

ELISHA KENT KANE
Industrial Peace.

Industrial peace has two legs, Friendship and Justice. They must stand on the rock of christianity. Friendship is personal and cannot be forced by law. In my 32 years of industrial business my success has been due to the loyal friendship of my employees; we have been neighbors in every sense. Justice is a governmental matter which, as between laborer and capitalist, has been shamefully neglected. Privileges have been granted to the clamorous. Rights have not been defined. Every conceivable right to real and personal property is protected by volumes of civil and criminal law. But labor, upon which 90 per cent of our people depend for their livelihood, is neither real nor personal property. The laborer, black or white, cannot now be sold as a chattel; but this labor, every hour of which is a fraction of his life, is attempted to be dealt with as merchandise. Laborers have felt forced to band together to extort advantages from associations of employers. Thus has arisen collective bargaining, destruction of personal relations, and the estrangement of those who, living by a common industry, ought to be closest friends. They deal through negotiators, too often selected because of their fighting power. Naturally such negotiations fail, strikes result and continue until laborers' families are destitute and capitalists have lost so heavily that both despairingly come together and saddle part of the loss on helpless outsiders. Arbitration, though better than war, hears only the disputants; and, even if fundamental principles are considered, they do not become a matter of record, and are not subject to appeal and establish no precedents. Industrial courts would decide cases on broader ground. Unjust decisions would be corrected by laws. The judges ought to be elected by the whole, thus putting the choice of judges into working men's hands. Working men have had complete control of America for 140 years, and have made it the wealthiest nation on the face of the globe and the safest place for capital. They can still be trusted. Congress is not directly concerned with the establishment of courts; but, wherever interstate commerce is concerned it can enact rights for laborers and empower district courts to decide them. I have no socialistic hobby to ride; but, if elected to Congress, I want rights for all laborers, so that some won't injure others in struggles for privileges. Not being either Republican or Democrat, I can work with progressives in both parties. Party disputes, job hunting and tariff tinkering need not take up all the time. Write for more to Somebody Found It.

During the performance at a suburban picture theatre the following notice was flashed on the screen during the interval:
"Lost, between Maple road, and this theatre, a purse containing $75. Finder rewarded."
Almost at once a man went to the booking office.
"It's found," he said.
"They brought the manager."
"Have you got it?" he asked.
"Oh, no," replied the man, "but I've only just come along that way, and it wasn't there, so it's found."

Lover of Horses.

Sam, an old Negro, was always poor, but he managed to support a bony horse and keep it alive. He rarely worked and as a result often came to beg a little food and money from other people.
"Sam," I remarked, "how's times?"
"No good, no ways, marster! That theah hoss ob mine, seems like ha has to buy so much hay fo' him tha ah nevah has no money lef' to buy maseif anything to eat, sah."
"But, Sam, why do you need to keep the horse, then?"
"To haul the hay, sah."—Washington and Jefferson Wag Jag.

Week-Ahead Program

Cut this out and save for reference.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23:

HELENE CHADWICK in "THE DUST FLOWER," an appealing drama of slum society life. An entertainment that will please all. Six reels. Also, Saub Pollard Comedy.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 25:

MATT MOORE and GLADYS LESLIE in "STRAIGHT IS THE WAY," a seven reel small town comedy drama. Two crooks enter a house to lift the silverware but lift the mortgage instead. Also, Pathe News, Topics and Harold Lloyd Comedy.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26:

MARIE PREVOST in "HER NIGHT OF NIGHTS," an entertaining light romance drama. A story of a young model falls in love with poor young man, and she finally gives up her promiscuous life to marry him. Also, Screen Snap Shots and Movie Chats.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27:

NORMA TALMADGE in "THE WONDERFUL THING," a seven reel feature from the stage play by that name. Story of titled Englishman who marries French girl for her money to help out a scrape a younger brother got into. They part but afterwards become reunited in U. S. A. Also, Sunshine Comedy.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28:

JOHNNIE WALKER in "MY DAD," is a very fine drama of the Northwest, loaded with human interest and many dramatic climaxes. Factor falls in love with step-daughter and holds crime over head of father of hero. A Belgian police dog does fine work. Also, Pathe News and Review.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29:

MARIE PREVOST in "THE MARRIED FLAPPER," is a fairly interesting romance with a fair amount of heart interest and a few thrills, caused by auto racing. Complications ensue by reason of younger sister getting into trouble that heroine assumes to save her. Also, the first episode of "IN THE DAYS OF BUFFALO BILL."

OPERA HOUSE.

SATURDAY NIGHT, SEPTEMBER 30:

WILLIAM RUSSELL in "MEN OF ZANZIBAR," a thrilling melodrama that unfolds on the east coast of Africa with a story of the hero detailed to capture a man who had stolen some money. The various adventures and plot keep the action and suspense to the end. With two reel Tomerville or Semon Comedy.

Scenic Shows begin at 6:40.
