Don't overlook the fact that the Red Cross roll call will begin on Sunday, November 13th. Everybody in Bellefonte should give willingly and freely to the Red Cross this year. Liberal contributions mean a continuance of the services of the Red Cross nurse in this vicinity, and those who have studied the monthly reports of the work done by the local nurse will admit that her services are needed.

Home grown strawberries on the 29th of October is a rarity in this climate but a sample was brought to this office on Saturday from the garden of P. C. Moran, one of the watchmen at the P. R. R. crossing on High street. The berries were as large as those grown in the spring and Mr. Moran is authority for the statement that they have had them all summer, and of late have been gathering a quart every two or three days.

The football thunderbolt from the south, Georgia Tech, could not stand up against the Bezdek brand as taught at Penn State and went down to defeat on the Polo grounds of New York on Saturday by the score of 28 to 7. Go to the College tomorrow and see them in action against Carnegie Tech, the last home game.

R. in the matter of the proper observance of Memorial day, etc.

BELLEFONTE'S BIG HALLOWEEN CARNIVAL.

A Pronounced Success Despite the Rain and Bad Weather. Many Hundreds in Parade.

Despite the threatening weather and periodic rainfalls the second annual Halloween carnival of the Bellefonte Lodge of Elks was pulled off on Monday evening almost on schedule time, and while the rain undoubtedly kept the residents of neighboring towns away, and kept some people out of line who might otherwise have gone in, it was a pronounced success notwithstanding. While nobody, so far as known, attempted a count of the people in masked and comic costumes, a conservative estimate would be from five to six hundred people, and as practically all of them were from Bellefonte and vicinity it was an emphatic endorsement of the carnival as a delightful way in which to celebrate Halloween.

Additional interest was added to this year's carnival by the contest for the Harvest Queen. This contest continued for five weeks and closed at ten o'clock on Saturday night with Miss Kathryn Bent as the winner. The total vote cast was 71,645, divided between the five contestants as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Votes. Kathryn Bent: 28,570; Ruth Teaman: 26,695; Grace Sasserman: 6,965; Marion Bauer: 5,035; Peggy Haines: 4,400. Total: 71,645.

Of course everybody was anxious to see the Harvest Queen and her ladies in waiting, the four other young ladies in the contest, especially as the queen's costume is valued at $800 and those of the ladies in waiting at $500 each, but it was not this alone that brought out the crowd. Rather the inherent spirit of frolicsome fun and good fellowship which is a dominant characteristic of every man, woman and child, and the desire to celebrate Halloween.

The parade formed and was made up identical with the published program in last week's paper, and we want to add right here that it is only on rare occasions that three such good bands of music are to be seen and heard in any parade as those on Monday evening. That old standby, Wetzler's band of Milesburg, headed the first division with our own I. O. O. F. band in top hats leading the second and the Modern Woodmen band of State College, resplendent in natty uniforms, at the head of the third division. The parade was almost a half hour late in starting and had hardly gotten under way when it began to rain. But it was no great downpour and the paraders stuck in line over the entire course and right up to the finish.

To attempt to describe floats and individual costumes would be a stupendous task. In fact it just couldn't be done. In the float line that of the Beatty Motor Co. won first prize because of its unique character. It represented an old-fashioned barn floor after harvest time with a square dance in full swing. And it might be added that the majority of the people on the float were men and women from the neighborhood of Pleasant Gap. The Y. W. C. A. club had a very creditable float while the Red Men also deserve special mention. The Spanish-American war veterans and the American Legion were well represented. The individual costumes were too numerous and varied to even try to depict. In fact the judges had a difficult task in making their selection of the prize winners, but they evinced no partiality and made their awards to those persons who, in their judgment, were entitled to them.

Of course the rainy weather interfered with the program after the parade to the end that there was no block dancing on Bishop street and no extended band concert. But all those inclined to dance went to the armory or the Logan fire company building, where dancing continued until late in the morning. Following is the list of prize winners:

This is an improvement of the service at the postoffice that all patrons will, or at least should, appreciate.

3129 Students New Record at Penn State.

Final enrollment figures at The Pennsylvania State College show that a new capacity record has been established for this year in the total of 3129 students. The extra large class of 894 Freshmen brings the total to about one hundred more than last year.

Liberal arts has taken a big jump to 579, and natural science ranks next with 258. There are 158 in the school of mines and 145 in the department of home economics.

Autoists Run Over Cow.

A communication from the "Watchman's" Stormstown correspondent states that last Friday evening as Herman Griffin was leading a cow along the road, about a mile east of Stormstown, Frank Clemson Jr. and John Hunter came racing along the road in their automobile, ran over the cow, breaking its legs and injuring it so badly that it had to be killed. Fortunately the glove was pulled from Mr. Griffin's hand or he might have been dragged with the animal and met the same fate it did.

