Of course you would. Nine out of every ten would do the same hting.

By so doing you will not be confessing

HOPE ON.

There was never a day so misty and gray That the blue was not somewhere above it There is never a mountain top ever se bleak That some little flower does not love it.

There was never a night so dreary and dark

That the stars were not somewhere shining;

There is never a cloud so heavy and black That it has not a silver lining.

There is never a waiting time, weary and long,

"That will not some time have an ending; The most beautiful part of the landscape is where

The sunshine and shadows are blending.

Into every life some shadow will fall, But heaven sends the sunshine of love; Through the rifts in the clouds we may if we will

See the beautiful blue above.

Let us hope on though the way may be long

And the darkness be gathering fast; For the turn in the road is a little way on, Where the home-lights will greet us at last.

CENTRE COUNTY VETERANS HOLD ANNUAL REUNION.

Just twenty-five veterans of the Civil war registered at the fiftieth an- lins, spirits, gentle spirits and omens. nual reunion of the Centre County Veteran Club, held at Grange park last Wednesday, and the report of the secretary showed that twenty-six members had passed away during the past year. The annual meeting was held in the auditorium at the park and was presided over by the president, S. B. Miller. Dean R. L. Watts, ed the following committee:

Radio Leads to Study of Electrical Engineering.

More applicants for admission to The Pennsylvania State College Freshman class this fall desire to study electrical engineering than any other one course. The same condition has been true for the past several years with the growth of wireless and now radio fan population, a circum-stance which is connected by college officials to the popularity for advanced study in the wonders of electricity.

A total of 141 of the 435 young men to be admitted to the Penn State engineering school have asked to enroll as students in the department of elec-trical engineering. This department is by far the largest in the college, just as the school of engineering out-ranks the schools of agriculture, liberal arts, mines and science.

start a panic at night. Armies take advantage of this wellknown disposition and make night attacks. The best time is thought to be just before daybreak in the morning, for then the sleepers are more drow-sy than at any other period. If sur-prised at such time they are apt to break in all directions, become confused and fall an easy prey to their assailants. It is to prevent such catastrophes that picket guards are strengthened at night, and all of the posts required to stand at arms for an hour before daybreak. The latter requirement is rarely enforced except when there is a possibility of an at-tempted surprise. If the surprise part of the program miscarries the attack is given up, because men do not fight well in the dark. They lack steadiness and self-control.

Although the practicability of beaver farming has not been fully dem-onstrated, the United States department of agriculture believes that the business of raising beavers for their fur may develop under proper control measures, into a profitable branch of measures, into a profitable branch of fur farming. With a small beginning the enterprise seems to promise an advance to good returns and even great possibilities.

A fertile field for beaver culture may be found in connection with projects for the reforestation with conifers of burned or cut-over timber-lands. Many of these areas, cleared by ax or fire and later covered with a second growth of aspen, willow, and pin cherry, are for the time considered almost worthless. Over much of the northern border of the United States and still larger areas of Canada where such land is found it is generally unsuited for agriculture and would not pay taxes until again cov-ered with valuable forest timber, but would supply ideal food for beavers,
