Former Centre Countian Attains Prominence Elsewhere.

The Lewistown Gazette is publishing a series of sketches of men now prominent in Mifflin county and in its last week's issue appeared a write up of W. O. Rearick, the man who helped to make the old Centre Hall complant-er famous.

Mr. Rearick, who is now a resident of Milroy, where he conducts a flour-ishing grain and feed business, was born on the farm east of Centre Hall in 1862, and was one of a family of eleven children. He assisted his father on the farm until he was twenty-three years old, teaching school in the winter time. He then went to Co-burn and engaged in the coal, grain and feed business, but at the expiration of three years sold out and went to New Bloomfield. He remained there one year then returned to Centre Hall and for eight years manufactured the famous Centre Hall complant-er which in its day was a favorite farming implement throughout the central part of the State.

In 1901 he moved to Milroy and en-gaged in the grain and feed business, and that has been his home ever since with the exception of the years from 1911 to 1915 when he was in eastern Kentucky superintending a large lum-bering operation. During his resi-dence in Centre Hall Mr. Rearick served eight years as school director.

His wife is a daughter of M. J. Decker, of Pennsvalley, and they have four children, R. D., in the mercantile business at Milroy; Miles, who assists his father; Miss Elsie, a teacher now in attendance at the summer session at State College, and Mary, at home.

Mr. Rearick is a member of the Masonic Lodge at Filson, Ky., the Williamsport consistory and the Jaf-fa Shrine, of Altoona. He is a mem-ber of the Presbyterian church and teaches the men's bible class in the Sunday school at Milroy.

A Peculiar Situation.

The legal intricacies surrounding the United Mine Workers Union are now puzzling the brains of a certain Bellefonte lawyer and up to this time he has failed to find any solution to the problem confronting John Sepic, who for a number of years was one of the most industrious miners in the Snow Shoe region. In fact he and his son conserved their earnings during the time of high wages and when the strike was declared early this year had a goodly sum laid by. Being of an industrious nature they demurred at being idle awaiting the settlement of the strike so purchased the Uzleze-Chambers farm near Yarnell and went to farming. Now the constitution of the United Mine Workers provides for the payment of dues into a fund which is used to tide the miners over a strike period. Mr. Sepic and his son paid their dues regularly and at last reports were still compelled to pay them, but when it came to getting their allotment out of the fund they were refused on the grounds that they did not remain idle, but went to work. The fact that they did not return to the mines did not count, and all fund allotments to them have been refused. Mr. Sepic has engaged a Bellefonte attorney to enforce payment, but the legal luminary can find no law covering the case. In the mean-time the miner's union continues to collect the monthly dues from Mr. Sepic and his son and so far they have not mustered up courage sufficient to refuse pay-ment.

Regarding the Ice Situation.

The "Watchman" last week com-mented upon the dwindling ice supply in Bellefonte which has really reach-ed a serious condition. Local ice dealers were able to house only about half a crop last winter and the ex-treme hot weather this summer has been extremely hard on the supply. In fact the supply of natural ice stored in Bellefonte is almost exhausted and dealers have already been ship-ping in artificial ice from surround-ing towns, but the demand on the artificial ice plants in Lock Haven, Phillipsburg, Tyrone and Altoona have been so great that they cannot fur-nish Bellefonte dealers as much as they ought to have. The result is that portions of the town have been without ice the past ten days or two weeks, while every consumer is limited to just what he can get.

Reading in the "Watchman" of the seriousness in the ice situation here Mr. J. A. Collins, of New York, coun-try manager of the Western Maryland Dairy, promptly got busy and was able to locate an abundant supply of ice at Lime Lake, N. Y., but found that the Pennsylvania railroad had no commodity rate between that point and Bellefonte. He promptly request-ed the company to issue a rate and they offered one of fourteen cents a hundred pounds, but up to the present time the tariff has not been print-ed or published, and until it is ship-ments cannot be made.

The "Watchman" is informed that every effort is being put forth to have the tariff published and as soon as that is done the Western Maryland Dairy will start the shipment of ice to Bellefonte, not only for their own use, but will willingly furnish Belle-fonte dealers a portion of the supply. In the meantime one local dealer is authority for the statement that since last Friday the situation has eased up a little at the ice plants in adjoining towns and they hope to be able to keep up a supply for their regular custom-ers, at least.

The will of the late John Hamil-ton, of State College, was probated this week. The estate is valued at from $40,000 to $50,000, and $10,000 is bequeathed to State College for the advancement of christianity among the students. Other bequests include $1,000 to his faithful house servant, Jennie Boone; $1,000 to his brother, O. K. Hamilton, of Rochester, N. Y.; $1,000 to his sister, Emma Hamilton, also of Rochester; a note of $550 to another brother; and $2,500 to his ad-ministrators for the education of his nephews. The balance of his estate goes to his daughter, Mrs. Annie Thompson Henszey.

