AARONSBURG.

James Condo, of Penn Hall, was the pleasant guest of his brother, John P. Condo, at his home in this place.

Miss Lodie Harter, after spending several months in Akron, Ohio, with her niece, Mrs. Victor Stover, came to her home here last week.

Mrs. Hattie Grenninger had as guests her uncle, Mr. Hess, and some of his family, of Bethlehem, Pa. They left for their home Sunday morning.

Randolph Coll, of Austin, Pa., came down from State College with his cousin, Clarence Eisenhauer, spending Sunday here with Mrs. Alice Eisenhauer.

Rev. and Mrs. Daubenspeck and little son Laird left Monday for Kittanning and Butler, where they will spend their vacation of three weeks among relatives.

The Misses Amanda Haines and Lodie King, who for some time have been living in State College, are home for a few weeks' stay. Both ladies intend returning to State College early in September.

James Holloway has gone to Illinois, where he is at present with the family of his brother, William Holloway, and later will visit his only surviving brother and sister, Frank, who resides in Illinois, and Mrs. Sarah Wyle, in Akron, Ohio.

Rev. and Mrs. Geesey, of Indiana, for the past week have been guests of friends in Coburn, coming to our village Saturday. However, they expect to spend some time here during this week. Rev. Geesey served the local Lutheran church for several years and it is always a pleasure to welcome them back.

Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver have as guests during their vacation, Rev. W. D. Donat and son Nevin, of Strawberry Ridge, Pa. While here they are kept busy calling on former parishioners and friends. Rev. Donat served the local Reformed church here for thirteen and one-half years, and only on July 1st, 1920, severed his relationship as pastor here. While he is no longer pastor yet his people feel just as kindly and have his welfare as much at heart as ever. Owing to plans formed before it was known Rev. Donat would be present, he will not fill the pulpit Sunday.

Sunday was a red letter day for the Reformed congregation in this place. Since July 1920 they have been without a pastor, though on a number of occasions they have been supplied by other ministers. Sunday morning the Rev. Gearhart, of East Petersburg, delivered a splendid and uplifting sermon. Owing to the heavy thunder shower which passed over this section at church time there were not nearly as many people present at service as would have been otherwise. The evening service was conducted by Rev. Fred Stamm, of Dayton, Ohio, who delivered a powerful sermon to a large and appreciative congregation. It is always edifying and inspiring to listen to such uplifting sermons as were given us Sunday. Rev. Stamm was in our midst and ministered unto us spiritually, just about one year ago when, as now, he was spending his vacation with friends in his native town of Millheim.

Marlin Howard Young, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Young, passed away Tuesday morning, August 16th, of intestinal trouble. He was born March 22nd, 1921, so was almost five months old. His young parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. Interment was made at Romola, services being held at the home of his uncle, Hensyl Young. Out of town friends and relatives who came to attend the funeral were Mrs. Young's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Leathers, of Howard; Harvey Young, father of Boyd Young, of Giving Away Two Hundred Bibles and Testaments Every Day.

More copies of the Bible are sold every year than of any other book. In addition, the American Bible Society gives away nearly 200 Bibles and Testaments every working day in this country alone, while in foreign lands the numbers are very much greater. Colporteurs going from house to house find very poor people in all parts of the country who can not afford to buy even a Gospel printed separately. None are denied who really want the Book.

GROWING HUMAN HAIR FOR SALE.

Do you know that in Italy many men grow quite wealthy by dealing in human hair? You see, Italy supplies most of the beautiful hair sometimes seen in shops, and thinks nothing of selling three to four million dollars' worth every year.

Do not imagine that because many of the Italian peasants sell their hair, that they go about bald. This is not true.

They cut off half of the hair at the back of the head, and then twist the remaining half over the exposed part, dressing it in such a manner that you couldn't tell that any had been cut.

The hair merchants make visits twice each year to the people who sell their hair, and buy it according to quality, color and length.

Genuine white hair, over ten inches long, is very scarce, and as much as thirty dollars per ounce is paid for it, while golden locks are also very expensive. If the hair is dark in color, it is much cheaper.

China also supplies about a million pounds weight of human hair every year, at prices varying from seven and a half dollars to two hundred and fifty dollars per pound for ordinary colors.

Black hair is much stronger than golden tresses, and sustains nearly double the weight, in fact it is often capable of sustaining a weight of four ounces on a single hair. Yellow hair will scarcely support two ounces; brown will hold up nearly three ounces without breaking, while one of dark brown will sustain an additional half ounce.

Because of its great strength, human hair is made into ropes in St. Kilda, Scotland. Many of the people there are engaged in climbing the cliffs and collecting guillemot or razorbill's eggs, but the continual chafing of the ropes on the rocks soon wears an ordinary rope and endangers the life of the egg collector. To overcome this, a stout hempen cord is procured and wrapped round and round with sheep's wool, then with horsehair, and finally covered with human hair. This gives the cable greater strength and elasticity. To make these ropes is very costly. A cheap one of only short length would cost at least one hundred and fifty dollars.—George H. Holden.

Frogs Believed to Have Code of Warning.

That frogs signal each other at night that all is well along their stream or pond is believed by many fishermen who have noted their behavior after the shades of night have fallen. When all is still along a stream, one frog will relieve itself of a belch, followed shortly by another, and then another, until the sound has died away in the distance. Within a few minutes a faint sound will be heard far up or down the stream, and this is repeated as before. If one frog is disturbed, however, there will be a silence all along the stream for a great distance, not to be broken until all is silent as the grave once more.

This will be kept up all night, and is believed by many to be the means adopted by the frogs in signalling each other.

It is also noticed that the largest frogs do not have the loudest voices. A small one may roar like a bull, and may be answered by a big fellow with a voice of a low tenor sound, or even cracked, as though it had a cold.
