

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

DAILY THOUGHT.

A self-made man? Yes, and worships his creator.—Henry Clapp.

There is no doubt about it that embroidery is the prettiest when used with restraint and the woman who has any deftness with her needle can easily put it on her gowns.

A vest and collar usually set off a summer suit or dress, but when a touch of embroidery is added, it usually makes them more attractive. A pongee set has a Chinese design on it worked in Chinese blue embroidery cotton.

Another style of vestee is of ecru organdie embroidered in rose, blue, green and yellow squares. Light blue ribbon is passed through beading across the front.

A pretty collar and cuff set of white organdie and lace is embroidered in rose, French blue and bright yellow squares.

When I first bought my collar and cuff set decorated with gay wool embroidery, I thought when it was soled that that would be the end of it. Well, I finally decided to wash it, thinking the colors would turn into the white; but, to my great delight, the color did not run a bit and I am sure that anything done in wool embroidery will retain its color if care is used every time the dainties are washed.

A dainty little frock of French organdie is embroidered with wool in the delicate shades of rose, lavender, green, blue and yellow. Black yarn thread is used around the collar, sleeve bands and belt, the buttonhole stitch being used.

While walking past a needlework shop the other day I saw a cover for cake or pie dish, made of blocks of fine filet crochet. The blocks were crocheted together and mounted on wire frame.

A French importation is a linen suit of raspberry color embroidered in heavy black silk. It has a straight box jacket and full gathered skirt. Vest of raspberry linen is worn with jacket and skirt.

A smart black taffeta dress is in one piece, with loops of material edging neck, sleeves, skirt and a narrow band of bright embroidery is the only trimming.

For the little girl of about eight there is a new frock. A one-piece white flannel affair, with flowers embroidered in red, blue or orange, with black stems and leaves sprang over its front in center. Soft silk sash encircles it at waist. It has short sleeves. The sleeves and bottom of skirt are finished with a deep button-hole silk in a bright red. It is a very stunning affair.

If you have plenty of leisure this summer and like embroidery, I would suggest making a bed room set. You can make bed spread and all. By the way, a fine colonial knot-stitch is being used and is very easy.

With a piano stool to sit on and a small stool or box for the feet to rest on, you can be quite comfortable and not so tired on ironing day, especially if you have a gas or electric iron. You can sit for hours and do all the small pieces. The piano stool gives with each motion of the body.

In the north we do not serve the hot breads for breakfast as they do in the south. It seems too much of a task for most of us to get up early enough in the morning to make them, and we have to handle our servants so carefully that we do not ask them to do it, either. The result is we have toast or rolls from the bakery heated in the oven. And very good they are, too, but it is the custom in many families to vary them by making some new and delicious hot breads on Sunday morning.

We are, fortunately for the cook and for ourselves, getting away from the idea that one must have elaborate and heavy meals on Sunday. But these light hot breads can be mixed up and baked in a jiffy, and with a simple egg dish, and the jam jar filled with jam or marmalade make an ideal breakfast.

Cinnamon Coffee Cake.—A cinnamon coffee cake with its rich crumbly brown top is delicious and can be made at home as easily as a pan of muffins. Sift together a cup and a half of flour, a pinch of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Rub in two tablespoonfuls of shortening, butter or cooking oil, beat one egg with a half cup of milk and stir it into the mixture and spread in a shallow pan. For the top, mix two tablespoonfuls of cooking oil or melted butter, one tablespoonful of flour, three of sugar and three-fourths of a tablespoonful of powdered cinnamon. Spread this over the top and bake in a hot oven 15 or 20 minutes. In many hot breads and muffins the dry ingredients can be mixed the night before and the liquids measured out ready to pour over them.

English Scones.—English scones are every bit as good with coffee as they are with tea. To make them, sift together two cups of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two teaspoonfuls of sugar and a pinch of salt. Rub in four tablespoonfuls of butter and add two eggs beaten with a third of a cup of cream or milk. Roll out on a board and cut into circles that will just fit into the round layer cake pan. Sprinkle with sugar and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven. Split, butter and cut like pie.

Spider Corn Cake.—A spider corn cake is a great favorite in many families. Mix a teaspoonful of soda with the same amount of salt and one and a fourth cupfuls of cornmeal. Gradually add two well-beaten eggs and two cupfuls of sour milk. Heat an iron frying pan. Grease the sides and bottom with two tablespoonfuls of butter, turn in the batter and bake in hot oven 20 minutes.

Because Adler-i-ka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel it removes all foul matter which poisoned stomach. Relieves ANY CASE sour stomach or gas on stomach. Often CURES constipation. PENNSYLVANIA THIRTY-SIXTH IN VOTING.

The awakened citizenship that caused the recent session of the Legislature to provide for raising Pennsylvania from the twenty-first to first place in public school activities has another urgent duty. It must do something to stimulate the civic sense in all those of voting age in the Commonwealth. The "stay-at-homes" who were eligible to qualify for the ballot outnumbered the voters in Pennsylvania last fall by nearly 50,000. While the percentage of voting in the State of Indiana was 43, in Pennsylvania it was only a little over 21. Pennsylvania shows the lowest percentage of voters to population anywhere in the United States outside the South, where voting by Negroes is restricted. In fact, it is tied with a Southern State, North Carolina, for thirty-sixth place.

