Big Radio Broadcasting Station at State College.

A big radio broadcasting station, a gift of the college alumni of Allegheny county, is now being erected at The Pennsylvania State College. The last shipment of material was received this week and work is being rushed on the big aerial and the installation completed within a fortnight. The apparatus alone cost $5,000. The station is designed to radiate at 1,250 watts, which is equal to the power of the big government station at Newark, N. J., and an efficient range of 500 miles is promised, with a possible range under good air conditions of 2000 miles.

One of the first uses of the new station will be to send out nightly reports telling of the progress being made in the drive for $2,000,000 for new dormitories and welfare buildings. It is hoped to procure a 400 or 500 meter wave length so that educational matter can be broadcasted at the same hour concerts are being sent out from other stations.

The nightly program will begin with the weather report, crop conditions, market reports of interest to the farmers and all game scores. In winter time the condition of the main highways will be given and storm warnings sent out.

About 123,000 tank cars are used in the transportation of oil in this country. Of these about 8,000 are railroad property, the remainder being owned by those engaged in the oil industry.
