ECONOMIZE IN FUEL.

Scientific Rules and Regulations for Saving Coal.

Last week the "Watchman" told of the scarcity of anthracite coal in Bellefonte and an illustration of just how scarce it is was given on Saturday when the Bellefonte Fuel and Supply company received a car load of chestnut. So many orders were on the company's books that the car load was divided among approximately two hundred customers and no new orders would be taken. This is only a sample of what conditions will probably be like all winter and it is up to everybody to economize as much as possible in the use of coal. For this reason the following scientific rules and regulations for saving coal in the home, prepared by L. P. Breckenridge, professor of mechanical engineering at Yale, and chairman of the fuel division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and E. H. Lockwood, assistant professor of mechanical engineering at Yale, are very timely. The regulations have been approved by the fuel division and are as follows:

PART I. PREPARATION OF THE EQUIPMENT.

See that the grates are in good order.

Seal air leaks in ash pit and around clean-out doors.

Cover steam and water pipes to prevent unnecessary radiation.

Provide suitable clean-out tools for boiler flues.

Prepare for supplementary heat in mild weather, fire-places, gas logs, kerosene heaters, etc.

Prevent air leakage as far as possible by weather strips and storm windows.

Provide for re-circulating air in hot air furnaces by convenient slides in the pipes.

Arrange coal bins so that two kinds of fuel can be kept separate if desired.

PART II. KINDS OF FUEL.

Stove and nut anthracite are ideal fuels for heating homes. Scarcity and cost of these fuels will restrict their use in the future. Small sizes of anthracite should be used whenever possible.

Gas coke in conjunction with anthracite pea or buckwheat coal. This is an excellent combination, as the fire will keep well, but will give heat when required.

Block wood in conjunction with anthracite pea or buckwheat coal. This is a good combination where wood is available, equal to coke for producing heat, but requiring more attention.

Bituminous coal can be used in most furnaces designed for hard coal. The exceptions will be found in cases where the flue passages are small and not easily cleaned. Bituminous coal demands more attention, and unless this is given will give less heat. Best results will be found where the furnace is rather large for the house, so that the fire does not have to be pushed.

PART III. MANAGEMENT OF THE FURNACE.

1. Rules for Burning Anthracite Coal (Large Sizes).

Carry a deep bed of fuel—at least level with the fire doors.

Shake the grate to remove ashes and lower the fuel bed but stop when the first live coals appear.

Fresh fuel should be spread evenly over the entire grate area. A heavy firing, say 6 to 8 inches deep, can be made if desired and will last for 6 to 8 hours. For quick kindling, the fire bed should be made fairly hot before adding fresh fuel.

After firing keep the dampers wide open until blue flame appears, then check off the draft as much as necessary to keep the fire burning at desired rate. The proper setting of the dampers must be learned in the draft available for different installations.

2. Rules for Burning Coke and Anthracite, Pea or Buckwheat.

Carry a deep bed of fuel—even above the level of the fire door.

Shake the grate to remove ashes and lower the fuel bed but stop when the first live coals appear.

Spread a thin layer of anthracite over the entire grate and allow a few minutes for this fuel to ignite. Next fill the fire pot with coke, and allow this to burn until blue flame appears, then add another layer of anthracite.

After firing and seeing that the charge is ignited, check off the draft to the desired point for slow burning.

When banking the fire for the night, use less coke and more anthracite, but otherwise fire in the same manner.

Anthracite pea or buckwheat can often be used alone with success. This will happen when the draft is unusually good and the furnace is amply large. Small size anthracite ignites slowly. It is best to fire one-half of the grate at a time, allowing the first half of the charge to ignite before adding the second half. Small sizes may be used in the fall and spring if not in the winter.

3. Rules for Burning Wood and Anthracite, Pea or Buckwheat.

Follow the rules for coke and anthracite, substituting block wood for coke. It is highly important to see that the fuel is properly ignited and giving off flame before closing off the drafts.

4. Rules for Burning Bituminous Coal.

Bituminous, or soft coal, will, as a rule, give out less heat than anthracite when fired in the ordinary residence heater. Hence more attention will usually be required when using soft coal.

A deep fuel bed is desirable, also, as a rule, more draft by the dampers. After the fuel is partly burned, more heat can be obtained by breaking up the fire bed with the hoe or poker if the fuel is caked.

Stir up the fire and get it hot before adding new fuel.

Preliminary to firing a new charge, push the burned fuel to the back or sides of the fire box, heaping it high up on the sides of the fire box walls.

Fire fresh fuel into the hole in the hot fuel bed, making it level with the heaped-up burning fuel.

After firing check the draft to make the fire burn slowly, setting the dampers as found best by experience.

A large charge of soft coal will burn slowly for several hours, giving out moderate heat. If more heat is demanded, it can be secured by breaking up the partly ignited mass with the fire tools.

A little air should be admitted through the slides in the fire door when burning bituminous coal.

Registered Cows Brought Good Prices at Community Sale.