With both men and women having the right to vote, it is not a pleasing commentary that in Pennsylvania last fall the aggregate of ballots cast was hundreds of thousands below the number of men and boys the State stood ready to send to war. While the total vote of the State of Indiana in the Presidential election was more than 600,000 above the draft enrollment of that Commonwealth, the vote of Pennsylvania was more than 200,000 below the aggregate it enrolled for selective service. A State so patriotic in furnishing her sons for war owes it to herself to stand better than thirty-sixth in discharging duties at the polls. Just as results were not obtained for improving conditions for the schools until the truth was told bluntly that the State had fallen to twenty-first place in such activities, so the only hope of stimulating the population to greater use of the ballot is to lay the facts of its low standing in voting before it. The obvious fact is that Pennsylvania has become sleepy in a civic sense. The approximate number of voters to the 100 of population in Perry county was 27. Pike county had the highest proportion, 33, and Indiana county the lowest, 15.—Ex.

The Wise Schoolboy.

The schoolmaster was explaining things to the boys in his class. "For instance," I want to introduce water into my house. I turn it on. The pipes and every convenience are in order, but I get no water. Can any of you tell me why?" He expected the children to see that it was, because he had not made a connection with the main street. The boys looked perplexed. They could not see why the water should refuse to run into his premises after such faultless plumbing.

"Can no one tell me what I have neglected?" reiterated the good man, looking at the many wondering faces bowed down by the weight of the problem.

"I know," squeaked one boy at last; "you don't pay up!"

LOYALTY BASIS OF ALL CIVILIZATION

Every Citizen Owes Moral and Legal Obligation to His Government.

SAME IN COMMUNITY LIFE

People Have Duty to Their Home Town Which is No Less Binding Because it is Not Fixed by Law.

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.) Loyalty is the foundation upon which the whole structure of civilization rests. Loyalty to one's country, loyalty to one's state, loyalty to one's city, loyalty to one's business associates, loyalty to one's friends! Loyalty is essential to the ordinary progress of the world. Without it the world must be chaos.

There would be no stable government in the world were it not for the loyalty of the people to their government. There would be no successful business enterprise on the face of the globe were it not for the loyalty of the men and women who are connected with it. No church could exist for a month were it not for the loyalty of its members. The sacredness of the hour would be a myth were it not for the loyalty of the members of the family group.

The loyalty of a people to its government is based partly upon sentiment and partly upon the recognition of an obligation that a people owes to its government. A people that has the benefit of good government owes a duty to that government. Those who do not recognize this duty and perform it voluntarily are compelled by law to do so. The man or woman who is protected by the government in the pursuit of life and happiness, must contribute in money and service toward the support of the government. The man or woman who, under the protection of his government which preserves law and order, is able to accumulate property, must pay taxes on that property to help maintain the government which has protected him or her. In time of war the citizen has the right to call upon its citizens to take up arms in its defense.

Loyalty Moral Obligation. In governmental affairs these things are regulated by law, and the man who receives the benefit of orderly government is required to fulfill the obligation which that entails, but in the ordinary affairs of life, loyalty is a moral rather than a legal obligation. There are laws which prevent a man from stealing from his employer or his business associates, but there is no law that requires him to be loyal to them. The success of a business institution, however, depends more upon the loyalty of its employees than upon the laws which prevent them from stealing its money. Likewise the stability of a government depends more upon the loyalty of its people than upon the laws which compel them to fulfill their obligation to the government.

It is equally true that the prosperity and growth of every individual community is dependent upon the loyalty of the people who live in it. Every citizen owes an obligation to his community, and the obligation is a moral as well as a legal one. The good citizen pays his taxes cheerfully and willingly. He serves upon the juries which administer the laws of the community. He fulfills every legal obligation that is imposed upon him by his government, but there is a moral obligation which is of still greater importance to the community. This moral obligation consists in doing everything that is in his power to promote the prosperity and happiness of his community. The man who is enabled to make his living in any community is under a moral obligation to spend his money in such a way as to help his community.

Prosperity Worth Protecting. Anything worth having is worth protecting, and if the prosperity of a community is worth anything to the people living in it it is worth protecting. If the chance for a man to earn a good living, to live well, to give his children a good education, is worth anything, it is worth protecting. There is just one way to protect the prosperity of a community, and that is to keep the community from being drained of its cash—working capital. The only way to do that is for the people of the community to keep their money at home. Every time the citizen of a community sends money away from home to a mail order house instead of spending it in his home stores he is disloyal to his community. It is disloyalty to the merchants only indirectly. It is disloyalty to the community of which the merchants are only a small but a very important part.

This is the moral obligation that every citizen owes to his community, just as the payment of taxes and the loyal support of his government are his legal obligations. Disloyalty of a large body of the citizens spells disaster to any government and disloyalty of any large part of the people to their community is followed inevitably by the downfall of the community. Self-interest, if nothing else, should convince every citizen of the advisability of fulfilling his moral obligation to his community.