Verily it seems that the roads are becoming almost as dangerous for pedestrians as a railroad track, and people who drive cars cannot exercise too much care for their own safety, as well as that of their fellow travelers.

Elmer E. Swartz's Potatoes were Not Stolen.

Two weeks ago the "Watchman" published a story describing how two men got away with eighty bushels of potatoes from the farm of Elmer E. Swartz, below Pleasant Gap, and now it transpires that the men didn't steal the potatoes at all. The gist of the story is that Mr. Swartz had sold his potatoes to an Altoona dealer and the two men and truck were sent to get them. They were strangers in that locality and when Mr. Swartz told them to drive to Pleasant Gap to have the potatoes weighed they had no idea where Pleasant Gap was and kept on the straight road until they reached the penitentiary grounds. There they waited quite a while on Mr. Swartz and as he did not appear they finally continued on their way to Altoona and delivered the potatoes to the dealer, who in turn gave a check for the payment of same to Mr. Swartz's son, living in Altoona, and he in due time notified his father.

Hunting Season Ushered in by Torrential Showers.

The torrential showers of Monday night and Tuesday had a rather dampening effect on the small army of hunters ready to take to the woods for the opening of the hunting season for all kinds of small game on Tuesday morning, and many men stayed at home who were literally aching to get out into the woods. But there were others who put on a dare or die face and braved the elements just to be among the first on the ground and get their share of the game. But most of them were doomed to disappointment, as game of all kinds kept pretty well under cover and naturally the shooting was poor. In fact at this writing very little game has been reported. J. O. Heverly brought in a wild turkey and he seems to have drawn the prize of the day.

Of course this does not mean that game is unusually scarce. It simply was not a good day for hunting. In fact pheasants have been reported as quite plentiful on the mountains, while quite a number of wild turkeys have been seen in their favorite haunts. Rabbits are also plentiful but squirrel are scarce. With the right kind of weather the hunter who has the patience to go on a hunt and stick to it should be successful in getting some game.

FIRST HUNTING ACCIDENT.

The "Watchman's" Stormstown correspondent sends in an account of the first hunting accident of the season which occurred in the woods near Stormstown about eight o'clock on Tuesday morning, when Robert Heverly, of 14th street, Tyrone, was shot in the face and arm by Raymond Allen, of Scotia, as he was tying the feet of a nice wild turkey he had just killed. Allen explained the accident by the fact that he saw the turkey but did not see the man until after he had shot at the turkey. Conductor Ross, also of Tyrone, who was hunting with Mr. Heverly, had brought down a turkey just before Heverly shot his bird, and after the shooting of the latter gentleman the two men got into their car, intending to make a quick run to Tyrone where Mr. Heverly could receive the care and treatment of his physician.

Telephone Lineman Had Narrow Escape.

Boyd Kelly, of Loganton, a lineman in the employ of the Commercial Telephone company in Bellefonte, miraculously escaped electrocution yesterday morning but was shocked so severely that he is now in the Bellefonte hospital for treatment and it may be several days before the extent of his injuries are known. Kelly, who has been with the company only two months was making some repairs on the telephone line on north Water street and had climbed a pole just across from the Bellefonte silk mill. In some way he came in contact with one of the high voltage wires of the State-Centre Electric company, carrying 2200 volts, but managed to break the contact. In doing so, however, he lost his balance and fell a distance of thirty feet to the street below. Persons who saw him fall believed he would be killed as he started head downward but the momentum of his body was such that he turned and lit on his back.

George A. Beezer saw him fall and at once ran to his side. The ambulance was summoned and he was taken to the Bellefonte hospital. There it was found that his hands and feet were burned as a result of his contact with the wire and his back and side are badly bruised from his fall on the hard street. Whether he is injured internally or not will not be known for a day or two. If not, his external injuries are not considered critical. Mr. Kelly is married and his wife at Loganton was promptly notified of the accident and hastened to Bellefonte.

Thieves Steal Team, Spring Wagon, Harness, Etc.

On Sunday night about eleven o'clock thieves entered the premises of John White, who lives on one of the penitentiary farms at Rock Forge, and stole a team of horses, double harness, covered spring wagon, five bushels of potatoes and three bushels of corn. They also detached a brass buggy lamp from the buggy in the barn floor and took it. Mr. White and family had driven to church on Sunday evening in the spring wagon and returning home had stabled the horses and run the spring wagon into the shed. Shortly before eleven o'clock Ralph Moyer, a neighbor, passed the White home and noticed the spring wagon standing outside the shed. He saw nothing else, however, but it is likely the thieves had just run the wagon out and then hidden until he passed by.

One of the horses stolen is a black broncho mare, branded on the left hip with the letter U. The other is a bay horse with a white right hind foot and star in forehead. Any one seeing such a team should promptly notify the state police.
