has extraordinary staying powers.

One morning, over in France, there was a call to go over the top. The officer in addressing the men told them what was to be accomplished and who was to lead them. It was a desperate task that was being undertaken, and a pale-faced young fellow was the man upon whom the great burden had heen put.

"Why did you choose Jones to lead that expedition?" the commanding officer was asked, after the attack had proved successful.

"Because," said he, "once he gets started all hell can't stop him." That's a great reputation for a

Improved Lighting System.

that can be moved about from one place to another may now be considered in installing the lighting system in the home or elsewhere. The new system requires no cord connection, but a novel type of plug, to be used with a special outlet, gives portability not only to the lamp bulb, but to the entire fixture. The outlets are located in the parts of the room or establishment where occasional as well as permanent lighting may be desirable. The plug has curved blades instead of the ordinary straight ones, and is easily attached to any fixture. The outlet has two parallel slots in a rounded triangular center. As the plug is inserted with the curved blades pointing upward, electrical and mechanical connection are formed, and the heaviest household fixture is safenating gas are related to one another ly supported. ## TOAD BECAME PET

Lived for Thirty-Six Years With French Family.

Little Creature Soon Lost All Fear of Mankind and Furnished Amusement to Its Protectors.

There was a wise old toad that lived for more than thirty-six years in a hole beneath the doorstep of a French farmhouse. How old it was when first noticed no one could say, but it had probably lived for a long time before familiarity with the sight of man emboldened it to rest tranquilly on the doorstep over which persons were constantly passing.

The step became the batrachian's hunting ground, where, with little trouble, it might capture the ants which persisted in crossing and recrossing it. The toad, hunting for its supper, came to be regarded as one of the sights of the neighborhood, and certainly the skilful manner in which it used its wonderfully formed tongue entitled it to be ranked as an expert among hunters.

For one thing, it showed wonderful skill in judging distance; the tongue was never darted out until the insect came within a certain range. The accuracy of the creature's aim was another matter for surprise. The insects were generally in motion when the tongue was darted against them, but the arrow never failed to hit its

The rapidity with which the tongue was shot forth excited much wonder. The operation is a complex one. The tongue is doubled or rolled up when in the mouth; therefore, a twofold action is required, an uncoiling of the weapon, and then the darting of it

The withdrawing of the tongue, with the captured insect on the top, was not less remarkable. Notwithstanding the rapid motion, the fineness of the tongue tip and the struggles of the prey the victim was never dropped.

The toad was so tame that it might rightly be called domesticated. It would remain quietly in one hand and take its food from the other, provided a leaf was placed on the hand which held it. Without this precaution the warmth of the human hand was evidently annoying and uncomfortable to the chilly little fellow.

Few things seemed to please it more than to be placed on a table in the evening when the lamp was lighted. It would look around with the greatest confidence in its gleaming eye and when insects were placed on the table it snapped them up with even greater rapidity than in its day huntings.

In this way the toad lived for thirty-six years, the pet of the neighborhood. It might have lived many years more had not a tame but spiteful raven pecked out one of its eyes.

Thumb Prints for Brides.

The newest slogan of English social life is to light bigamy with Bertillon methods. There the war has brought on an unprecedented wave of bigamy. Soldiers with two and sometimes The advantages of electric lamps three wives are still being daily charged in the courts. Australians with wives at the other end of the earth and brides in England were said to be the worst offenders, their special plural marriage system becoming one of the jokes of the music halls.

It has been suggested that couples seeking marriage licenses should furnish their photographs, which shall be affixed to their marriage "lines," The certificate bearing the thumb prints of both bride and bridegroom shall then be photographed and the proof filed with the statistical records at Somerser house. By adopting this system it is believed that no question can ever remain unsettled as to the actual identity of the contracting parties in case any such question should ever arise.

Corn Products Widely Used. The products of corn go around the world to a degree beyond all guessing. Two products widely diffused are glucose corn sirup and grape sugar. In 1919 corn sirup was distributed to nearly seventy-five different countries, in weight amounting to 220,380,761 pounds and of the value of $13,169,051. To more than twenty countries corn sugar was sent to the amount of 35,236,948 pounds and of the value of $1,970,893. Corn sirup is a distinctively American product. Its greatest purchaser was the United Kingdom, and France was next. The same distinction is true in the foreign purchases of corn sugar. Glucose was discovered about 1800.

Synthetic Camphor.

Camphor is now being manufactured synthetically from turpentine. This step has been made in order to supply the American market with the aromatic substance. The majority of camphor is imported from Japan. It is used in medicine, in the making of celluloid, which is a combination of camphor and guncotton. The Department of Agriculture had established a camphor farm in Florida and is producing a very good grade of the substance.