W. F. Hill, an agent of the dairy and pure food bureau of the State Department of Agriculture, appeared in Millheim last Thursday and made information against four Brush val-ley farmers and two living in Penn-sylvania for skimming or watering milk sold to the Coburn Products company. Five of the men paid the fine of twenty-five dollars and costs while the other man has not yet answered the summons. Unless he does so within a few days a warrant will be issued for his arrest.

Ellis Keller, Elliott Morris and Hugh Quigley, with a party of Lock Haven men, will be hosts at a house party at the Stevenson cabin near the Lock Haven Country club, for the next ten days. The guests from Bellefonte will include, Miss Mabel Sheffer, Miss Henrietta Quigley and Miss Katherine Love, with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sheffer as chaperones, all of whom will leave today to join the party from Lock Haven at the cabin.

Prisoners Riot in Western Peniten-tiary at Pittsburgh.

Edward Emel, of Spring township, taken to the western penitentiary at Pittsburgh just two weeks ago to serve a fourteen year sentence, was reported as having been shot in the body though not seriously wounded, in a riot of six hundred prisoners in that institution on Monday. Another pris-oner reported to have been shot and in a serious condition is Alexander Johnson, a negro, recently sent back from Centre county for breaking and escaping from the Rockview institu-tion.

The outbreak timed to start with the ringing of the first fire gong at noon-time, began in the dining room when a prisoner sent a soup bowl careening down one of the long tables. In an in-stant the six hundred prisoners were in an uproar and at the same time the fire gong sounded the alarm of fire. Fires were started almost simultane-ously in the construction shop, linen shop, kitchen and chapel. The city fire department was called out to help quell the flames and a riot call was sent in for police to help subdue the half-crazed convicts. The disturbance lasted two hours but the flames were finally extinguished and the rioting prisoners quelled after eight of their number had been shot, four of them seriously.

Parole officer John P. Egan is of the opinion that the trouble was foment-ed by long term prisoners from the eastern penitentiary who had recently been transferred to Pittsburgh and made demands for treatment and priv-ileges not recognized in any penal in-stitution.

Just how far-reaching the plot may be is not known, but the prison au-thorities took no chances and an extra large detail of state police came to Bellefonte Tuesday morning to be on hand if any disturbance should occur at the Rockview institution, though every means possible was taken by the prison authorities to keep the news of what took place in Pittsburgh from reaching the prisoners at Rockview.

Carnegie Hero Commission Investi-gating Sampsell Claim.

On April 18th, 1920, aviator J. T. Murphy, of the U. S. aerial mail service, was badly burned when his plane fell in a tail-spin just after he had taken off from the Bellefonte field and caught fire just as it struck the ground. Murphy would undoubt-edly have burned to death had it not been for the daring act of Boyd Sampsell, who leaped onto the plane, cut the strap which held the aviator in his seat and pulled him from the burning ship, notwithstanding the fact that the flames were seething around and Sampsell had both hands badly burned. He also incurred great danger because of the possibility of the explosion of the gas tanks, which, fortunately did not occur until he had pulled Murphy out of danger.

Disinterested persons hereabouts who knew of the brave act of Sampsell reported his case to the Carnegie hero fund commission and now, after fifteen months, an examiner of the commission was sent to Bellefonte last Saturday to inquire into the merits of the case. Just what the commission, or its examiners, idea of bravery or meritorious cases is, is hard to deter-mine, as the examiner sent here seem-ed to consider Mr. Sampsell's act one of ordinary occurrence and not on a par with a case of rescue from drowning. But the people he inter-viewed here tried, at least, to convince him that a rescue from fire is just about as daring as a rescue from water, but what the result will finally be cannot be foretold at this writ-ing.

Cull Out the Non-Producers.

Every flock of poultry in Centre county has hens in it that are not lay-ing. County agent J. N. Robinson, of the Centre county Farm Bureau, has secured the services of H. D. Mon-roe, poultry specialist from the State College poultry extension department, to show how to cull the non-producers. The methods used are the results of many year's work with trapezoid birds. A study has been made of the characteristics of good and poor pro-ducers. The ease with which the in-ferior farmer or his wife may put in-to practice the methods used and the surprising results obtained when such practices are exercised has made cul-ling a very important part of poultry keeping.

Many hens never lay enough eggs to pay for their feed. Hence by sell-ing the unprofitable hens and keep-ing only the best producers, poultry profits can be increased greatly. This will reduce the number of hens that must be fed and cared for and at the same time keep the number of eggs at a maximum.

By practicing these methods the hens that have been poor producers are automatically disposed of and at the end of the season there are left only the best hens of the flock. If these hens are mated to cockerels from high producing hens, the flock will be improved from year to year, while on the other hand if the hens good, bad and indifferent are kept and hatched from, the quality and produc-tiveness of the flock are sure to be lowered. If poultry keepers learn how to properly cull their flock, more money can be made from fewer hens.
