A Profitable Orchard.

In 1901 a fruit farm was started at Gardner, on the line of the Tyrone & Clearfield railroad, and 2862 apple trees and 650 peach trees were planted. Up to 1917 it never produced a paying crop. That year the orchard was purchased by S. W. Fletcher, head of the department of horticulture at State College, and Freeman Mason, of the New Jersey Agricultural college. The ground was covered with briars, scrub oak, sassafras and sumac, and the new owners proceeded to clear out the rubbish and cultivate the ground. The result has been that this year they gathered a crop of 14,000 bushels of apples. Eleven thousand bushels were of marketable quality, some of which were sold and the balance stored for winter sale, while 3,000 bushels were made into cider for vinegar.

Campaign for Better Lighting.

They Keystone Power corporation is this week conducting an exhibition of proper lighting effects in the Bellefonte armory, and while the primary object is a campaign to sell electricity the motive is not entirely ulterior nor mercenary. A large number of merchants and business men were present at the opening exhibition on Wednesday evening, when D. W. Atwater, field representative of the National Electric Light association, gave a demonstration of the proper way to light a store and show windows.

One corner of the armory was curtained off as a small store room and both proper and improper lighting systems had been installed. Mr. Atwater demonstrated that a proper lighting system was no more expensive than an improper one, the principal difference being in the position of the lights used. The exhibition will continue this afternoon and tonight.

The condition of Mrs. J. Y. Dale, who has again been ill during the past week, is rapidly improving.

—The house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Daley, on east Lamb street, has been sold by the executors of the Crider estate to Elmer Rocky, an employee of the Emerick Motor Bus company.

—The hard coal situation in Bellefonte was never more acute than at present. There is a small supply of egg and stove coal in one of the yards but not a pound of the most used domestic sizes. However, the operators have completed their lake shipments and promise more liberality in distribution to Pennsylvania consumers.

Miss Annie Lohr, of Boalsburg, spent most of the week in Centre Hall.

Mrs. Emma Morgan, of near Pittsburgh, is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. W. Smith.

Clarence Heim's family, of Harrisburg, visited with his sister, Mrs. W. F. Colyer, over Sunday.

The pageant in the Lutheran church on Sunday evening was well executed. The attendance was good.

James Lutz, who broke his leg while playing at school some time ago, is again able to be up and around.

Mrs. H. F. Bitner, of Lewisburg, was in town on Monday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Dale.

C. F. Emery butchered several fine porkers on Tuesday. Mrs. Finkel, of Millburg, came up to help on that day.

The Lohr home next to the Methodist church, was recently sold to Henry White. J. F. Lutz and wife, who have occupied the home for a number of years, will have sale on Saturday, and then move in with Mrs. Henry Homan, in the P. H. Meyer dwelling.

Tells Hunter to Look for Minerals.

Dr. George H. Ashley, head of the bureau of topographic and geological survey in the Pennsylvania Department of Internal Affairs, suggests that miners keep their eyes open for strange and unusual appearing rocks and minerals during the fall hunting season.

He added that many valuable deposits have been discovered accidentally, and that some sportsmen may find their outings profitable as well as pleasant.

In particular Dr. Ashley said, attention should be directed toward the finding of bog iron ore deposits. These may be located in woods, on hillsides, in bottom lands, or in swamps.

Former State Student Now U. S. Vice-Consul.

Harry J. Anslinger, who completed a two-year course in agriculture at The Pennsylvania State College, seven years ago, sent an interesting account of German wood-dyeing experiments to Dean R. L. Watts recently, in which it was learned that Anslinger, a former Altoona resident, is now serving his country as vice-consul in Hamburg, Germany.

New Book on American Literature by Pattee.

A new book from the pen of Prof. Fred Lewis Pattee, of The Pennsylvania State College faculty, "Side-lights on American Literature," has appeared from the press of the Century Co. It is a group of nine essays dealing with modern American writers. One well known critic says of the book:

"It contains the first adequate criticisms of three modern luminaries, O. Henry, Mencken and Jack London, and its hilarious reading, especially the revelation of the early Mencken who wrote pretty rondeaus and also imitations of Kipling. If there's a better critic of American literature of the last generation than F. L. Pattee, I don't remember him."

Professor Pattee's "History of the American Short Story" will appear before the end of the year.
