New Schedule for Occupation Assessments.

This is the year for the regular triennial assessment, which includes the fixing of a valuation on real estate for taxable purposes. The county commissioners, who have the right under the law to fix the valuation on various occupations for taxable purposes, have prepared a list which has been given to each assessor in the county, and it will be the duty of the assessors to make return of the occupation of every voter in the county, male and female, according to the list provided for that purpose.

The action was the result of a collision on October 17th, 1920, between a car driven by Caucci, at that time a resident of Pemberton, and a machine owned and driven by C. A. Isenberg, of Boalsburg, in which Musser was a passenger, the accident occurring on the road from State College to Tyrone.

Table with 2 columns: Taxable Occupation, Amount to be Assessed. As a result of the run-in Musser claimed that he was thrown against the windshield and his right wrist almost severed, the plaintiff having been later taken to Altoona for treatment at the Altoona hospital. He claimed that prior to the accident he was making an average of $240 a month as a carpenter, but due to his injuries he was totally incapacitated for five months and since then only able to earn about $100 per month on account of his condition physically.

Isenberg and both Mr. and Mrs. Bathurst had also brought suit for damages but after the jury had awarded Mr. Musser a verdict the defendant agreed to allow the court to award judgment in the other cases, and Isenberg was awarded $600, Mr. Bathurst $500 and Mrs. Bathurst $1200.

Another case heard in the same court on Tuesday was an action of James A. Fitzpatrick, of Milesburg, against the Howard Brick and Tile company to recover $845 which he claimed was due him on salary. No defense was offered and a verdict was given for the full amount.

Two Men Get Away with Eighty Bushels of Potatoes. On Wednesday afternoon two men in a big truck, who represented themselves as being potato buyers from Altoona, went to the farm of Elmer E. Swartz, on the back road from Pleasant Gap to Zion and inquired if he had any potatoes to sell. Now it just happened that Mr. Swartz had a lot of them and was considering the best way to get them to market. He told the men he had and showed them the potatoes. An agreement was reached as to the price but the men wanted nice ones so they had to be sorted, and the truck was finally loaded with eighty bushels of prime spuds.

The men agreed to pay by weight and the nearest scales were at the store of William H. Noll Jr., & Bro., at Pleasant Gap. It was finally arranged that Mr. Swartz was to drive to the Gap in his car and the two men drive there with the truck of potatoes, when they would be weighed and payment made. Naturally Mr. Swartz got to the Gap before the men could reach there and after waiting a considerable time became somewhat anxious as to his potatoes. On the advice of Mr. Noll he got into his car and drove back down the road to look for the truck, but failed to see it anywhere. Inquiry was made everywhere but up to yesterday not a trace of the men, truck or potatoes was discovered, and as it looks now Mr. Swartz is out the price of his eighty bushels of the best potatoes he had.

Farmers all over Centre county should be on the lookout for the two men, as having successfully pulled the trick once they are liable to try it again in some other locality.

State College Man Wins Big Verdict in Blair County Court.

In an action to recover damages for injuries sustained in an automobile accident a jury in the Blair county court at Hollidaysburg, on Tuesday morning awarded H. N. Musser, of State College, a verdict of $2,300 against Sabatino Caucci, of South Fork.

The action was the result of a collision on October 17th, 1920, between a car driven by Caucci, at that time a resident of Pemberton, and a machine owned and driven by C. A. Isenberg, of Boalsburg, in which Musser was a passenger, the accident occurring on the road from State College to Tyrone.

In his statement the plaintiff set forth that the accident was due to the negligent manner in which Caucci operated his car, and that he was on the wrong side of the road. Musser's statement was substantiated by Isenberg, the driver of the car, Mrs. Margaret Bathurst, of East Altoona, a passenger in the car, and H. C. Claycomb, of Altoona, who happened along immediately after the accident.

As a result of the run-in Musser claimed that he was thrown against the windshield and his right wrist almost severed, the plaintiff having been later taken to Altoona for treatment at the Altoona hospital. He claimed that prior to the accident he was making an average of $240 a month as a carpenter, but due to his injuries he was totally incapacitated for five months and since then only able to earn about $100 per month on account of his condition physically.

ARMSBY.—Dr. Henry Prentiss Armsby, a man of international reputation in scientific circles, passed away at his apartments at the Nittany Inn, State College, on Wednesday morning, following an illness of five weeks. Plans had been made to take him South but from the beginning of his illness his condition never improved sufficiently to permit of the journey.

