Camp Grounds in State Forests.

To encourage use of recreational facilities of the State forests, the Department of Forestry has authorized the construction of seven additional public camp grounds this fall. These new camp grounds, and the eleven similar recreational areas which were developed last spring, will provide headquarters for hunters who go into the woods this fall.

Several camp grounds will be equipped with log lean-tos, stone fireplaces, walled-up springs, garbage cans, comfort stations, and in some instances, public telephones. Use of the camp grounds will be free to the public, but permits, which will be issued by the local forest officers, will be required when campers desire to occupy a site for more than two days.

Three of the new camps will be equipped and situated particularly for the use of automobile tourists who carry camping outfits with them. These camp grounds, however, are not restricted to their use. They may be occupied also by sportsmen and picnickers. Four other new camp grounds will be prepared by the department for the convenience of sportsmen and campers.

The new camp grounds in this section of the State designed for automobile tourists are in Laurel Run park, in the Penn State forest, Mifflin county, on the state highway between Lewistown and Bellefonte, and at Colerain Forge, in the Logan State forest, Huntingdon county, along state highway between Spruce Creek and State College.

For sportsmen and campers a camp will be located at The Locusts, in the Penn State forest, Centre county, along state highway between Lewistown and Bellefonte.

Enterprising Farmer Gathering in the Sheekels.

Jesse Klingler is not only one of the most progressive farmers of College township but he is also able to "see the hole in a millstone," especially when money is shining on the right side of the hole. Some six weeks ago the County Commissioners awarded a contract for the erection of a concrete bridge over Slab Cabin creek, a short distance beyond Lemont on the state road leading from Lemont to State College. When the old bridge was torn down all travel was compelled to detour around by the Branch road, a distance of some three or four miles.

Now it so happens that Mr. Klingler's farm is located at that particular spot and seeing possibilities in the undertaking he built a substantial bridge on his own land adjoining the state highway and graded a roadway to the bridge from both sides of the creek. He then announced it open for traffic as a toll bridge, charging ten cents for a passenger car or wagon, twenty cents for a big bus and twenty-five cents for a heavy truck. At first travelers were rather averse to paying the toll but Mr. Klingler simply sat tight and finally the traffic began to come his way. Last Sunday a week over seven hundred cars crossed his bridge and now very little traffic makes the detour. On busy days it requires the services of three and four boys to take toll and Klingler is literally coining money.

From every indication it will be from two to three months before the new highway bridge is completed and in the mean time the bridge builder will be adding to his bank account daily.

—L. Olin Meek is critically ill at his home on west High street, with little hope for his recovery.

Costly Auto Presented as Tribute to Hugo Bezdek.

Even the uncertainties of the approaching football season and Penn State's none too rosy prospects will not be cause to drive away the smile from the face of coach Hugo Bezdek, of State College. There is a very good reason, for the popular blue and white mentor has just been presented with a beautiful sports model Winton speedster by the Hon. Harry B. Scott, of Philipsburg, former representative in the State Legislature and present candidate for State Senator from this district.

Mr. Scott is a football enthusiast and he has particularly admired the work that Bezdek has done for athletics at Penn State. Not only is Bezdek known as a successful coach, but by many he is also acclaimed as one of the greatest character builders in college circles. Penn State teams trained in the Bezdek system have acquired a reputation for clean, hard playing, and the gift of Mr. Scott comes as a tribute to the man who taught his team the principle that "victory without honor is no victory at all."

Despite the appeal of the new car, "Bez" has not let it distract his attention from the real job of the moment which is the rebuilding of the Nittany eleven for another hard season. The badly shattered backfield has failed to respond to treatment as yet, but the Penn State tactician is gradually getting a line on his various candidates and he now knows just about how much ability each player has. Every man who has shown any ability was given a chance in the scrimmage yesterday.

Hay—Lingle.—A wedding in which many Bellefonters will be interested was that on Wednesday of last week of Miss Marion Lingle, only daughter of Mrs. J. The bride was born and spent her early life in Bellefonte, living here until the family moved to DuBois. The bridegroom is vice president of the Hay Drug company, with stores in DuBois and Ridgway. Mr. and Mrs. Hay departed shortly after the ceremony for an automobile honeymoon trip to points of interest in the east and south.

A portion of their honeymoon is being spent among Centre county friends and on Monday evening they were given a big reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strouse. The same evening the callithumpians gave them a rousing serenade. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn have taken rooms at the Mrs. E. G. Fye home, on west College avenue, at State College, where they will be located for the present.

Williams—Witherite.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Witherite, at Runville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday evening when their daughter, Miss Helen E. Sparks, the beautiful ring service being used. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside at Runville and their many friends wish them a long life of happiness and prosperity.