One fact emphasized at the community sale in Bellefonte on Wednesday was that farmers and stock breeders will pay the price for registered blooded stock while grade stock is not in great demand. Thirty-two head of cattle were sold, which included George E. Furey's dairy herd of eighteen, mostly registered Holstein Friesians. The banner price received was $247.00 for his registered cow Fegis Pontiac DeKol Orrsby. She was bought by E. M. Archie, of Lock Haven, who also paid $165.00 for one and $182.50 for a grade cow. SANDERS.—Mrs. Anna C. Sanders, wife of C. M. Sanders, died very suddenly on Tuesday afternoon at her home at Vicksburg, Union county, following only a few hours' illness. She did her housework as usual on Tuesday morning and ate a hearty dinner.

About two o'clock she was found lying in the doorway by Mrs. Samuel Reber, her step-daughter, who made her home with the Sanders family. A physician was hastily summoned but she was beyond medical aid and passed away at five o'clock. She was born at Bannerville, Pa., on November 22nd, 1860, hence was 62 years and 6 days old. She came to Bellefonte when a young girl and for a number of years lived with the Mann family, later going into the Mrs. Rachel Harris home where she lived until her marriage to Mr. Sanders on April 21st, 1917. The wedding took place at the Harris home, the ceremony being performed by the late Rev. Glanding, of the Lutheran church, of which she was a member.

She is survived by her husband but no children. She leaves, however, three brothers, Joseph S. Garthoff, of Seattle, Wash.; James D., of Lock Haven, and John F., of Bellefonte. Funeral services will be held at her late home tomorrow and burial be made in the cemetery at Millburg. Mr. and Mrs. John Garthoff went to Vicksburg on Tuesday and will remain until after the funeral.

As a boy he served as a newsboy on Pennsylvania railroad trains, later learning telegraphy. As a young man he learned the printing trade in the office of the Mount Union Times and also worked for his brother, W. T. Bair, on the Shirlsberg Herald. In 1883 when the latter took charge of the Phillipsburg Journal Frank went with him and accepted a position on the paper, holding down his job until ill health kept him confined to his home. Ten years ago he became a member of the Methodist church and ever since had been a regular attendant. He was twice married and is survived by his second wife and fourteen children. He also leaves two brothers. Burial was made in the Phillipsburg cemetery on Sunday afternoon.

He never married but is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Alabama Parsons and Mrs. Olive Gant, of Julian; Mrs. J. S. Taylor, of Altoona; Mrs. L. N. Fleck, of Tyrone; Mrs. Lillie Stephenson, of Waddle, and V. G. Henderson, of Woodland. Funeral services were held on Saturday morning by Rev. Walter H. Upham, of Stormtown, after which burial was made in Gray's cemetery, in Halfmoon valley.

KUMERANT.—Rev. Father L. P. Kumerant, who for thirty-eight years was rector of the Sts. Peter's and Paul's Catholic church, in Phillipsburg, passed away on Monday evening following an illness of four months. He was born at Gettysburg in 1852, ordained to the priesthood in 1881 and two years later assigned to the Phillipsburg church. He retired last year on account of failing health. Funeral mass will be held today and the remains taken to York for interment.

Thirteen years ago he quit the farm and moved to Altoona where he lived five years then went to State College where he had since lived.

In 1881 he married Miss Anna Sellers, of Buffalo Run, who survives with the following children: Gray, Roy and Agnew Way, all of Erie, and Mrs. P. B. Meek, of State College. What Pleasant Gap Sportsmen Have Done.

Despite the little hammer of the habitual knockers the Pleasant Gap Camp No. 176, United Sportsmen of Pennsylvania, is steadily increasing its membership, according to the annual report, and now has on its roll seventy-six names of good and substantial citizens of that town and surrounding territory. During the past year they put out one hundred quail, forty-eight Kansas rabbits, six Michigan snow shoe rabbits, three ring-neck pheasants and fifteen cans of brown trout, all furnished by the game and fish commissions. They also have raised to maturity nine ring-neck pheasants from eggs furnished by the game commission, and these will be released in the spring after laying their first setting of eggs.

The Camp now occupies the second floor of the building in which is housed the Pleasant Gap hose company. Their rooms are nicely furnished and the walls decorated with many firearms and trophies of the chase. A very successful old time rifle match was held last Saturday, which netted the Camp seventy odd dollars. The best shots, and those capturing the good prizes were Clyde Thomas and Mr. Mingle, of State College; Mr. Walker, of Bush's Addition, and Allen Wolford, of Pleasant Gap.

The Pleasant Gap Camp is affiliated with the United Sportsmen of Pennsylvania, a state-wide organization with many prominent men as members, whose object is the propagation and protection of game and fish in the forests and streams of the State. All true sportsmen are invited to join the Camp, whether residents of Pleasant Gap or not.

Twelve applications for liquor licenses have been filed in Centre county. One of the number is Earl S. Kline, for a license at the Garman house, Bellefonte.

In addition to this, the committee has made itself responsible for rent of a room in which the State tuberculosis clinic will be opened next month.

That so much good can be accomplished through the sale of penny seals seems sufficient apology for asking support of a public that has been made almost bankrupt in purse and patience by the numerous recent "drives."

The Left Hind Foot of a Rabbit Caught in the Dark of the Moon

Is claimed to have much influence for good. If caught in a graveyard its power against evil is unlimited. If it had the power to restore overtaxed eyes, which cause so many headaches, we would have them on sale, but knowing it has no such power we advise properly-fitted spectacles. I will advise you honestly. Consult me today. Prices moderate.