He was a son of Lewis and Mary A. Armsby and was born at Northbridge, Mass., on September 21st, 1853, hence had attained the age of 68 years and 28 days. He was educated at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, graduating with the degree of B. S. in 1871. He then took a course in Yale College, graduating with the degree of Ph. B. in 1874. He did post graduate work at Leipzig, Germany, in 1876, and at Yale, receiving the degree of Ph. D. in 1879. He was also awarded the honorary degree of LL. D. by the University of Wisconsin in 1904.

But his life up to that time was not devoted exclusively to study and research work as he was assistant in chemistry at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute in 1871-1872; teacher of natural science in the High school at Fitchburg, Mass., 1874-1875; assistant in chemistry at Rutgers College, 1876-1877; chemist at the Connecticut agricultural experiment station, 1877-1881; vice president of the Connecticut Agricultural College, 1881-1883; professor of agricultural chemistry in the University of Wisconsin, and associate director of the experiment station, 1883-1887, coming from there to State College to become director of the agricultural experiment station, a position he held for twenty years. It was while serving in that capacity that he embarked upon his course of research work in animal nutrition which brought him into international prominence. He designed and had constructed under his direction a respiration calorimeter at the experiment station at the College for the purpose of testing out the nutritive values of various foodstuffs on animals, the first of its kind in the world, and which brought to him recognition not only from the United States government but from European countries. In 1908 he resigned his position as director of the experiment station to devote his time exclusively to research and was placed in charge of the department just then established and known as the Institute of Animal Nutrition, a position he held until his death. His work in this line was recognized all over the country and he was frequently called upon for special work by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Armsby was chairman of the committee on co-operative experiment station exhibits at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893, and also a member of the committee on dairy tests at the same exposition. He officiated in like capacities at the Paris Exposition in 1900. He has been expert in animal nutrition in the United States Department of Agriculture since 1898; was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; American Chemical Society; American Physiological Society; American Society of Biological Chemists; Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science (of which he was president 1905-1907), and of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations (of which he was president 1898-1899). He was author of Manual of Cattle Feeding (1880); Principles of Animal Nutrition (1903), and various scientific papers on the utilization of the potential energy of the food of domestic animals.

Dr. Armsby was married on October 15th, 1878, to Lucy Atwood Harding, of Millbury, Mass., who survives with five sons, Charles, Ernest, Sidney, Henry and Edward. He was a member of the Congregational church.

Being one of the oldest men in point of service at the College the institution will pay him due homage at the funeral today, (Friday). The body will lie in state in the auditorium from twelve until two o'clock, the hour of the service, when addresses will be made by Dr. Thomas, representing the College; Prof. F. L. Pattee, representing the faculty, and Dr. William Frear on Dr. Armsby's contribution to science. The honorary pall bearers will be Judge H. Walton Mitchell and other members of the board of trustees who may be present; Dr. J. M. Thomas, Dr. E. E. Sparks, Dean R. L. Sackett, Dr. William Frear, Dr. E. S. Moore, Dr. D. B. Garver and Prof. F. L. Pattee, J. M. Willard and E. D. Walker. The carriers Dean C. W. Stoddard, Dean R. L. Watts, Prof. A. H. Espenshade, J. A. Fries, W. W. Braman and H. W. Good. Interment will be made in the Pine Hill cemetery.

She had gone to the cellar for a loaf of bread and when half-way up the steps made a misstep, falling backwards, her head striking the hard floor of the cellar causing concussion of the brain. The accident happened about five o'clock in the morning and her death occurred at 2:30 in the afternoon.

Her maiden name was Nancy Catherine Woodring, a daughter of Jesse and Elizabeth Conrad Woodring, and she was born at Port Matilda about forty-six years ago. She was married to Mr. Gray twenty-four years ago and all her married life had been spent near Stormstown. She was a member of the Methodist church and a woman with a large circle of friends who deeply mourn her untimely death.

The clerk of the British house of commons is appointed by the prime minister with a salary of £2,000 a year. This is a much bigger salary than he received in the Eighteenth century. In those days he lived chiefly on fees and presents from members of parliament. The clerk sits at the upper end of the table of the house, and wears a wig and gown. He has the custody of records, signs certain addresses and orders, and reads various documents in the house. He controls the staff of the house, and is responsible for many details in the management of business. In addition, he is the speaker's principal adviser, and that is why even now speakers seldom make mistakes. He is the great authority on procedure and on all the complicated rules of the house. This official is usually silent and unobtrusive. The exception occurs when a new speaker is elected. His position has been described as "the highest and most important official post in the house, and one of the most respected in the civil service; its occupancy has long been a personal distinction and the recognition of eminent authority."
