-Some very decided changes have been made in the lobby of the Bush house which gives that hotel quite a metropolitan appearance. The counter, desk and all the office equipment has been moved into the alcove to the right of the lobby where the telephone booths stood, the latter being moved into a smaller alcove in the rear. The lobby thus extends back to the waiting room, which adds considerable to its size and lounging space. When the rear portion is papered and painted it will be furnished with rugs and comfortable furniture which will make it not only a lounge in name but a lounge in reality.
